WOMAN'S WILL.

The following beautiful story has been pub lished in different forms; but none so good a the original: Sir Hugo had reached his fiftieth year, un molested by passion, save an ardent one for a flowing goblet. Instead of love passages his delight was in tournaments whence he always retured victorious. At length he was flung from the saddle of his indifference by the beardless tilter love! He saw Angelica the fairest maiden of the land, forgot his gray hairs, and unmindful of the incongruity of an union between May and December, led her to the nuptial alter. Fortunately, Angelica was as modest as she was fair, and her firm virtue repulsed the numerous butterflies that swarmed round the opening flowers of her beauty. Sir Hugo knew the tried virtue of his consort, and therefore she was to him dear and precious as the apple of his eve. One morning he rode up to pay a visit to his neighboring baron in arms, his honest squire Conrade trotting after him. Scarcely had they proceeded half way when the knight

"Come here Conrade; a most tormenting thought has occurred to me. This is the very day that father Nicholas comes to the Castle to say mass for my dear wife and myself, and I am not at all inclined to have him in my abode during my absence, so gallop back, and desire your lady: in my name, not to admit the priest.

I ride-ride the large greyhound"? exclaimed Angelica, in utter astonishment. "I, belive you are drunk or mad. It is impossible that your master sent us so ridiculous a message. "Aye, but he did though," pursued squire: "and my noble master said at the same time be knew Sultan would bite terribly, not being accustomed to be made a pony of; and he therefore legs that you will no attempt to divert yourself in that way." Having said this he again mounted his horse, and galloped off to his master.

"Am I awake or do I dream?" ejaculated Angelica. "The folly of Sir Hugolis so strange, that I am almost tempted to believe it a wild dream. What does he mean? Is it not enough that I have hitherto tried to read his every will and wish, and, when known obeved them implicity; and do I deserve that he should stretch his power so far, and play the capricious, haughty tyrant? New I see that to be submissive, to a softly compliant, is not the way to treat him: the worm that crawls the dust is trampled upon. But, no, Sir Knight is not gone quite so far with us yet; in spite of you I will ride Sultan; and you may thank yourself, for your message such a thing would never have entered my head.

Her solloguy was here interrupted by the entrance of a servant, who informed her that Father Nicholas had arrived and was in the ante-chamber. "I cannot receive his visit lord is absent. Give this as my excuse to the reverend father, and beg of him to return tomorrow." With all due respect to Father Nicholas continued she, when left to herself, he shall not spoil my pleasant ride. Now i my pony were but here. He must have an easy gait and his teeth I do not fear: he is as quiet as a lamb. Oh! how shall I delight in this two fold pleasure of showing the surly old fellow that I neither care for him nor his least a novel one!" Through every coroner of the house resounded now her cry of "Sultan." Here boy! "Sultan! Sultan!" The immense but docile animal sprang from a bone upon which he was feasting, and was at her side in an instant. Caressing him till in session in the Western district. she got him into a room, the door of which

"Now friend Sultan," cried his fair mistress, "No growl, no bite, and all is safe." With her snow white hand she continued minutes, and then in the hope that if only through gratitude he would comply with the fancy, she mounted her new steed. He showed his teeth a little, in some doubt what all | return, that meant but she soothed him again into a good humor and patient endurance of the novel burthen; but he thought this quite enough, and did not stir from the spot. Anbeing thus stationary; she therefore goaded him with her foot, but no trot would Sultan condescend he remained motionless as before, while something like a growl escaped from his immense and fear inspiring jaws. Out of all patience she exclaimed—

"You shall feel the spur then, you lazy brute," and drove her heel into his side. He growled audibly, but stirred not an inch; she repeated her blow. This was too much for canine patience, he made a spring, and as she fell full length upon the floor, he turned and bit her hand. The dismounted rider endewed the floor with a few tears, and then sprang up to turn out of the room the uncourteous brute who had thus rudely shown how little he understood play. Towards evening Sir Hugo returned and inquired with suspicious haste whether Father Nicholas had been there. "Oh, yes, he was here," answered Angelica, "but I ventured to refuse hin admit-

The knight cast a triumphant glance at his squire, and whispered him. "Now old Wistice was not at all necessary to the validity of dom, do you see the use of my orders?" "What message did you bring your lady?" demanded he.

Conrade now confessed the truth. "Were these the orders I gave you, you coundrel?" said the enraged Sir Hugo. "Certainly not," replied the squire, "but ou will own that I have made my point good. You may see how it would have been had l given your order about the young priest. My noble lady is a model for her sex, and almost an angel, but still she is a daughter of Eve, who meant to have bequeathed to all her lineal female descendants her own spirit of perverseness. And we have only to remember he Lady Angelica's pleasant ride upon Sultan to be convinced that it had lost none of ts vigor in the descent."

THE MANDAMUS CASE--ALLEGEENY COUNTY BONDS--OPINION OF CHIEF JUSTICE LOWRIE.

On Thursday morning, at Harrisburg, the Supreme Court refused the motion to quash the writ of mandamus against our County Commissioners, sued out to compel them to orders, and of trying a past time that is at | levy a sufficient tax to pay the interest on the railroad bonds issued by the county. Motion to quash the writ. The Commissioners of Alleghony Co. OPINION OF THE COURT.

