THE GREAT OREGON RAILROAD.—We had yesterday the pleasure of an interview with Mr. A. Whitney, the projector of the great Oregon Railroad. Mr. W. has just returned from his trip of observation, and is in high hopes of carrying out his gigantic project, having personally satisfied himself of the feasibility of the undertaking. Of course the disposal of the matter lies in the next congress, and should the grant of land asked for by Mr. Whitney be acceded, the work will immediately commence.

When the elections have passed, we shall endeavor to bestow upon this important subject that attention which it deserves. All will, we believe, conclude that the project is not a visionary one, and in less than half a century it is very probable that a railroad communication will be secured to the country of the Pacific.—A few years since such a proposal would have been laughed at; yet the immense public improvements already made, teach us that American enterprise can effect any thing it attempts, and that our career as a nation has only commenced.

The only question of moment connected with Mr. Whitney's plan, not already settled, is that of the grant of land. This will occupy the attention of the next congress, and will be a subject of great interest. The country is not sufficiently alive to its importance, but a discussion of its merits in the press generally, will soon elicit the opinions of every community. We shall refer to this subject again, so soon as we have had time more fully to examine it.

The degree of L. L. D. was conferred on the Hon. Henry Clay, on Thursday, by the Board of Trustees of Jefferson College, Va.

THE RIO GRANDE.

The secret treaty which Santa Anna formed with the authorities of Texas by which he obtained his own liberty and preserved the army of Mexico, has just been published by Texas. We copy both the private and public treaties from the columns of the Galveston News. It appears from both these instruments, that the Rio Grande was at that time designated as the western boundary of Texas.

SECRET TREATY.

Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, generalissimo of the army of operations, and President of the republic of Mexico, before the government established in Texas, solemnly pledges himself to fulfil the stipulations contained in the following articles, as far as concerns himself.

Article 1. He will not take up arms, nor cause them to be taken up against the people of Texas, during the present war of independence.

Article 2. He will give his orders that, in the shortest time the Mexican troops may leave the territory of Texas.

Article 3. He will so prepare matters in the cabinet of Mexico, that the mission that may be sent thither by the government of Texas may be well received; and that, by means of negotiations, all differences may be settled and the independence that has been declared by the convention may be acknowledged.

Article 4. A treaty of commerce, amity and limits will be established between Mexico and Texas. The territory of the latter not to extend beyond the Rio Bravo del Norte!

Article 5. The prompt return of Gen Santa Ana to Vera Cruz being indispensible, for the purpose of effecting the solemn engagements, the government of Texas will provide for his immediate embarkation for said port.

Article 6. This instrument being obligatory on one part as well as on the other, will be signed by duplicate, remaining folded and sealed until the negotiations shall have been concluded, when it shall be restored to his excellency General Santa Ana—no use of it to be made before that time, unless there be an infraction by either of the contracting parties.

PORT OF VELASCO, May 14, 1836.

(Signed.)
David G. Burnet,
Antonio Lopez de Santa Ana,
James Collinsworth Secretary of State,
Baily Hardiman, Secretary of the Treasury,
P. H. Grayson, Attorney General.

Farewell of Gen. Santa Ana to the Texan army

My Friends!—I have been a witness of your courage in the field of battle, and know you to be generous. Rely with confidence on my sincerity, and you shall have no cause to regret the kindness I have shown me. I beg you to receive the sincere thanks of your grateful friend—farewell.

ANTONIO LOPEZ DE SANTA ANA.

Velasco, 1st June, 1836.

Papers of Gen. Austin.—Copy of an agreement &c.—Articles of agreement entered into between his excellency David G. Burnet, President of the republic of Texas, of the one part, and his excellency General Antonio Lopez de Santa Ana, President and generalin-chief of the Mexican army, of the other part:

Article 1. Gen Antonio Lopez de Santa Ana agrees that he will not take up arms, nor will exercise his influence to cause them to be taken up against the people of Texas, during the present war of independence.

Article 2. All hostilities between the Mexican and Texan troops will cease immediately, both on land and water.

Article 3. The Mexican troops will vacate the territory of Texas, passing to the other side of the Rio Grande del Norte.

Article 4. The Mexican army, in its retreat, shall not take the property of any person without his consent and just indemnification, using only such articles as may be necessary for its subsistence, in case where the owner may not be present, and remitting to the commander of the army of Texas, or to the commissioners to be appointed for the adjustment of such matters, an account of the value of the property consumed, the place where taken, and the name of the owner, if it can be ascertained.

Article 5. That all private property, including cattle, horses, negro slaves, or indentured persons of whatever denomination that may have been captured by any portion of the Mexican army, or may have taken refuge in the said army, since the commencement of the last invasion, shall be restored to the commander of the Texian army, or to such other persons as may be appointed by the government of Texas to receive them.

Article 6. The troops of both armies will refrain from coming into contact with each other; and, to this end, the commander of the army of Texas will be careful not to approach within a less distance of the Mexican army than five leagues.

Article 7. The Mexican army shall not make any other delay on its march than that which is necessary to take up their hospitals, baggage, &c., and to cross the rivers. Any delay not necessary to these purposes, to be considered an infraction of this agreement.

