The following verses are from the pen of the THE LITTLE STEP-SON. BY MRS. AMELIA B. WELRY. I have a little step-son, the loveliest thing alive, A noble, sturdy boy is he, and yet he's only five; His smooth cheek hath a bloomy glow, his eyes are black as jet,
And his lips are like two rose buds, all tremulous ode some fifty miles to volunteer his services in lesence of the oppressed. He entered the court. being unknown to all persons save the bench and he bar, while the indictment was being read by Sarah Houston, a thin featured, pale little girl, with very large blue eyes, pleaded guilty to stealing several dresses from a Mrs. Davis. Her bosom heaved somewhat convulsively, as she faintly articulated an affirmative to the usual answer of the clerk, "Are you guilty or not guilty?" A sudden flush came over her white cheeks, and those large eyes grew still more lustrous, until at last the ains were unsealed, a tear started all unbidden relashes-another followed, and instantly anothor, 'till bending 'neath the weight of these repen-
