THE NEW DODGE. Manufactured dispatches in abundance hav been published since the laying of the ocean cable, from the President and the Queen o England, but, being innocent, deceive nor hurt anybody. In this progressive age i has been discovered that the readiest method to injure an antagonist is to write a letter, imitating his style and applying it to probable or real circumstances, to make it wear the face of truth-such as Mr. Buchanan's letter to English. He had the right to address a friendly letter to whom he pleased, and the unsuspecting may imagine he really did .-The letter was never written, but is still travelling. So with Mr. Montgomery's letter to Enoch South for whisky for the Presideat. This was done to injure a candidate for Congress, and create the impression that thing was a fabrication-a vile slander .-Montgomery never drinks whisky, and he is which was really very clever, was received with the last man the President would trust to buy immense applause. him any, if he required it. We have it from it in his friends. The next shallow pretence to deceive is a letter purporting to have been delphia Press, but considered it one of Forney's jokes and paid no attention to it. We find it re-published in this city, and doubtless it will be copied everywhere and believed until a denial plumps it out of existence. These things are calculated to detract from the fair fame of men, and the press is responsible.-

We despise such warfare. THE repudiation organ continues daily to beg pardon of its readers for introducing its rehash of abuse of the editors of this city.-The gentlemanly editor of the Press, who never descends to personalities, insists upon | ships have been chartered at $11 50 to $13 par classifying the editorial corps as "Dogs" -every one of them; railroad Presidents "Thieves"; Supreme Judges "Weak, corrupt officials." The cause must be tottering, which calls forth such vulgar raving.

The Difference.

The opposition are ever doleful over the fact that the expenditures of the general government increase from year to year, but they say nothing about the corresponding growth of the country which makes this additional expense necessary. The official statement shows that the approbriations this year exceed those of last year by four millions, and the opposi tion make themselves very unhappy over the fact that there should be any increase at all. Because the administration of President Buchanan costs more than that of President Monroe, they would have us believe that it that it arises wholly from extravrgance. Let us see. Here is a specimen of the causes which demand an increased expenditure, and it well illustrates the fallacy and nonsense of wax. all this talk of the opposition about extrava-

Who Own the Atlantic Telegraph. The projectors of the Atlantic telegraph enterprise are now the principal owners .-They are Cyrus W. Field, Peter Cooper, Moses Taylor, Marshall O. Roberts, and Chandler White, all of New York. Each of these parties have $100,000 invested to the enterprise, and one or two of them even more.-With these gentlemen are associated David Dudley Field, S. F. B. Morse, and others who have contributed largely to the final success of the experiment, but are not so extensive holders of stock. There are other parties, too, to those whose names are mentioned above. A large share of the stock is owned in England, but these are the principal American

THE Repudiation organ is very anxious for a Convention on the 25th, to make arranges ments with the Know Nothings who meet on that day in solemn conclave to put a ticket in the field which shall demolish the Democracy. We are decidedly in favor of the movement; it will the more certainly insure our success this fall. The calculation has been all along to defeat the combined forces, but the Democracy will have an easy victory with a full ticket against a divided and disorganized

We understand that it is all cady in contem-plation to lay in connection with the Atlantic telegraph, a submarine cable from Placentia Bay to Sidney, Cape Breton, or to Portland Maine. Preparations are being made to sure slanderous and false story concerning a young carrying out the design. The submarine who had spent some months in Europe. The line, inasmuch as it is not liable to damage lady by some injudicious friend. She was from the winter storms, which are always so very delicate in health, and the suffering it From Portland to New York will be the few days. She died, another victim to the next connection and that will be the fool newer next connection, and that will follow in quick foul power

The Washington Union is of opinion that THE DARKNESS DEEPENS ROUSD MY PATH. Kansas must now wait until she has a representative population before applying for admission, and that the recent election, rejecting the Constitution, meant that and nothing more, and says :- "Kansas accepts the policy, and by the solemn voice of her people declare it to be the true policy for her future interest and prosperity. Other Territories, being notified in advance that their admission as States will depend upon their population, cannot complain of the enforcement of the principle. Besides all this, the principle in itself is right, and, had it been announced and enforced heretofore, it would, in our opinion, have saved the country from much of the trouble, embarassment and bitterness which has been engendered by the contests in Kansas. Under its operation the various Territories of the United States will fill up with population carried there by motives of trade and interest."

KANSAS.

The New York Herald is on the other side of the question, and says :-- "We, however, have no fears in reference to the issue in Congress upon this anti-Lecompton restriction of the late session. It was but a tub to a Southern whale. No man voting for it should have been silly enough to believe that this restriction would or could be binding upon Congress a single session, a single week, or a a single day.

"Should the people of Kansas, therefore, in a fair way, get up and present to Congress at Resolved, That the thanks of the Committee te, and they are hereby tendered to Mr. Sumis, proprietor, of the St. Charles Hotel, for the gratuitous use of his rooms, during the coming session a new constitution, republican in form, we entertain no doubt concerning the action of Congress thereon. The case is so clear that Kansas is forever lost to the South, and so clear too is the policy of the administration, as indicated by the late election, that there can be no difficulty upon the subject. The new State will be admitted at the first opportunity, and that will be the end of the whole matter. The question being thus completely settled, the public mind will be as completely diverted from the subject as from the question of a national bank, a subtreasury, or the annexation of Texas. In this view, for all purposes of political agitation, Kansas is already an 'obsolete idea.'

The darkness deepens round my path, And starless is the vault on high: I hear the thunder voice of wrath Shaking the turrets of the sky; Nor earth, nor sky, I may not see, When all is steeped in ebon night Save when the lightning in its glee Turns all the darkened world to light.

For the Morning Post.

In vain I strain my weary eyes, And strive to keep the forest way Still denser shadows round me rise, And baste but addeth to delay : And for away I hear it now. The whirlwind coming in his might, Beneath whose tread the woodlands bow, My soul deep filling with affright.

The rain comes dashing down at length, As if an ocean burst in air; Lost, lost, I am; my spirit's strength Fast yielding unto wild despair; Reeling with terror, dizzy, blind, How from these dangers shall I fise? What shield of safety can I find From falling limb, and crashing tree

The shricking wind, the driving rate, The heavy fall of riven tree, The thunder on its lightning train. The forest like a surging sea-Amid this elemental strife, When Death is hovering ever near What Power can shield my threaten'd life?

What Hand shall keep my pathway clear? Be strong, O heart; be not cast down-O spirit be thou doubly brave; Though earth thus trembles at His frown, His is the hand will save-As they whose path led through the sea The harmices waters past.

And bring th e safe at last. And lo! the tempest now is o'er, The trees are sinking into sleep, And quiet reigns where all before, Was wild as is the stormy deep; The stars look smiling from on high, Like eyes whose griefs are went away; The path is gained, and onward I Go forth rejoicing on my way.

The mind is almost painfully taxed to grasp the vastness of the strides we have made towards national rank and power and wealth and importance since the keel of the Cadmus parted the yielding billows. Millions of oppressed of other lands find shelter and protection, liberty and independence under those institutions that Lafayette helped to found, and, among others, thousands upon thousands of his own countrymen. In no art have we advanced more rapidly than in that of ship building; and could the architect of the old Cadmus look upon some of our modern specimens of superb clippers, which are the admiration of the world, his bosom would bound with pride at the acknowledged superiority of his countrymen in his own handicraft.
