Trial of James E. Kelly for the Murder of Henry Weissman.

Court of Oyer and Terminer.

Before Hon. W. B. McClure, Presiding Judge, and Gabriel Adams and John E. Parke, Associates.

THIRD DAY.

TUESDAY, January 14, 1868.

Mourning Session.—Court met at nine o'clock, and the testimony for the prosecution was proceeded with.

The first witness called was Thomas Wandsbille, who testified: that he owned the house where the murder was committed; I was at it was done; it happened. The girl came to my window in great distress, in her night clothes, about eleven or twelve o'clock that night; did not know what all she said; my wife told me to get up; heard there who wanted to kill the old man; don't know how dark it was; can't see very well; the girl said there were rogues in the house. When she got to the house, she called to her father, but got no answer; she went around to the back of the house, came back and said her father was in, she called for him to open the door, which he did after some time; he caught hold of my arm, and I discovered that he had his coat on, and was all bloody; he was then washed, and "did right away," and we put him to bed. I then went home; the old man died two or three hours afterwards. There was blood in the entry. [Here the plan was shown to witness, and he pointed out the spot where the blood was.] The old man appeared to be seventy years of age; the girl, I think, was of good character.

On his cross-examination, the witness stated that he would not have given twenty-five dollars for everything in the house. Did not know anything about the girl's situation; did not know that she ever went to the doctor's for medicine. The girl showed much astonishment for her father.

Mayor Weaver was sworn, and testified that he had the parties arrested. When Kelly was in the watch house, he sent me word that he wished to come a statement concerning the murder; what I told the statement it was read to him and he signed it. [The statement of the prisoner taken by the Mayor was offered in evidence by the District Attorney.

Cross-examined—Kelly appeared to be perfectly sober when he made the statement. He is a glass-blower, and had been at work that morning. [Witness was shown a piece of Kelly's shirt-bosom.] This is the description of Kelly's shirt: I took it off the right arm of the prisoner; was told was his arm bleeding. We stripped off the prisoners to see if they were bruised.

Corporal Alexander was called, examined the cuff, and said it was taken off Kelly's right wrist.

Daniel O'Neil was in the Mayor's office when the prisoner was brought in; saw the right wrist was stained; told him there was blood on it; he said not; saw it afterwards in possession of the Mayor; I read the statement to Kelly which was taken by the Mayor; he said it was true. He reiterated the striking of the old man, and said it was a good chunk of a stick; said he picked the stick up in the house. Was foreman of the jury, and took the evidence of the Coroner together. Miss Weissman was before the jury; she made a statement, which was translated by Dr. Gross. I took it down as Dr. Gross translated it.

Officer Knox testified that he was at the old house; went out to look for the stick; did not find it; followed the track to the run, then to the pike and back; the run was shallow; three tracks led from the house.

Andrew Moon hunted for the stick; followed the tracks to the run, then to the pike and back. Found the iron bar lying in the cellar, between two stools.

Officer Way helped to arrest the prisoner; took him in the cooking room of a place a mile in the North ward, buried under the straw; this was between three and four o'clock in the afternoon.

Ashbel Richards testified that he heard Kelly and John Richards talking about the murder the next morning. Kelly said, "I am afraid I killed the old man." Richards asked him what he struck him with; he said with a stick; he afterwards said it was with a bar of iron; he described how he had run; he got out of the house through the cellar, jumped the fence and went down to the run. We left the glass house and came up to Penn street; a young man got on the omnibus and told me about a murder having been committed in Wilkinsburg woods. I went back to the glass house by myself; told Kelly it was a true bill; that he had been found in the woods; asked him where the old man was when he struck him; he said in the house.

On his cross-examination the witness said he went to the glass house with Denny and his brother, to see Kelly. And a brother of John Richards. When I left the glass house I told Kelly he had better keep his mouth shut, as I was going out to the scene of the murder. Kelly had been at work; there was conversation between Kelly and Richards that I did not understand. I have told all I heard. The man at Penn street was John Gunsolus; we walked down Penn street a few squares. Then went to the glass house. Went to the glass house first between seven and eight o'clock. Saw my brother at the breakfast table next morning; did not see him the night before. I do not sleep in the same room with my brother. Told Kelly that the Mayor and police had gone out. I apprehended trouble from this difficulty, and that was the reason I went to see Kelly about it.

Here the Commonwealth rested its case, and Mr. Snowden opened the case for the defence in a few brief, but forcible and appropriate remarks. The learned counsel did not contend for the innocence of the prisoner at the bar, but only that he is not guilty of murder in the first degree; that the prisoner did not go to the house for the purpose of committing a felony, but only for a misdemeanor, and that as there was no premeditation, and consequently his crime could be nothing more than murder in the second degree.

Mayor Weaver was then recalled as the first witness for the defence. He testified that the prisoners were stripped and examined at his office, but no wounds or bruises found on any of them.

Dr. H. Gross was next called, and the counsel for the defence proposed to prove by him the character of Wilhelmina Weissman for chastity. Also an animated discussion arose on the admissibility of this evidence, which had not concluded when the Court took a recess until half past two o'clock.

