THE KANSAS PACIFICATION BILL. The New York Journal of Commerce, a high toned neutral paper, thus discourses on this great THE NEW KANSAS BILL which has passed the Senate of the United States, and been sent to the House of Representatives for concurrence is eminently wise and just, inasmuch as it repeals so much of the legislation of the Territorial legislature as sought to impair the rights of bona fide residents on the vote for Delegates to form a Constitution, or to apply unjust tests in the performance of civil duties. It also guards sgainst a repetition of such legislation, by declaring that it shall not hereafter be exercised. The bill also prevents the incursion of Border Ruffigns at the moment of any election, by requiring a residence of three months preparatory to any vote, and a complete registry of legal voters. The bill goes a step further than this, and a step been the policy of the new States in the West to encourage emigration, on the part of foreigners, by allowing them to vote after six months or a years residence, whether citizens or not ; such a man. and the power has long been exercised under organic provisions of their State Constitutions. to thin the ranks of this species of population on the seaboard; where it would be hurtful, and to turn the new emigrant into a useful cultivator of the soil. Had the bill in question conformed to this policy, a few foreigners might have been induced, before their right of citizenship had become complete, to aid in subduing the wilderness-for such Kansas is and will long continue which the bill makes in this respect in the policy it requires a two-thirds vote. which has prevailed at the West, is doubtless recommended by the certainty that in no other form could it obtain the votes of the American party in either branch of the legislature. Under the rircumstances, it was therefore wise and judicious. As the bill stands, all questions concerning the admission of Kansas as a State, preliminary and other, are to be decided in the Territory, by citizens of the United States who are sixtual residents of the locality, known as As it passed the Senate of the United States, July such by a registry, and allowed to vote without any unjust or improper restrictions. We have always looked upon it, therefore, as cortain that Kansas would be free. Missouri itself, which possesses only 87,000 slaves, was an offshot from slavery in the wrong direction. It would be greatly to her advantage to abolish slavery;—for her lands would then rise high in value, and her population be greatly augmented.