Article 8. By express, to be immediately despatched, this agreement shall be sent to Gen. Vicente Filisola and to Gen. T. J. Rusk, commander of the Texian army, in order that they may be apprized of its stipulations; and to this end, they will exchange engagements to comply with the same.

Article 9. That all Texian prisoners, now in possession of the Mexican army, or its authorities, be forthwith released, with free passports to return to their homes; in consideration of which, a corresponding number of Mexican prisioners, rank and file, now in possession of the government of Texas, shall be immediately released. The remainder of the Mexican prisoners that continue in the possession of the government of Texas, to be treated with due humanity, and furnished any extraordinary comforts that may be furnished them, to be at the charge of the government of Mexico.

Article 10. General Antonio Lopez de Santo Anna will be sent to Vera Cruz as soon as it shall be deemed proper; The contracting parties sign the instrument for the above-mentioned purpose, by duplicate, at the port of Velasco, this fourteenth day of May, 1836.

THE HUSSAR'S SADDLE.

(Concluded.)

Every passing day carried with it some portion of the fortitude of Theresa, as if he saw the near approach of the period which was to consign her to a fate so dreadful. Three little weeks were all that lay between her and misery. Ludovic endeavored to soothe her, but she would not be comforted. Had even her affections been disengaged, Karl would have been distasteful to her; but with affections placed on another, the idea of a union with him, appeared insupportable.

'My dear child,' would Ludovic say, interrupting a passionate burst of grief, 'by what magic has Arnholt gained possession of your heart.' 'He is an hussar,' replied Theresa. There was something in this reply which moved Ludovic; he recollected that he himself had imbued the mind of his daughter with sentiments of respect and esteem for the character of a good soldier and conscience reminded him, that he had often exhibited the profession of arms above the husbandman. Was it wonderful then, that Theresa should have imbibed something of this spirit? or that she should have yielded her heart to one who had possessed courage to defend her, and tenderness to sooth her, under the afflictions of life?—Arnoldt dwelt more than he had been the early playmate of Theresa, and with glowing cheeks and sparkling eyes, they had often listened to the warlike exploits which the good Ludovic delighted to relate to them; and to those conversations might be attributed the passionate decision of Arnholt to adopt the profession of arms. Accustomed to see them play together as children, and liking the society of the generous and animated boy, Ludovic forgot the danger, when their childhood passed away of their affections assuming a totally different character. It was so, and Ludovic now saw with deep grief, that his daughter was unalterably attached to the youthful soldier.

If Theresa was unhappy, her father was surely not so; he blamed his own imprudence; and on contrasting the characters of the two youths, a violent conflict between his feelings and his duty arose in his breast; but the stern honor of the soldier triumphed and he deemed himself bound to complete the sacrifice.—Unable however, to endure the sight of her grief, he carried her to the abode of a youthful female friend, who formerly resided near them, but on her marriage had removed to a village about sixty miles distant.—There he left Theresa, after receiving her solemn promise that she would return with him the day before that on which she should complete her eighteenth year. 'Father,' said she, with streaming eyes, 'I have never deceived you. If I have, I will return; but do not grieve too deeply, should my heart break in this fearful struggle.' The old hussar dashed away a tear which strayed down his scarred cheek, embraced his child and departed.

Time wore gradually away, and at last the day arrived which was to seal Theresa's fate,—it found her in a state of torpid despair. Exhaustedby her previous struggles, all feeling seemed dead, but her mind was awakened to new suffering. A friend arrived to conduct her to her father. The good Ludovic lay apparently on the bed of death, and with breathless impatience Theresa pursued her journey.

On her arrival her father's sick room was not vacant. The good Karl was there, and there too was the youthful hussar. "My child," said Ludovic "my days are numbered, my days must soon be decided and alas! yours also!—To my dying blessing I solemnly promised, that on this day I would unite you to his son for his pardon. Without fulfilling my engagement I could not die in peace, even the grave would afford no rest. Can you sacrifice yourself for my future repose?—I can, I will," cried the unfortunate Theresa sinking on her knees "can help me Heaven!" Heaven indeed a dreadful child," said Ludovic with fervor. "Karl bless a dreadful child." Karl obeyed—Theresa shuddered.

"Karl," said Ludovic, "you say you love my child, cherish her, I conjure you as you hope for future happiness. In her you will possess a treasure; but I must warn you, she will bring you but one portion of my possessions"—Karl started and retreated a few steps.

"But, however," continued Ludovic, "which I look upon as my greatest earthly treasure, I give you with my daughter. You Karl, believe me have some virtues. Alas! alas! you know not the dreadful secret that have sullied my life—the injuries, the murder—but enough of this." I have confessed to my spiritual father, and have obtained absolution from the dark catalogue—but on condition that I leave all my ways, to the church as an atonement for my transgressions. Do not forget that I was a father, I pleaded the destitute state of my child—I implored, I entreated—at length I wrung from the pious father his consent that I should retain my greatest treasure for my Theresa. I choose my saddle.—Keep it, dear child, in remembrance of an affectionate father. And you Karl, are you satisfied to relinquish worldly goods for the welfare of my soul? Are you content to take my daughter with this portion?