Afternoon Session.—At half past two o'clock the Court again assembled, and after an elaborate argument by the counsel on both sides, the Court decided that the testimony was competent.

Dr. Gross testified that some weeks prior to the death of Henry Weissman, he, in company with his daughter, called upon him, and the girl was treated by him for syphilis; she called subsequently and got another supply of medicine for the same disease. After the death of the old man, he discovered that the girl was in a state of pregnancy.

Dr. Gilmore, Poor-House physician, testified that she came to the Poor House on the 24 of December; that she was then suffering from syphilis, and was also in an advanced state of pregnancy.

Mrs. Fox was sworn, and testified that she knew Kelly; he, in company with some other young men, was at her house in Lawrenceville on the night preceding the murder, about nine o'clock; they were drinking beer; they drank two small glasses.

On the cross-examination she stated that it was small beer—that it could not make any person drunk if they drank nothing else.

Roger Rowe was with Kelly on the night of the murder, when they met Richards and Denny; we saw two loud women going down street; followed them till they went into Garrison Hall. Kelly, Richards and Denny went into a beer hall, promising to come out soon, but did not return.

Jacob Miller corroborated the testimony of Roger Rowe.

James Herriot waited behind Kelly in the glass-house; was at work on the morning when Richards and his brother went there. They remained there fifteen minutes, and went out; did not see them afterwards.

John Miller confirmed the statement of the previous witness.

Mrs. Conner, a sister of the accused, testified that Kelly was not yet twenty-one; he can speak no language except the English. He boarded at home with his mother.

Mrs. Edmonds boarded with Mrs. Kelly; knew James Kelly; never knew him to speak any other than the English language.

H. A. Conner never knew Kelly to speak any foreign language. Am a brother-in-law of the accused.

Mr. Howard then proposed to offer in evidence the statement made by Wilhelmina Weissman before the Coroner's jury.

Mr. Collier objected at first, on the ground that there were flesh and blood witnesses who would prove the correctness or incorrectness of the statement without depending on newspaper files, which were perhaps inaccurate. It was, however, finally agreed by the counsel that the file should be received as evidence.

Here the evidence for the defence closed, and the Commonwealth called Mayor Weaver as a rebutting witness. He testified that when Kelly was brought before him, he had admitted that he could speak a little German.

The argument for the Commonwealth was commenced by A. H. Miller, Esq., in an address to the jury, the drift of which was to show that the crime was murder in the first degree.

The arguments will be concluded, and the case go to the jury this morning.

Pittsburgh Theatre.—This evening the theatre goers of our city are offered a very attractive bill at Miss Kimberly's theatre. Miss Julia Turnbull takes a farewell benefit, and a bill worthy of the occasion is presented. The performance commences with the operatic drama of "Masaniello," in the course of the play a representation of the eruption of Mount Vesuvius will be given. This will be followed by a night dance in which Miss Kimberly and Miss Turnbull will appear, the latter introducing a flower dance from the "Naiad Queen." The drama of the "Dumb Sailor Boy" follows, with Miss Turnbull as Antolne, and the concluding play is the "Trumpeter's Daughter," in which Miss Turnbull will appear as Madeline, with songs and dances. The engagement of this lady is about to close; she is a fine danseuse and ballet performer, and we know an entertainment with such a host of attractions will not fail to draw.

Mayor's Office.—Yesterday morning the Mayor had ten common cases from the watch house. One paid his fine, and the others were sent to the hill.

Appointment.—Mr. George Abrew was on Wednesday last appointed a member of the Board of Licenses, in the District Court. His term will continue for three years from the first of February next.

Mysterious Disappearance.—A young man, named Morris Hollenbaum, who works in a rolling mill in Birmingham, left his home on Tuesday morning, since which time he has not been heard of. He was seen on Tuesday evening at the Waverley House on Diamond street, where he had a difficulty with some person on the side walk, but this has not been considered of any consequence. A morning contemporary tells a mysterious story about a man with a blue flannel shirt, and without a hat, who was seen by the toll-keeper of the Monongahela bridge to cross about eleven o'clock; it is also said that he was seen by some persons at the end of the bridge, that a splash was heard in the water and a man was struggling, and that suspenders were seen on the resting of the bridge next morning. The "Chronicle," of yesterday evening, makes a mysterious effort to connect the circumstance and makes it appear that Hollenbaum has committed suicide or jumped over the railing in a fit of drunken insanity. Whether or not the theory advanced by the newspaper connection we are unable to say; but we ought to say that this "mysterious disappearance" will result as they usually do—by the appearance of the missing man at home, or he may "turn up" somewhere else. We await the result with patience.

Pastor's Baptism.—We were glad to see the familiar countenance of that favorite actor, Henry Kingdon, last evening. He has not appeared for some months, and we were afraid that he had quitted the service of the footlights; but it seems that this was all a mistake. He is very popular here, as Lamb, as the Governor in the charade of performers, he could not well have been seen. He played last evening with his usual good humor, as "Michael Burke, or the Maniac Lover," and Reynolds, the facetious, and the comic Young answered the house with laughter at his Mermaidike Manner, in "Betsy Baker."

