The Daily Morning Post.

PITTSBURGH, PA. TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 17, 1845. PITTSBURGH BOARD OF TRADE.

COMMITTEE FOR JUNE.

M. Robertson, W. B. Scaife, R. E. Sellers. KIND AND CANDID. -- A woman came into our office yesterday, and said she wanted to trade some Rye Flour for a paper. She had bought some Rye Flour, she said, which was so bad she could not eat it, and she wanted to trade it off for a paper. We hardly know whether her candor or her kindness was the more worthy of admiration-her candor in telling us that the flour was spoiled, or her kindness in wishing to patronize us and pay in advance. One thing is certain, she had a proper appreciation of the troubles and the difficulties of printers. We declined to trade.

The River was falling at Cincinnati on the 13th inst.

however.

DROWNED .- A journeyman tinner, named Henry Clarke, late of Belmont, Centre county, Pa., was after this date changed their hours, and in future will drowned at Frankfort, Kentucky, on the 6th, while leave med Rynl, fell from the steamer Levant at St Louis, on the 6th and was drowned.

MAGNETIC PRINTING TELEGRAPH .- The New York Journal of Commerce has seen the specimen of satisfied with having the lion's share of trade and words printed with a machine through the application | choice of hours in leaving Pittsburgh and Beaver, but of electricity to it, but has not been made acquainted now publicly and plainly say they will drive the Lake with the principles of the machine. All we can say, says the Journal, is, that if such letters can be produced by telegraphic wires, and produced rapidly and accurately, as we are assured they can be, this invention, for practical usefulness, far surpasses any other of the 1845.
