A late writer says that the various species of vermin are Jefferson Medical College. A short time since, A late writer says that the various species of vermin are modificitying at a fearful rate throughout the land. Their transposes have become a matter of serious dread." A Post mester in lithaus, writing to "Costar's" Depot, says: "The country is literally overrun with them, (rats, mice, &c.") Another, from the same saine State, says: "The rats postively gnaw the haiters off my horses while in the stable." Another correspondent remarks: "They (the rats) are every tump in the field." In the South it is still worse. A late order from the Navy Yard at Mobile was for thirty pounds of the Rat Exterminator alone.

What the People says:

Jefferson Medical College. A short time since, a wealthy lady, who had an only son, called in Prof. P. The latter, it should be remembered, rarely visits patients, but receives them in his office. On this occasion, however, Prof P. complied with the request, and was duly ushered into the presence of the wealthy Mrs. Smith. After the usual compliments, Mrs. Smith opened the following conversation:

THE DAILY POST

The Alten Tragedy. The Courier of Wednesday morning says:__ Mr. "Crabb, the prison guard who was so dangerously stabbed by the convict Hall, was much better yesterday, having obtained considerable relief, and slept soundly. Dr. Williams informed us last evening that there was a marked improvement in his case, and that he had sanguine hopes of his reco ery. He is still in the prison hospital, it being thought most, prudent not to remove him to his residence for a few

"The convict Hall remains about as we last reported. The ball cannot be found, and he complains of much pain in his head, but is perfectly sensible, and even converses readily." In reference to our remarks upon the conduct of the officers of the penitentiary, in the management of the matter, the Alton Democrat, of

Wednesday evening, says:—

We desire to assure the Democrat and public generally, that everything was done that could be done consistently with the preservation of the prison discipline. It should be kept in view that the penitentlary now contains about six hundred convicts, and that the internal structure of the prison being intended to accommodate a much smaller number, is unfavorable to the very strict discipline which is necessary to restrain so large a body of criminals. It should be remembered that one of the conditions made by the desperado, Hall, was that the turnkey, Orabb, should be put in a close carriage with him, similarly dressed, and enveloped in cloaks precisely alike; that he (Hall) should be furnished with a revolvr loaded by himself, and driven into the country to such a point as he should designate, and that in the event of any attempt being made to in-tercept or kill him, he would assuredly kill Crabb, threat that his subsequent course indicates he would undoubtedly have executed to the very letter. It would certainly seem, under these circumstances, that a compliance with these conditions, with a view of risking a chance shot at nim after he was out which might not instantly kill him, would have been almost certain death to Crabb-a revolver certainly being in the hands of a desperate man, a more deadly weapon than a knife. We are also credibly informed that Mr. Buckmaster having been told by the prisoner on Monday morning, that his intention was to have got him into the position in which he had Crabb, he (Mr. Buckmaster,) instantly volunteered to change places with Crabb, and to satisfy the convict that he was unarmed, and indeed without other clothing than his shirt and pantaloons. This proposition, however, Hall was shrewd enough to reject, he having at that time got Mr. Crabb in a position he desired, and doubtless preferred to occupy the cell in company with a man already weak and faint from loss of blood and previous wounds, to an encounter with Col. Buckmaster, whose nerve he had often seen tried on other occasions. We are quite sure that but few men, if any, in this or any other community, would have been willing to have made as great a ersonal sacrince as this otter of Col. Bucking er's might have involved for the sake of saving A good story is told about Prof. Pancoast, of following conversation:"I wish to consult you, Doctor, concerning my only son-George, you know." "Oh! yes, madam," said the professor, "but he is surely not sick?" for about a month past he has been afflicted with somnambulism, and we fear that unless the tendency is corrected, the most serious consequences may arise.' Ah, indeed! you say he has walked in his sleep for about a month past ?"

"Yes, sir."

"And never did previous to that?" "No, sir." The Doctor mused. "Of what does your family consist, madam?" he at length asked.
