JAMES BUCHANAN DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET. GEORGE SCOTT, of Columbia Co.

FOR PRESIDENT:

JACOB FRY, Jr., MONTGOMERY Co. TIMOTHY IVES, POTER COUNTY NAPOLEON EUGENE LOUIS JOHN

JOSEPH. There it is. That is the name of a new Fre baby. He is said to be healthy and "all right."

He is called Napoleon after his great uncle who was a great man; Eugene for his mother Eugenie; Louis for his daddy; John for the Pope, his godfather; and Joseph for Josephine of Sweden, his godmother. Such is the boy, and such his name. He was born on Sunday, March 16th, and all France rejoiced, and all England fired guns and shouted. His father was once a rowdy in New York, a police officer in London, and the author of a book on gunnery. His mother was a descendant of a dilapidated branch of Spanish nobility. But she was pretty, went to Paris to "seek her fortune," and caught an emperor. We like to see people get up in the world in a republican way. But French imperialisms just now is the result of bayonets not ballots, of murder not merit. And this unconscious infant, about whose birth so much ado is made, i born to no common, and probably no happy fate. The career of dynasties is brief in France Exile, banishment, assassination and the guillotine sweep them away in rapid succession. The Napoleonic cannot escape the common fate. The magic of one great name cannot last over three generations. The future of this new prince can be read in the past history of France. The French people can endure despotism for a time: hut they love liberty and are very brave. Such dure many years. Then woe to this baby. The French have already colonized a large portion of northern Africa, called Algerica. All the turbulent spirits of France are caught up and sent to the colonies as soldiers or farmers or mechanics. It is a sort of place of banishment for those troublesome at home, and such material is abundant in France. A nation is thus growing up on the northern coast of Africa that will soon defy the parent, and rear the banner of and he will probably be the next President. freedom. The next French revolution may begin

The young prince is styled king of Algiers. It is a singular fact that for 200 years not a hin. The son of Louis Phillips was killed by a fall from his carriage. The casualities to which French heirs apparent have been so often subject have frequently changed the dynasty; and Orleans, Bourbon. Capet or Bonaparte went yup or down, as disease, assassination, revolution or foreign swords destroyed an heir or dethroned a ruler. The London Times, referring to the birth of an heir to the French Emperor, says: "But, while hoping for the child that has just en tered into this world of troubles and vicissitu less checkered and more auspicious fate than has waited upon his predecessors born in the purple, we cannot forget the teachings of history, particularly of the history of France, nor be blind to the many the changes which interpose themselves between bradle and the throne of the baby emperor. "Happy indeed will be the destiny of Louis Napoleon if he succeeds not only in founding his power upon a secure basis, but in transmitting it unimpaired to a son who may inherit the talents of his father, while free from the difficulties and danger tich beset his early path and raised him only afte long suffering and severe discipline to a position in which he has upheld the material interests of France with one hand, and nobly asserted her dignity and pre-eminence among the nations of Europe with the

WHAT THEY SAY. To read the silly articles in the "Republican presses is a task we are compelled to perform; and if we could believe them we should be forced to the conclusion that the Democracy of this country was the most rascally thing on earth. We are getting to be a that all the Democracy want to extend the area of slavery. That lie has been told so long that it has got threadbare, and an addition is made to it now by catching at an expression of Senator Douglas. The charge now is that the Democracy intend to extend slavery by force, and " subdue " all the northern States to the slave power. If there is any body fool enough to believe that let

The next charge is that the Democracy is favor of changing our government to a monarchy!!! And it is asserted that a member of the present cabinet at Washington has declared for a monarchy!!! We can hardly conceive a greater insult to the common sense of the people of the country that surrounds Pittsburgh. Let of this country than the circulation of such absurd me say to one and all, the world knows comparaand miserable falsehoods. The very utterance tively little of the real merits of Pittsburgh: of them pre-supposes a degree of ignorance and stupidity on the part of readers that has no par allel in any other country. Yet with such balderdash do the abolition presses teem. Again, they say occasionally that the Democratic party wants to get up a war!! A war
