news, has bound us to the sentiments of those speeches, nor the resolutions of those meet. ings. The public, wiser than the editor of the Journai, who is still in his editorial swaddling clothes, and cannot be expected to know everything, has fully understood our course in this matter. Our aim has been to inform our readers-not extol men. That the Journal has not chosen to keep pace with the news of the day is no fault of its present editor, but it is his fault that he recklessly makes assers tions regarding our course, without informe ing himself of the facts, and with, to say the least, a most culpably careless disregard of > truth. The Journal says "the Post was first for the Senate bill." This is false ; we advocated the passage of the bill offered by Mr. Montgomery, ss a fair compromise, and one which would end the question, and the English compromise bill, which we never advocated, we have sustained since it became a law, because we believe it is right to sustain all laws while they are laws, because it does not greatly differ from Mr. Montgomery's bill, which we did advocate, and because its passage is a signal defeat of the machinations of the Black Republican party. The President's and the Governor's messages we approved, and we have yet to learn that they are not still approved by the Democratic party. But it was not our intention, when we commenced writing this article, to defend our course. The approval of the readers of the Post has saved us any such necessity. We wish to call the attention of the editor of the
