COALS, ORES MINERALS, &c. Mountains, and in the Southern part of the State to the East of them, Bituminous coal is abundant and easily mined. The bituminous coal region of Pennsylvania is estimated at 21,-000 square miles, or 13,440,000 acres, over which it is scattered. Of the amount mined in each year there are no data, from which even an approximate estimate can be made, but it is en rmous. Twenty years ago, it was esti mated that in Pittsburgh alone the annual consumption of coal was eight millions of bushels, and at the present time this amount is more than doubled. The annual export to all points in the Mississippi Valey, from Pitts. burgh to New Orleans, from the mines of Pennsylvania is almost beyond computation, and forms a great source of indus rial occupamillious of tons, or say ninety millions of her up bushels. Here in Pittsburgh, we are so accustomed to coal, that we do not sufficiently appreciate its importance as an element of wealth. Coal is the food and iron the muscle of our vast manufacturing industry. It furnishes innumerable workmen, with employment and at a distance, whose active industry constitutes

SENATE. Mr. Stuart reported adversely on the bill amending the act of March 3d, 1853, granting bounty lands to ertain soldiers, etc. Mr. Hammond contended that the Lecompton Con stitution embodied the will of the people of Kansar, for the Convention was an assemblage of the people n their highest capacity. He said that he had understood that the Senator from Illinois had declared that it embodied the will of the people. Mr. Douglas replied that that was not exactly bis He thought there were other irregularities, ut he would waive them if he could be assured that the Constitution embodied the will of the people.

Mr. Hammond had understood that Mr. Douglas maintained that all the other irregularities could be cured by Congress, and that was some ground of difforence between them; but the question is, how can the will of the people of Kansas be ascertained? He thought that Mr. Douglas was in error in saying that the Lecompton Constitution was the creature of the Territorial Legislature, and he thought that from hat error had probably arisen all his subsequent or convention could be the creature of the Territorial egi:lature? The Convention was an assemblage of the people in their highest sovereign capacity, about o perform the highest possible act of sovereignty the Territorial Legislature was a mere provisi government—a petty corporation appointed and paid by Congress, without a particle of sovereign power, efore could not interfere with sovereignty although that sovereignty was still incheate. gress could not interfere with a convention, and could ot confer upon the Legislature power to interfere with it, for Congress is not sovereign; it has no power to act outside of the limitations of the Constitu tion; no right to carry into effect the supreme will of any people, if it has not been expressed in that Constitution; therefore Congress is not sovereign or does it hold the sovereignty of Kansas-that overeignty that resides in He then proceeded to argue that the Le compton Constitution was a legal instrument even i it embodied but the will of a minority of the people of Kansas. Mr. Hoard again disclaimed party spirit or any intention to wound the feelings of any man. When he introduced his proposition he did not suppose there would be any apposition. He contended that it was a legitimate subject of inquiry; that common fare was sufficient to ground the investigation; it is the common rumor that the executive is now endeavoring to control the action of the House as he has heretofore endeavored; it was common rumor that led to the investigation in Wolcott's case; in moving for an inquiry he was not in pursuit of a victim, but of an offender. Mr. Hoard said he was informed that Mr. Morris had twice endeavored to get the floor to make some affirmation of the truth of the attractory which Mr. Boyne denied relative to get the floor to make some affirmation of the truth of the statement which Mr. Burns denied relative to his vote on a reference of the Lecompton Message to the Committee on Territories. Mr. Nicho's said that when common fame was presented as a general ground of investigation, it was beneath the dignity of the House to entertain the subject. THE CHEMICAL OLIVE ERASIVE on the wash-board. Ath. Colling the clothes is uninecessary when this Soap is used, and hard or salt water answers equally as well as soft. 5th. Printers, Machinists, Painters and others; find it far superior to other Soaps. It speedily removes grease, tar, paint, printers ink and dirt from the hands, leaving the skin soit, and free from chapping.

To avoid the labor of rubbing the clothes, and the use of the wash-board, the following directions should be followed:

For the washing of eight or ten of a family, take one pound of Soap, cut it into shavings, and dissolve in one gallon of hot water; put the clothes into a tub containing about ten gallons of warm water; pour in the disadved Soap, and stir thoroughly. Let them soak twenty to thirty minutes, wring out, and rinse in warm water once, cold water twice. A very dirty wrist-band, or seam, or grease spots, may require a slight rubbing, but otherwise the clothes will come out clean and white, without rubbing or boiling. Cold water may be used in place of hot, requiring about double time in soaking.
