GREAT indignation is expressed by Demo crats and among honorable men of all parties. at the treatment received by Judge Wilkins, in the late Democratic Convention. His snow white hairs, his years, his services at least demanded a decent respect. Often in Allegheny county Conventions, when not a dele gate, he has been invited to a seat on the floor, and frequently called upon to address the Convention. Upon his recent visit to Washington, at the request of Mr. Buchanan, he remained his guest for two weeks, and was everywhere treated, by the most distinguished men of the day, with the greatest respect. Yet here, in his old home, where he has spent his days, he is denied the privilege in a Convention-a Democratic Conventionof offering a resolution endorsing Mr. Buchanan's efforts in rescuing the American flag from insult—in settling a question which has been the subject of negotiation or bickering since the last war with Great Britain. There was no Lecomptonism in that—no nigger in the wood pile-no distracting element; but a plain, respectable resolution, which every true American should have rejoiced at; every Dem. ocrat having one particle of respect for his party or love for his country, have voted for. Yet it was ruled by the Chairman out of orevade principle. Why this fear to speak the truth: but above all, why refuse the old. est prominent Democrat in Allegheny county the privilege of even reading a complimentary resolution of a Democratic President. Well The letter of Judge Shaler shared the same fate-it was decided too strong on the side of the Administration, and slumbered with the Committee. Mr. Shaler is in favor of the FUNNY. reality. The President's reply was conceded on all hands to be "the thing." But when the conclusion of the Queen's message was given to the world, all doubt was at once removed. Like all of the sex she was determined to have the last word, and when her say was said, the multitude of scribblers raised their voices and shouted "God save the church of St. Sepulchre, in that city: the Queen!'

have taken better care of him.

Now, that the excitement attendant upon the two pioneer messages has, in a manner, subsided, the press is flooded with puns, squibs and quotations concerning the cable. "connection," "cord," &c., apt or inapt, whether from Holy Writ or profane Shakespeare is pressed into the service of the of them without a syllable which can be tortured into any application to the present

And then, too, every unscrupulous gentlemen who has a smattering of science is scraping among his old documents to find something which can be construed into a forshads owing of the principle of the telegraph, and strenuous exertions are being made, by silly pretenders, to filch the honors from those to whom they belong.

But, seriously, Professor Morse is in danger of losing his laurels. By a letter from Hon. Ellis Lewis, in another column, it will be seen that the idea of telegraphic communicas Redmon Cox, in 1816, which, if true, would ble to the touch. certainly give him the honor of the invention.

Yet the fame of Morse and of Field can not be ignored by any revelations of this character. To them must be conceded the praise of carrying into effect the crude ideas of others. We think Cyrus W. Field fairly entitled to the commendation and heartfelt gratitude of the inhabitants of the entire globe, as having, with a perseverance and energy, under difficulties which would have discouraged an ordinary man, consummated the crowning high ceiling all around, to see this entire huevent of this age of progress and improve man figure raised up bodily from its resting

A CENTURY. The completion of the Atlantic Telegraph will hereafter be regarded as the most important event of the year 1858. This occurrence constitutes the middle of the present century, a point from which men will look gress of civilization. The attention of Amercans is thus naturally drawn to their own state of things now existing with the past.

758. But one century has since clapsed; yet | sessing the same rich and healthful glow, and as that period has sufficed to change the face of thrifty as any cotton in the country. the globe. And numerous as have been the England at war with France. The prize for which these great powers contended in America was the possession of the Canadas and the fertile valley of the Ohio, which then had been but recently explored. All that region west of the Alleghenies, now the seat of so many commonwealths, was a dense wilderness, and mostly unknown to the white settlers of the Atlantic border. The very existence of the English settlements, indeed, seemed to be threatened by the French and the ges to the French in America. The defeat of suitor who obviously understood human natureapprehensions which the bad management of he British generals in the north and east served to increase; and it was not until Pitt became premier that better councils predominated, and new energy was infused into the war, which then came to a favorable issue.-The tide began to turn in 1758.

The people of the United States are no unfrequently accused of indulging in selfglorification, and and there is some foundation in the charge. But when we reflect on all that has been accomplished by our country within the limits of a single century, it is not surprising that we should be given to boasting. One hundred years have sufficed to raise us from the condition of dependent colonies to the rank of a first class power. Instead of the occupants of a narrow strip of the Atlantic seaboard, we have spread over the whole continent, and cities are rising or the Pacific, which at no very distant time will rie with those of the east. > The Vaults of St. Sepulchre, London-Remarkable Prescreation of a Corpse. A correspondent of the New York Evangelist, now in London, gives the following cu rious narrative of his visit to the vaults o

"A strange sight was recently disclosed to me in St. Sepulchre, one of the oldest, if not the very oldest church edifice in this city. I stands opposite Old Bailey, the hoary old prison, and not far from St. Paul's cathedral .an immense edifice, with a very wealthy parish, yet only two or three hundred persons are ever in attendance at their place of worship. Beneath the church are a series of general theme, and called a prophecy, many great burial vaults, where interments have est wool growing counties in the Union. The were 15,000 coffins now entire, under the build-

Descending through an iron door from the church the other day, we entered a very large apartment, but dimly lighted, where piles of mouldy, black looking coffins were piled upon each other. These coffins, with all their elegant and costly trimming, had not yet been decomposed. Climbing up over a heap of them, the sexton opened a large wooden box, and out to it took an entire female figure, in a remark. able state of preservation! The limbs were

Before doing so, they had been making a careful survey of the premises, and under a mass of rubhish in one corner, they found a stone enclosure, a sort of sarcophagus, out of which the female figure was taken.
