THE LIQUOR LAW. The warmest opponents of intemperance, we presume, will not deny that the present license law has altogether failed to effect the object of its enactment. In our own city, for instance, it is disregarded to so great an extent, that there are probably four places where liquor is sold without a license to one 25. He was a graduate of the office of the licensed house. The failure of the Common- | Wayne County Herald, and possessing fine abili wealth authorities to enforce the law results in the disturbance of public justice and the increase of law breakers. The State Treasurer, in speaking of this subject, says: "That large amounts of revenue are lost to the Treasury by the refusal of persons to apply for their licenses, who prefer to sell without, rather than pay a tax which does not fully protect them from competition from those who disregard the law." Persons to whom licences have been granted by the Board res fuse to take them out, and prefer to run the risk of a violation of the law. So far as prevention of breaches of the law, the public authorities seem to be inefficient. It is not a mere spirit of lawlessness on the part of those who disobey the present enactment, which so unsuccessfully prevents the enforces ment of the law, and in view of the dangerous tendency of the example of systematic law breaking to other clases of oftenders, it is eminently appropriate that our Legislature should adopt a different and, if possible, a better system than the present one. As a revenue measure the present law is neither expedient nor proper. The Excise system, for that is true principle of social science, upon which all the legislature recognize any distinction he-

As tong as liquors are classed as legitimate objects of commerce, not distinguished from other merchandize by the wholegale dealer, the there can be no good reason why a retailer of liquors should pay a heavier tax than any other dealer, and it has always been our opinion, that the most effectual cure for the evils of intemperance would be to remove all retuary enactments upon this question are useless, and the revenue feature of the present law is but unequal taxation in another shape Let the Legislature place liquor sellers upon commodities, and then make such laws as will punish them for any breach of the laws. The present state of things is against the dign'ty of the law, and we hope the present legislature may devise and enact an efficient a character, that the authorities of the Commonwealth can enforce their enactments, for the present almost universal disregard of MINNESOTA. The legislature of Minnesota has passed a bill loaning five million of State bonds to the State Legislature, under the Kansas constitution several railrand companies organized at the last session, and for whom is held in trust the munificent grant of lands from Congress for vote from the Delaware Crossing precinct, in railroad purposes. The act, which has created | Leavenworth county, should be rejected, and that a great deal of discussion and party spirit, both in the legislature and out, provides that whenever either of the said companies shall complete, ready for the superstructure thereon, ten miles of road, the government shall cause to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars, and so on till the loan is exhausted. I is further provided in the act that, as it is in violation of the constitution, it shall be submitted to a vote of the people, and that fourfifths of each road is to be completed before the sue the certificates of election to the persons year 1866, and, in case of failure, that all the having the highest number of votes in Leavenrights, titles, and claim of the said company worth county, irrespective of the Delaware Crosto the lands aforesaid shall be forefeited to the will give the control of Kansas to the party which State. As there has been great anxiety to learn the result of the late election for members of the now before Congress, I think it proper to state that recent information, through Governor Denver and others, leaves no doubt that the returned certificates of election should be issued without reference to the vote of the precinct. A month age I was put in possession of a newspaper containing what purported to be the affidavite of the judges of election at that precinct, and, in a communication to the Union, I immediately stated that, if the facts contained in said affidavits were presented to me in an authorite of rebellion, and yet propose to admit this rebellious and reliable form, I should be governed by them | State into the Union. THIRTY-21FTH CONGRESS FIRST SESSION. Yesterday's Proceedings.

Mr. Stuart said he would not discuss the question on the abstract principles of slavery, but on the ground that the action of the Lecompton Convention was an intentional fraud upon the people. He the followed with considerable closeness the clauses of the President's message, contending that its reason ing in some cases was fallacious, and, in other cases, absurd. He was astonished that the President would in this special message say that Kansas was in a state history of Kansas; that had been done. There are two factions in Kansas: Abolitionists who support the Topeka Constitution, and a squad of Southerners n favor of the extension of Southern institution and the Lecompton contrivance. But the great body of them are against both these Constitutions. cited various proofs in support of his position. He next turned to the actual state of Kansas when the President made that memorable statement as to rebellion. It was at the time of the October election when the mail and telegraph brought word that all ple, having the government in their own hands, and exercising it under the Governor appointed by the President, was in a state of rebellion. The peop e peacefully prepared an issue by which they could express their objections to the proceedings of the Convention. They did so by ten thousand majority. The President having established, as he then thinks, the Constitution, on principles of right, proceeds to defend it on the principle of expediency. self, Mr. Stuart, his view of a Territorial Constitution is that it is an incipient movement for gress, and refused, it is no longer a Constitution.

Mr. Stuart pleaded earnestly for a conciliatory course on this question. Let the Kausas act, he said, be fairly executed; let the people make their Constitution in their own way, and there will be peace in Kansas and in the country. Let the people ald throughout the Union that Kansas has had her Mr. Bayard proceeded to demonstrate by reference Kansas were bound by the vote of the minority in-
