LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Roul Play Suspected. Our readers will remember the circumstance of the drown ing of Charles Vanderkiste from the steamer Belmont last December. The body was not found until a few weeks since when it was interred on the river bank. Mrs. Vanderkiste and her mother, suspecting foul play, visited the spot and the body, but Mrs. V. states that the blood flowed from the back part of his head when he was taken out of the coffin. that on the day he left home he had been drinking some, but was not intoxicated. He left on the 17th of December, on the steamer Bolmont, taking with him fourteen dollars, all the money he had, which he placed in a leather pocket Dout at all. It is scarcely possible that he ever reached New above that place. Taking all these and other circumstances ogether, Mrs V. is firmly convinced that her husband has been foully deals with, and the Mayor, after hearing her story, has determined to examine into the affair. Accord ingly, on the arrival of the Belmont at our wharf, some time during the present week, the matter will come before him and be thoroughly investigated. Country Items.

Steamboat Swindling. It has become quite a common practice for steamboat run iers to make the most unwarrantable statements to passengers whom they encounter on the landing, to induce them to go onto certain boats. Sometimes, on reaching the boat the deceptions practised by these runners are carried out by the officers, frequently to the great detriment of the pessen gers, who have no means of redress.