"Finish" exclaimed Karl, doting idiot! how dare you purchase exemption from punishment at my expense! Your wealth is mine; your possessions must be the portion of my bride—I will reclaim them from those rapacious monks and tear them from the altar!"

"You cannot, you dare not," replied Ludovic, raising his voice in anger; 'my agreement with your father had reference to my daughter only—my wealth formed no part of it!'

'Dissembler! dastard!' reciprocated Karl, 'think you that I will accept a portionless bride? You must seek some other fool for your purpose; I renounce her.

"Give her to me Father!" cried Arnholt, I swear to cherish and protect her while I live. Give her to me, and whom she shall be the beloved wife of my bosom. I will live for her—aye, and die for her!"

Karl laughed in mockery. You value life but little," said he, 'to talk of sacrificing it for a woman. I never knew one worth the trouble of winning, and least of Theresa.'

The young hussar laid his hand on his sabre. The cross threw herself between them. At the same moment Ludovic sprang from his couch, tore the covering from his head, snatching his saddle from the wall where it hung, drew his sabre, with one stroke laid it open; and a stream of gold bezants, oriental pearls, and sparkling jewels, fell on the floor. "Wretch," worse! vile clod of earth! art thou not justly punished? Hence, reptile! begone before I forget that thou art of my blood!" Ludovic raised his sabre, and the dastard by Karl fled, without daring to give utterance to the imprecation which hung on his colourless lips.

Trampling under foot the costly jewels which lay strewed around, Theresa rushed forward and embraced her father, exclaiming, 'Is not this a dream? Are you indeed restored to me? Can this be real?'

'Forgive me child,' exclaimed Ludovic, 'the pain I have been obliged to give your gentle heart. My effort to make that wretch resign his claim to your hand has been successful. Grudge not, that part of our story has been appropriated to the holy church—not to purchase forgiveness of sins I mentioned, and of which, thank Heaven, I am guiltless, but to be the blessed means of saving you from a miserable fate.—Kneel down, my children—aye, support her, Arnholt—lay her innocent head on your bosom, and receive the fervent benediction of an old hussar."

To Mothers.—The difficulty which every mother experiences in administering medicine to infants, is entirely obviated by Dr. Clickener's preparation, called the Sugar Coated Vegetable Purgative Pill. The pill is encrusted with fine white sugar, so that it resembles and tastes like a sugar plum, which no child ever yet refused to swallow. For worms this is an assured remedy, and it has been used with excellent effect in teething. The matron of the Farm School writes to Dr. Clickener that she has used for some time, his Sugar-coated Pill in both these complaints, and always with entire success.

Sold by Wm Jackson, corner of Wood and Liberty streets, who is general Agent for Dr Clickener's Pills in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

☞ Beware of an imitation article called "Improved Sugar-Coated Pills," purporting to be Patented, as both the pills and pretended patent are forgeries, got up by a miserable quack, in New York, who, for the last four or five years, has made his living by counterfeiting popular medicines. oct15.

Phœnix Safes and Vaults.

THE undersigned invite attention to the following certificate:

CERTIFICATE.

The undersigned having been requested by Messrs Constable & Strickler, to be present and superintend the testing of one of their recently invented Fire and Burglar proof safes; and deeming the subject one of no little importance, have carefully attended to every part of the operation, from the commencement of the progress of a heat, to which one of said chests was subjected. The chest was supported at each corner, at an elevation of 10 to 12 inches from the ground, a fire of Bituminous coal and pine wood under and around said chest, actively burning 54 consecutive hours. The fuel consumed was about 80 bushels of coal and one cord of wood; the heat as the while became intense, and in the opinion of the undersigned much greater than a safe is likely to sustain in any ordinary house conflagration.

On the removal of the fire at the expiration of the above time, and, greatly to the astonishment of the undersigned and the large number of citizens present, a Brick Book was in Sunday Book entire, within the safe, a piece of Letter Press Wood and the cotton bring in a piece of Letter Press Wood, were found warm indeed, but not in the slightest degree charred or injured, some manuscript on the Book as legible as before the test. The undersigned are in unison to the conclusion that it is a proof that it is practicable, and can recommend it to enterprising manufacturers, whose efforts for some months past in procuring this desideratum have proved so entirely successful, deserve the public confidence and patronage.

JOHN ANDERSON,
L. R. LIVINGSTON,
JOSIAH KING,
WARRICK MARTIN,
EDWARD HEAZELTON,
JAMES PARK, Jr.

In the character of the above named gentlemen the public have a sufficient guarantee of the truth of the statements made in our Phœnix Safes, and we therefore feel the utmost confidence in recommending them as a reliable protection against fire, under any ordinary circumstance. We would assure those interested, that there is no need about these Safes, but what is necessarily connected with the shelves and drawers.

We make Vault Doors in the same manner and upon the same plan. One of these can be seen at Reese C. Townsend & Co's new building.

For the more manufacture of our Vaults, they can be seen at the following places: Lyon, Shoels & Co., Church & Carothers, Wm Larimer, King & Holmes, J. D. Davis, P. M'Cormick, and W. Martin.
