The Daily Morning Post. PITTSBURGH, PA. MONDAY MORNING, APRIL 28, 1845. PITTSBURGH BOARD OF TRADE. COMMITTEE FOR APRIL. Joshus Hanna, W. Thaw, J. W. Lightner. A London paper notices, in general terms, and most important invention recently made, whereby the use of fire and steam in working and proiling all kinds of machinery is to be superseded. journal says: "The fundamental principle on which the new engine is founded is precisely similar to that of the hy-draulic press, the power of which every one knows can only be limited by the strength of the materials of which it is made. But, what has rendered the power of the hydraulic press inapplicable to the production of motive power is, that just in proportion as the power is gained, speed is lost, and vice versa. In the ont invention, however, unlimited power is gained | before been offered to the public.

present invention, however, unlimited power is gained without the loss of speed, the piston of the large cylinder travelling at each stroke, with the power gained, just the same distance as the piston of the lesser cylingraph.

This power and this speed, which are in inverse of each other, appear by this most important including (how paradoxical) actually combined." At is added that its structure is extremely simple, perfectly in accordance with the laws of science, and the most eminent and acute scientife gentlemen philesophy in all its branches.