This evening a good bill is offered.

A Bull Day.—Yesterday was a very rapid day for stocks of any sort, and our Exchange from one point to another was almost frantic. The Mayor had nothing to do—the aldermen nothing—police officers nothing; everything was blank and desolate, and had it not been for the very questionable saving clause of a murder trial, our local column would be barren indeed this morning. Surely the spirits that preside over local editors and their fortunes must have taken a holiday yesterday, and forgotten in their enjoyments to send anything worth reading to these lower regions.

A Pleasant Evening.—We would advise each of our readers as wish to spend a pleasant and profitable evening, to visit Excelsior Hall, Allegheny city, to witness the exhibition of Harrison's Illuminated Paintings, which are now opened by all who have seen them, unsurpassed by any in the country. They have been exhibited all week to excellent houses. There will be an exhibition on Saturday afternoon, for the benefit of the little folks.

Hear what the Poor say.—A lecture is to be delivered this evening in the basement of St. Paul's Cathedral, for the benefit of the poor. It is under the auspices of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. Subject: "Popular Objections to the Church."

Appointment.—R. P. M'Dowell received his commission yesterday as Notary Public, to reside in Allegheny city.

☞ GRATITUDE.—If gratitude was ever evidenced among any class, it certainly has been with those who have used and tested the extraordinary virtues contained in Dr J. Hostetter's celebrated Stomach Bitters. Scarcely a day passes, we are informed, that the Doctor does not receive from some recent heart stricken and edifications parent, or her brother, or friend, some testimonials of deep and unfeigned gratitude, for his agency in restoring to health and vigor a wife, a son or a daughter. Then, the aged—Dyspepsia, Constipation, loss of appetite and all the usual troublesome ills are speedily corrected by the use of these Bitters as per directions on the bottle.

DR. FITCH IN PITTSBURGH.
DURING THE MONTHS OF DECEMBER and JANUARY,
DR. CALVIN M. FITCH,
May be consulted daily at his Rooms,
No. 121 Penn street,
OPPOSITE ST. CLAIR HOTEL, PITTSBURGH, PA.,
For all affections of the THROAT and LUNGS, also, DYSPEPSIA, DISEASES OF THE BLOOD and all of complicated character, with or prolonging to customary Diseases.

If, from any cause, Dr. FITCH should be unable to remain during the period above named, the appointment will be conducted by his associate, Dr. J. W. SYKES.

DR. FITCH would earnestly remind those who may be laboring under incipient or confirmed diseases of the Throat or Lungs, of the importance of giving themselves timely attention, as it is only when taken in reasonable time that these diseases can be treated with any just hope of success, and the delay of a few weeks will in most unfrequently render hopelessly fatal, and otherwise curable cases.

DR. FITCH would also add that as he is accustomed to deal frankly with the patients, none need apply who are afraid to learn their true condition, the actual state of their lungs, and their probable chances of recovery.

CONSULTATIONS PERSONALLY OR BY LETTER FREE.

All communication should be addressed, either to DR. C. M. FITCH or DR. J. W. SYKES, 121 Penn street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Pittsburgh, January 14, 1868.

The markets have not as yet exhibited much improvement, and a more quiet feeling prevades the business community. The anxieties of the year are now fairly over, and as the last portion of the year passes on, our merchants feel that we are on the road to a prosperous spring campaign. The money market, although not flush, is by no means comparatively easy; the Banks are discounting freely for their customers, and the exigencies of trade do not cause much additional paper to be thrown upon the market. The rates outside are about the same as quoted at previous quotations for first-class paper. Exchange on New York was made to-day at par cash, premium on uncancelled city paper, and 50@75c premium on suspended paper, and 2½@3 discount Baltimore is rated at par, and Cincinnati and Louisville ¼ per cent premium.

The following is an approximate of the condition of the Banks of this city, as reported at their last weekly statement for the week ending on Saturday last. It presents a very gratifying exhibit of the healthful condition of those institutions, and of their ability to resume specie payments at the earliest period which may be determined upon for a general resumption by the Banks of Pennsylvania:—

The New York Money market on Tuesday had undergone but little change since the previous day. The Bank statement showed a gain of $1,500,000 in specie, and was in other respects quite favorable. The Stock Exchange was strong, and prices were higher than on the day previous. The Stocks were quite higher, on the sales of the day, though the additional advance was generally stimulated at the close.

The Philadelphia Ledger, of Tuesday, says:—Stock operations were to a fair amount yesterday, closing, however, rather dull. Reading sold early in the day at 48¾, and Penna. R. R. at 56¼, but at the close the former was offered at 48½, and the latter at 56. LONDON, December 30.—The Times city article says the funds opened steadily and showed a tendency to increased firmness until after the regular hours, when a sudden decline took place, which is attributed to operations in connection with the failure of a dealers' stockbroker yesterday. Money was in rather increased request, and there was a full demand for short loans at 2 per cent. A considerable amount of gold has been sent to the Bank. The Daily News says it is discovered that the defalcation above alluded to in the transactions open to an ext
