This is a very plain law and makes it the duty of all Magistrates, the Mayor of the city included, to pay over all moneys collected under the provisions of acts of Assemby, into the county Treasury. Heretofore the Mayor has been accustomed to pay the fines collected by him into the city Treasury, but whatever authority he may have had to do this is repeal. ed by the last clause of the act of Assembly above recited. It is now the clear duty of the Mayors of the two cities, as well as the other Magistrates, to pay all fines, forfeitures and penalties collected under the provisions of any act of Assembly into the County, not the City, Treasury. It will not do to claim that a portion of the fines,-those collected for disorderly conduct for instance, - are collected under city ordinances, and therefore should go to the City Treasury, for every ordinance which has any force or vitality derives it from "the provisions of an act of should go to the County Treasury as well as those collected directly under the statute laws of the State. The disorderly conduct ordinance, under which all the fines are collected, is expressly drawn "under the provisions" of the act of Assembly of 1771, which is recited in its preamble, and it is plain from the law of 1855 given above, that the fines under it, as well as under all ordinances drawn "under provisions" of Legislative enactments, must go legally to the County the Mayor wishes exclusive jurisdiction under this ordinance, is that the fines may go into the City Treasury. In thus disposing of requirements of the act of 1855, and is liable to a fine of $250, if he does not make quarterly returns to the County Treasury. It is the duty of each magistrate to examine this law regarding the paying over of fees for himself, and act according to his conscience, and it is the duty of the Commissioners to ascertain when, where, and how moneys are unjustly withheld from the public treasury, and to proceed legally to collect the penalty of $250 from every magistrate who does not comply with the law, without regard to his character or position .-Next Monday is the first Monday of July, and we will not charge the Commissioners anything for publishing a list of the names of the magistrates, who, on that day, make a statement under oath, and pay over to the treasury the fines and forfeitures which they

THE TABLES TURNED.

Our readers will recollect that a couple of Edition of Purdon's Digest, page 1127, they weeks ago we noticed an exceedingly vituper-, ative letter from one Stephen D. Mr. Guthrie's charges and specifications against Mr. Dillaye embrace names, dates, places, things and circumstances, and cortainly afford a full vindication for the Secre tary of the Treasury in this matter, unless these charges can be disproved, which, in our opinion, Mr. Dillaye will never attempt to do, s the weight of evidence must completely verwhelm him.
