can government is the laggressor in the Mexican war. This, we must say we, regard as a very wise determination on his part, but so far as we are concerned we regretit exceedingly. The "turnings and twistings" of the inflated Deacon, during the present week, have been to us a source of great anusement. The vanity and conceit of the fellows at work in one large one, so that a confliction of a population of blood—the consequence of his own imbedility in allowing himself and his own imbedility in the fellow led him into a scrape, and his awkward stant blast can be kept up through the main pipe. efforts to extricate himself were as ludicrous as

Taylor is encamped. He should, moreover, state to his fellow-citizens that the American government is in the right, and that Mexico is the aggressor. All this he should do as a sheer act of justice to his own country, the fair fame of which his statements were calculated to sully and cover with dishonor.

War of Mexico against the United States. The President of Mexico has issued a long Proc lamation, addressed to the Mexican nation, dated "National Palace of México, April 23, 1846."-Paredes complains about the annexation of Texas, and the invasion of Territory which Mexico claims as her own. In reference to the war he says: contrages so multiplied, and so hard, could not any longer be tolerated, and I have given or shot at reveille, and the way 4, 6, 9 and 12 (I think) not any longer be tolerated, and I have given orders to the general-in-chief of the division on our frontier of the north, that he wage hostilities." (in other words, attack) "against the army which is waging them against us; that he give war for an answer to the enemy who is making war upon us; and that, invoking the God of battles, to vindicate the valor of our soldiers, the unquestionable right. It would have warmed the wax in your ear to after making other assertions, he adds: "From this works, and knocked cannon; carriage, embrasure day begins our defensive war, and every point of our territory invaded or attacked shall be valiantly de-washington when he first came to Corpus Christi,