Lowers C. J. The writ of mandamus is not, as a general rule, a writ of right that any party can have merely on ordering it; but it can be had only on application to the court and onehow ing a prima facia title to it. It is only thus that the cause can be brought to issue with proper promptness and is to be ready for hearing in the district to which it belongs when we go there. We feel very strong disinclination to bring parties out of their district at the actual trial of the cause, and cannot consent to do it except where the necessity of it is very apparent or where promptness in the proceeding is essential to its efficacy in the given case. These remarks may stand as a suggestion of our views relative to two of the objections taken by the defendants; the other two, we think, will more properly arise when we come to the merits of the case on answer or demurer. The motion to quash is refused. The opinion among the lawyers appears to be that this important case, at least so far as the law is concerned, will be decided by the Supreme Court in the present proceeding. [Editorial Correspondence of the Post.] HARRISBURG, Thursday evening,

July 15, 1858. Dear Post:-Preoccupied as my time has been with the weightier matters of the law in the Supreme Court, and the more exciting ones of politics in the speckled Convention of Wednesday, we have given you but little of our observations by the way.

The refusal of the Supreme Court to quash

the writ of mandamus issued against our County Commissioners, has manifestly struck the learned attorney of the Commissioners all aback. His programme was to have the issue first tried in some one of the Courts in Allegheny county, and then taken up to the tribunal of last resort. In this, it appears that the Philadelphia lawyers have been too many for him, and he is evidently chagrined at the course things are taking. Mr. Comnissioner Tomer went home to-day, and Mr. M'Ilhenny remains to attend to the interests of the county. It is said that Messrs. Meredith and Harding will move the Court for a peremptory mandamus to compel the levy of the tax to pay the interest on the railroad bonds, on Friday morning, but it is scarcely probably the Court will take such a decisive step until after a full argument of the case and as the Judges are anxious to get away from here, we presume the final argument will take place at Pittsburgh, at the meeting of the Court in the fall. Some of the great guns of the Philadelphia Bar are here attending the Court. William M. Meredith, with his clear logical reasoning powers, brilliant eloquence, and neat, sparkling and ever-ready wit, is more than a match for Thomas Williams. The latter is not quick at repartee, and Meredith's polished shafts on more than one occasion penetrated deeply through the thick coating of vanity which encases our Allegheny friend. George Harding, Esq., a young lawyer from Philadelphia, of fine ability, is engaged with Mr. Meredith. Although the present proceeding is brought upon but two bonds, the legal gen- tering to our pride, will add nothing to our reptlemen from Philadelphia represent the interests of the holders of many thousands, who are some of them present, watching the ures promptly taken to punish the slightest proceedings with great interest. The im- abuse of our flag. We think that the highest pression appears to be that the ultimate decision of the Court will be that Allegheny county must pay the interest on her bonds. and we think that the County Commissioners who have been here have come to this conclusion. We have kept the tax-payers advised of this movement through the columns of the Post, and shall continue to do so. We lieved of an unjustly imposed burthen of taxthe result. Those who have done this evil to us—those who have deluded us out of our Letter from the Peace Commissioners to obligations, and squandered the proceeds, will be marked, and bitterly repent what they have done. But whatever may be the final result, we thank God that the Democratic party of Sur county are clear of all responsibility in this matter. David Paul Brown has been engaged today in an argument in a Philadelphia murder case. He is a small, compact, roundbut "he talks like a book." A brief announcement by the proprietor of his acceptance of an invitation to be present, had filled the spacious amphitheatre to its utmost capacity. It is high time that the miserable race of bri ands, who have infested the waters of the Gulf, and who, by the shameless prostitution of our flag to their unholy purposes, have inflicted an almost indelible stigma upon our national character, should be utterly extirpated. Indifference on the part of the American Government in such a case is equivalent to granting positive immunity to crime; it is even more-it is offering a premium for the violation of laws neld sacred by every nation in Christendom. We believe that the course taken by the Administration has been eminently wise and patriotic, and, in the demands made upon England, nothing has been claimed that was not strictly just. The relinquishment of the right of search was absolutely necessary to place both Governments upon a fair and equal footing. Another Royal Marriage in Turkey, On the 10th of June Munyveh Sultana, daughter of the Sultan, was married in Constantinople the festivities and ceremonies being very like hose of the preceding week, when a daughter of the Sultan was married to a son of the Viceroy of Egypt. The trousseau of both daughters was exactly the same; each of them had a sum ilarly furnished, and for both an exactly similar winter residence is being built. They are to bu.

have the same dowry and the same appanage—but to the foo,000 plasters a month for the lady, and as as mushir or field marshal, 100,000 plasters a month; so that the happy couple get altogether, 2,400,000 piasters, or about $70,000 a year. The Paris Presse says: the Sultan has given wo of his daughters away in marriage; the exenses of this double marriage are valued at 14, 000.000 francs. It is the custom on such ocasions for the Sultan to keep open table for all his Mussulman subjects for fifteen days. It must not be supposed that these banquets are distinguished for their delicacy; herds of sheep broiled rather than roasted, rice, raw-encumbers, compose the bill of fare offered by the greatest potentate of the East to his subjects. In the present state of the Turkish finances, this expenliture of 14,000,000 francs for the benefit of ragged crowd betrays great penetration.
