WASHINGTON FORESAW WHAT WE

NOW SEE. The scenes now enacting at New York and Philadelphia admonish all good citizens that the crisis of our Union has come. There is now in session at New York a Convention consisting of of whom is from a Northern State. The fifteen large Southern States are not represented by a nicions of Washington are not yet repudiated by single delegate there. And that Convention is the great mass of the people; and they will yet assembled to put in nomination candidates for President and Vice-President of the whole United | lent clamor of demagogues. States. To-day there assembles in Philadelphia another Convention having the same purpose in view. It will be composed, like the one at New York, entirely of delegates from the sixteen Northern States. Not one representative will be there from any of the fifteen Southern States. True, a man will be there from Maryland repre senting himself alone; and two may be reported from St. Louis. But both these Conventious represent Northern and sectional parties only and they propose to combine upon a single candidate who will represent their common senti ment. That common sentiment and bond of union is hostility to the South, and to the only party that is national in its principles and purposes, and that resolves to stand by the Union and the Constitution forever. Washington did not long ago, in the closing days of his life, apprehend and warn his countrymen against the very condition of our puplic and political affairs that we now behold in these New York and Philadelphia Conventions. Two brief extracts from his Farewell Address will show that the Democratic party is now the only party in existence that gives heed to his parting admonitions. He first speaks of the vast value of the Union, and then of those sectional parties whose success cannot fail to destroy it, and with it our dearest hopes and our continued prosperity a- n

"The unity of government which constitutes one people, is also now dear to you. It is justly so for it is the main pillar in the edifice of your real in dependence—the support of your tranquility at home vone peace abroad; of your safety, of your propenty, of that very liberty which you so highly pro-But, as it is easy to forsee that, from different quar-ters, much pains will be taken, many artifices conployed, to weaken in your minds the conviction this truth; as this is the point in your political fort ress against which the batteries of internal and exter nal enemies will be most contantly and actively (though often covertly and insidiously,) directed, it a of infinite moment that you should properly estimate the immense value of your national Union to your collective and individual happiness; that you should thereby acquired habitand and impurable attachment. rish a cordial, habitual, and immovable attachmen to it; accustoming yourselves to speak of it as the palladium of your safety and prosperity, watching tenancing whatever may suggest even a suspice that it can, in any event, be abandoned; and 1.

MONANTLY FROWNING UPON EVERY TOGETHER ITS VARIOUS PARTS." And, then, speaking of sectional parties, such as are now embodied and represented at New York and Philadelphia, says: "In contemplating the causes which may distur our Union, it occurs as a matter of serious concern that any ground should have been furnished for characterizing parties by geographical discriminations Northern and Southern—Atlantic and Western whence designing men may endeavor to excite a belie that there is a real difference of local interests and riews. One of the expedients of party to acquire influence within the particular districts is to misrep resent the opinions and aims of other districts. You cannot shield yourselves too much against the jeal onsies and heartburnings which spring from these misrepresentations: they tend to render alien to each other those who ought to be bound together by fra-

Could any one at this day more clearly angraphically describe the scenes enacting at Phildelphia and New York than Washington thu did more than sixty years ago ! Is it not true in our day that " designing men endeavor to ex cite a belief that there is a real difference of local interests" between different sections of the country? Do they not constantly represent the called-as constantly seeking to usurp the entire control of the Federal government for the purpose of extending slavery? And do they not endeavor to represent the Democratic party a aiming to aid them in this design? Are these chagesr true? Not one of them. Within the last fifty years the Democratic party has had the control of the Federal government five-sixths of the time; and during all that time no one foot of territory within our limits, that tory of the country proves this. On the other hand several States that fifty years ago were slave States have become free States; and terri tories large enough for eight or ten more States that sixty years ago were under the law of slavery have now become free States and Terri tories. The whole North western Territory was have now double the white and represented pop- more glorious than in 1852. ulation of the Southern States; and the free States have a majority of fifty-six members in the lower House of Congress, and of two in the Senate. Two-thirds of all the office-holders now, from the highest to the lowest grades, are from the free States. Thus have the free States an I Territories been gaining on the slave States, until the numerical strength, the political power and area of territory of the north has acquired a vast preponderance in the confederacy. And this has happened under an almost continuous democratic administration of the government. How, then, can it be said, or for one moment believed, that the South-the "slave power," as it is called has usurped the control of the party lends itself to the work of extending and "designing men" continue to re-echo the un-elaborate calcula ions to show that the Union s "worth only forty cents per head to the people of the north," that these dangerous sectional parties have been drawn together, and are now deliberating in their Conventions at Philadelphia and New York how best to promote their sectional. desperate and ruinous designs. Washington says, in the extracts above, that all true patriots try from the rest." What else are the leaders of of each, to wit: those parties now represented at New York and Philadelphia attempting . Their speeches teem with bitter and malignant hostility and insult to the whole Southern portion of the confederacy. Their aim is to elect a Northern abolition. ist President by Northern votes exclusively. Should such an attempt by any possibility succced, a dissolution of the Union would be the inevitable result. The American people can now understand why he New York Tribune and other kindred sheets have for the last two years been industriously laboring to prove that the Union was of no value ris Town, to the people of the north; and carnestly endeavoring, in the words of Washington, "to enfeeble the ties which now link together the various parts of our country." The whole purpose is now laid bare. The Philadelphia and New York conventions are expected to combine and consolidate that sectional party that is to Courth test the strength of our Union, and the stability office, Elizabethtown. our republican institutions. The words of Washington have proved prophetic. The evil be Georgetow apprehended has come upon us at length; has Macon ssumed a definite shape, giant proportions, and reckless and relentless malignity. This is indeed | rene crisis in our country's history that cannot fail to arouse the energies of every patriot throughout the land. It cannot be that such reckless and fice-liouside ruinous designs will be allowed to prosper. The intelligence, the justice, the patriotism of the American people will avert the stupendous evil. one hundred and twenty-two delegates, every one and bring the counsels of the New York and Philadelphia conventions to naught.
