They also assert that it consists of no trickery of any description, nor of the use of any drug or mer meric or other similar influence whatever. Mr Rarey's theory is that hitherto all treatment of this noble animal-at least in the preliminary stages of breaking, etc .- has proceeded on ideas of his nature altogether erroneous and cruel, and been invariably characterized by unneces sary violence, which has provoked the display of resistance and other kindred qualities on his part, and so the evil has been perpetuated. The principle on which Mr. Rarey goes, on the other hand, is one of extreme kindaess and tenderness toward the animal, the object being to convince him that man is his natural master and friend, and to elicit his confidence and kindly regards affections of the horse," and states that this is the secret of all his success. He is a slight'y made man, about thirty years of age, the son a stock farmer and breeder of horses, who lived in Franklin county, in the State of Ohio, and is himself cugaged in a si ilar occupation at a place called Groveport, about ten miles from Columbus, the capital of that State. From boyhood he is stated to have exhibited an intense fondness for horses and a remarkable aptitude for breaking and training them after the old fashion, until he discovered this more humane system of treatment, which he has since practiced with the greatest success in his native State. The subjects on which he has operated have been in many cases horses reclaimed in a perfectly wild condition from the American prairies, and in the course of his experience has had one arm and both logs broken. Thus the policy and will of one country are subjected to the policy and will of another." Again: "This spirit," he says, "unfortunately is unseperable from our nature, having its root in the strongest passions of the human mind. It exists under different shapes in all governments, more or less stifled, controlled or repressed; but in those of a popular form, it is seen in its greatest weakness, and is truly their worst enemy." Was the Father of his Country a prophet? Did he forsee the aspect of the nation as it exists in our day? It is not necess ary for us to dwell upon the evils of party spirit as it is seen in politics at the present time.
