Resolved, That having seen the first number of a new paper called the Pittsburgh Price-Current, and designed to be devoted to commercial and manufacturing interests, we take pleasure in recommending it to the liberal support of our merchants and business men. Speakers of the House. We publish a list of the Speakers of the National House of Representatives who have been chosen from time to time since the organization of present juncture, as a contest is going on which father. omises to rival the session of 1849, when Howell Cobb was only elected after sixty-three ineffectual attempts. It will be observed that Pennsylvania has not had the honor of having a Speaker of the House for sixty years, notwithstanding her delegation numbers, and has for a the members. During that time Kentucky, with scarcely one-third her representation, has had the honor for seventeen years; Virginia for thirteen, North Carolina for six; and Tennessee for six years. This is manifestly unfair. Nor can it be urged in justification that the Keystone Stone has not sent to Congress the proper timber out of which to manufacture a Speaker. Pennsylvania has had in her delegation some of the ablest men who have figured in the halls of legislation; she has been represented by John Sar geant, Wm. Wilkins, by Charles J. Ingersoll and Richard Biddle-men who stood in the very front rank of their respective parties. Another noticeable thing in the list of Speakers is the fact that in the last fifty-five years Democrats have filled the office forty-five, and the Opposition but ten years : and while the Democratic candidate always ran as a Democrat the Opposition were known as Federalists, National Republicans and Whigs. If there is one elected by the opponents of Democracy during the present session, he will have vet another alias, and will more than probable be known as an "American." The English House of Commons may sit without a Speaker, but our House must elect one, as he is expressly mentioned in the Constitution. and it is held that no business can be done until he is chosen. There is no provision as to how he shall be chosen, and it is therefore possible that should there be no choice in three or four days, a resolution may be adopted making a plurality sufficient to elect. Such a resolution was passed in 1849, and Howell Cobb, of Geergia, was chosen by less than a majority under it.

A PLATFORM. The following resolution was introduced in the of Representatives of Congress, by the Hon. J. Glancy Jones, of Berks county, in our State. We have never read a resolution that embodied form for the Democratic party in this State, and | ing. 7: 1827 to 1829. throughout the Union. Upon that platform our party must enter the presidential contest of 1856. and true doctrine, and is in fact the substance of democracy. It was fitting that it should come from a Democratic son of old Berks county, who is now one of the soundest and ablest men of our State. It was unanimously adopted by K. the caucus, and we commend it to the perusal 1835. and study of every Democrat. Here it is: Resolved, That the Democratic members the House of Representatives, though in a temporary minority in this body, deem this a fit oc-casion to tender to their fellow-citizens of the whole Union their heartfelt congratulations on the triumph in the recent elections in several of southern States, of the principles of the Kansarligious liberty which have been so violently asiled by a secret political order known as the Know Nothing party; and though in a minority organization and cominue our efforts in the maintenance and defende of those principles and the constitutional rights of every section and very class of citizens against their opponents of every description, whether the so-called Repubns, Know Nothings or Fusionists; and to this
