BY LAST NIGHT'S MAIL.

From our Washington Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, Dec 16, 1845,
Tuesday Evening.

This has been a day of unusually and exciting interest in both branches of Congress.

In the House of Representatives the resolutions from the Committee on Territories, for the admission of Texas into the Union, as an independent state, were called up at an early moment. They have been made the order of the day for yesterday, but not reached, at that time. On their being announced and read, a motion was made by Mr Herrick, to lay them on the table. Mr McConnell called for the previous question, and would not withdraw it. The motion to lay on the table was then put, and decided in the negative, Yeas, 52, Nays, 142. The question then occuring—"shall the joint resolutions be engrossed and read a third time, this day," Mr McConnell called the previous question; tellers were appointed, and the call sustained. Yeas, 108, Nays, 90. The question was then put, and the resolutions ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, by a vote of 141 to 57.

The resolutions being engrossed, and on consideration for final passage, Mr Rockwell introduced a motion to recommit, which he advocated at some length; after which, and after a variety of motions and divisions, and calls to order, they were put upon the final passage and adopted, by a vote of 141 to 56, and transmitted to the Senate.

In the Senate, the greater portion of the day, was spent in the discussion of the Resolutions, preparatory for war, (referred in my letter of last evening,) in which Messrs. Niles, Webster, Sevier, Crittenden, Berrien, Allen, Clayton and Breese took part. The debate, as on yesterday was highly interesting, from the character of the subject, and the eloquent patriotic and impressive manner in which it was treated by most of the speakers. Some of the speeches have seldom been surpassed in ability by any delivered, even in that able body—and the audiences, both on the floor, and in the gallery, were often chained in silent admiration of the magnitude of the theme, and the profoundness of the argument it elicited. The resolutions were adopted UNANIMOUSLY.

Mr Allen then announced that he would on to-morrow introduce a resolution, instructing the President to cause notice to be given to the British Government, that was wish to discontinue the arrangement for a "joint occupancy," of the Oregon Territory.

The resolutions from the House, for the admission of Texas into the Union, was separate and independent state, were then taken up, and after a brief discuss on, referred to the committee on the Judiciary.

Mr Haywood gave notice that he would, on to-morrow, "if was should not by that time be declared," move to complete the election of the Standing Committees.

The importance of the action by the Senate, on yesterday, and to-day, is enhanced by the evidence it gives to this world, and especially to the spies and agents of the British Government, who are now among us, watching every movement, and every indication of popular opinion, that we are a union people, when questions of national right are concerned. It shows too, that the croaking of the Intelligencer, and other prints of that stamp, some of whom are strongly suspected of being in pay of foreign lords and lordings—are not evidence that we are torn to pieces by internal divisions and bickerings about offices. The new light thrown upon the Oregon boundary question, by the President's Message, and the correspondence with the British Minister, has opened the understanding of many who were skeptical on the subjects of our rights—and if any are yet, at heart, opposed to the admistration, on that measure, they are so few that they will hardly have the hardihood to exhibit their feelings to the public Yours, &c. DUQUESNE.

WASHINGTON, Dec 16, 1845.

MR EDITOR—The Bill for the admission of the State of Texas into the Union, passed the House this afternoon by a vote of 141 to 56. The Senate will doubtless go on without delay in the action of the other branch, and I we will see if the Representatives of this new member of our great confederacy, participating in the debates of Congress before the opening of spring. What a sublime moral spectable is presented by this peaceful, bloodless addition to our Territory! In what beautiful contrast to the sang inary wars and monstrous atrocities that has ever mar ed the road of England in extending her Empire. What a splendid commentary it offers in favor of the benign rule—mercy, justice and high purposes of Republican Government? We, indeed, may the supporters of the cotton monarchies of Europe tremble at the advance of their subjects in intelligence, when they have such a lofty example of the inherent power of the people, for self government set before them, as they have by the practical working of our political system. The time, I believe, is rapidly approaching, when the European monarchies will unite to arrest the rapid spread of the feelings and hopes that our success is encouraging throughout their dominions. And yet, with all this burning jealousy towards our government, with feelings of the deepest hostility towards every thing that smacks at Republicanism; many of our fo reing, and patriotic whig leaders, would cheerfully submit to the adjustment of the relative claims of England and our own country, to the Oregon Territory, to a tribunal formed of crowned heads. Away with such arbitration as this would be. It would be all on one side, and our Government has acted wisely, in rejecting the proposition. But the admission of the State of Texas by the House, has set me wandering.

The Senate was engaged for four hours to day, in debating the resolutions called up yesterday by Gen. Cass. Messrs Niles, Crittenden, Berrin, Mangum, Webster, Breese and others took part in the discussion. Mr Crittenden led off on the whig side of the House, and seemed especially desirous of inflicting a petty annoyance upon the author of the resolutions, by interrogating him as to the meaning of his remarks yesterday—whether he believed war to be inevitable, &c. The Senator from Michigan, with becoming dignity, told the Kentucky Lawyer, that he was not in the habit of using words without meaning—that he believed if England adhered to her uniform policy, war would be the result, and that ere long. There has been considerable warmth manifested through the debate, and strange to say, it closed by the unanimous adoption of the resolutions.

Will there be war, is the all absorbing question here? That war is not as remote, as many have heretofore imagined, is becoming quite evident. The vast armaments fitting out at every naval station in England, are certainly not indicative of peaceful purposes.—That she will fight before she will abandon her claim to Oregon, I feel well assured. That our government will neither recede, nor compromise, is absolutely settled, I think by the state of public opinion, which is peremptory for the whole Territory. Under these circumstances, is not war at least probable? The general impression here, is that it is more than probable. Altho, at first blush the Message might authorize inferences favorable to the preservation of peace. Yet, I am satisfied, that it was not the intention of the Executive to make any such impression. Indeed I feel confident that Mr Polk and his Cabinet, are not without apprehensions of a rupture. There is a general anxiety in Congress to be ready for the exigency, should it arise, and but a short time will elapse before preparations for the worst will commence.

The foreign ministers attended the debate on the resolutions of Gen Cass, and listened attentively to the remarks they gave rise to.

The modification of the Tariff, appears to have been lost sight of in the more momentous question of war. OREGON.

A Woman Burnt to Death.—A Mrs Seibold who lived in the rear of Adam Fosse's on Main street, in the 1st Ward, was discovered about 5 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, expiring from her clothes taking fire. She was subject to fits; but it is not certain how, or in what way, her clothes caught, as she had been alone for some time. She was found some eight or ten feet from the fire place. Her dress was made of calico. She was about 60 years old. She has left a son and daughter to mourn her sudden and unexpected loss.
