PITTSBURGH POST.

MONDAY MORNING..... FEB. 9, 1857.

Extra copies of the Post can be had at the counter, put up in strong wrappers, ready for mailing, at the rate of $3 per hundred. We had at the Merchants' Exchange, Fourth street, this morning, a full supply of five cents per copy, or fifty cents per dozen.

THREE MILL TAX.—We published on our first page yesterday, a communication which we found in the Gazette of some days ago over the signature of "A Farmer," denouncing the passage of the repeal of the Three Mill Tax on the Central Railroad. We also presented the views of the Gazette in response to the communication, the editor of which paper, it will be seen, attributes the passage of the repeal to the influence of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Banks Speaker!

The long agony is over! After two months' sitting, and one hundred and twenty-four ballotings, N. P. Banks, of Massachusetts, was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives on the 133d ballot. He was formerly a Democrat, but joined the Know Nothings, and subsequently threw himself a Black Republican. He is a man of considerable parliamentary training, having presided two sessions over the Massachusetts House of Representatives, one of the most factious and turbulent of deliberative bodies. As a Speaker he will no doubt make a good Speaker of the House. The fault of this long disorganization rests not at the door of the opposition. They have two-thirds of the members, yet, in a fortuitous spirit, they delayed the organization until more than twenty thousand dollars have been squandered on the pay of members alone.

THE NEWS

A beautiful poem, appropriate to the present time, will be found on the fourth page.

The Jacksonville (Florida) Republican publishes notions among late arrivals of members of first place, the names of ex-Gov. Woodbridge, of Michigan, Bishop Potter, of Pa., and Hon. John A. Dix, of New York.

From the annual message of Mayor Conrad, of Philadelphia, we learn that the receipts of the city treasury made in the Quaker City during the year ending the above, 21,830 were from the sale of slaves, principally negroes and whites from the Southern States, and from Germany, &c., &c.

The small pox is prevailing in Philadelphia to a considerable extent, causing a great deal of alarm. On Thursday the city councils passed an ordinance appointing a vaccine physician for each ward, who is to receive 25 cents for every successful vaccination.

The Baltimore Patriot says:—The Mayor of that city, a gentleman residing in the western part of the city, a few days since, presented his wife with a handsome furnished lord 4 little responsible gentlemen, all of the male sex. We learn that both mother and children are doing well. The happy father is said, though proud of these little pledges of affection, that in these hard times such a large family circle is far from desirable, and intends to confine his next deal more than he has formerly done.

Under the caption of "Eloquent Extraordinary," the New York paper publishes the following:—Yesterday afternoon an Irish woman came to the Coroner's office with what appeared to be the body of a child dead. She laid the bundle down upon the table and was proceeding to give her evidence in regard to the death of the infant when, during the swaddling clothes began to move in a singular manner, which was immediately followed by loud screams from the little stranger. Of course the mother was great in her wrath, to think that her darling was not dead. She left the office with a happy face, and seemingly highly gratified at the result of the visit.

SLAVERY AND ITS REMEDY.

The Rev. Wm. M'Michael, a Presbyterian clergyman of Clarion county, Pa., has recently written a book bearing the above title, which is published and for sale by Parish & Co., No. 84 Market street, in this city. The subject is one of great and constantly increasing interest, and the book is well worth reading. The writer contends that slavery is not sinful per se, but only wrong that should be repudiated. But the author draws a distinction between slavery and slaveholding. By this he means that while he defends slavery as a system or institution, owning slaves, he may not be wrong for those who have come to the slave property to hold until it is safe for their slaves until a safe and effectual method of emancipation can be devised that will give justice to all parties concerned. To avoid the present agitation may entail at this, yet how unspeakably greater will take to restore it. For immediate emancipation is not contended for by the great mass of those who call themselves Republicans. If a gradual remedy, then, is generally recommended, it can hardly be said that the right of the master to hold his slaves in the meantime should be made effectual. The author's position is stated by the writer, for which he is severely censured by a contemporary. Yet the latter journal admits that any remedy for slavery must be a work of time. The author speaks of the people of the South as brethren entitled to our warmest sympathy, respect and kindness, as members of a common country and great family of nations, and he deprecates and condemns that constant agitation that at length can have no other effect than to stir up sectional strife, and that must inevitably end in disunion and civil war if not counteracted by a just and wholesome public sentiment in the northern states. He deems the Union, and the peace and prosperity of twenty three millions of white people in this country of much more value than the immediate emancipation of the two millions of colored people who are unprepared for freedom, and would have no means of support and no homes or abiding places if suddenly turned loose upon the country.

The writer urges, too, that the requirements of the constitution and existing laws should be complied with in good faith by the people of the north, and that an effort to nullify a law by mob and force must lead to innumerable evil results. He believes that the fugitive slave law should be enforced, and that agitation on the Kansas-Nebraska question is now useless, and wholly unnecessary.

The writer's remedy for slavery is colonization. He proposes that the state and national governments provide the means to carry on a systematic transportation of negroes for a number of years in such numbers as will in the end regenerate Africa, and withdraw from America a race that can never live on equal terms with the white race. We have no hope that colonization alone will ever abolish slavery, but believe it may do much good to benighted Africa.

On the whole, Mr. M'Michael's book is well worthy of a perusal, and sheds new light upon some of the vexed questions connected with his subject.

We cannot see the inconsistencies that a neighbor endeavors to point out, and would recommend perusal of the book to readers generally.

We could not agree in all respects with the writer's views; but we can have respect for that "middle ground" which he assumes. He repudiates extremes. Plato said that truth generally lies between the two extremes of opinion, and about equally distant from either.

Big Business on the Penna. Railroad.

We are authorized to state that the shipments eastward, over the Pennsylvania Railroad, will be limited to live stock for a few days, to allow the delivery of freight now awaiting transportation over the Columbia road, delayed in consequence of the snow and deficiency of motive power on the latter. We may state as an evidence of the immense business doing on this great through route, that there are, at the present moment, one thousand loaded cars at Columbia, which are prevented from getting into Philadelphia by the crowd of freight now on the road, in the immediate vicinity of the city. At one siding, we are informed, a string of cars two miles long are awaiting their turn to go forward.

STEAM ENGINE and PUMP PACKING AND LINING.—Tuck's Patent Elastic Packing and Lining, for all parts of Steam Engines and Pumps, where soft packing is used.

Engineers and all others who have used this Packing, acknowledge its superiority over all other kinds known. Its advantages—great durability, saving of tallow, reduction of friction, consequently saving of power—a better vacuum is maintained on long voyages of vessels than by any other material, thereby economizing fuel.

It does not require to be taken out of the stuffing-box, but, being packed in a metallic case, filled inside the stuffing box for packing is gradually consumed, thus saving time and material.

It is made in lengths of twelve feet, ¾ to 2 inches diameter, and also in sheets of any size and thickness.

Samples of the Packing and models of the cones can be seen, and orders will be received, at
