CONGRESSMEN.

The next Congress will have the disposal of a great number of the most important national questions, and may perhaps be called upon to elect a President of the United States; in case there should be no election by the people. In every point of view, it is most important for the Democratic party to secure the next Congress, for a failure to do so, would greatly impair the Democratic strength in the campaign of 1860. It behooves the Democracy at the coming election, to put forth all their power, and centralize every energy | dering the accounts of the Company as simple in the Congressional elections. The meeting was organized at half past wo o'clock, when, on motion of George W. Cass, Esq., Kent Jervis, Esq., of Massilon. Ohio, was called to the chair, and Mr. Augustus Bradley, Secretary of the Company, was selected as Secretary.

The first business of the meeting was the reading of the semi-annual report of the Directors of the Company, for the six months ending June 30th, 1858. The report was read by the Secretary of the meeting, on motion of Mr. Cass. We give an abstract of the report

The Directors set forth that a contract has been entered into with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, to furnish all the "chairs, spikes, frogs and switches necessary to complete the road into Chicago." The contract is a fair and liberal one. Over four thousand tons of rails have been delivered under the contract, and are being carried out upon the line of the road. The Directors believe the last rail will be laid by the last of October.

They also report that arrangements have been made by which the Company will be assured the right of way into Chicago, where a Union Depot, in the heart of the city, will accommodate nearly all the roads entering Chicago. A large portion of the road between Crestline and Fort Wayne, which, at the time of the last annual report, was in poor condition and unballasted, is now being put in good order, and it is expected that it will be completed early in No-

Mr. Hutchison offered the following: Resolved, That a committee of three stool holders be appointed to examine into the con-

The motion was put by the chair and lost.

We are informed that these gentlemen. Messrs. Dill and Hutchinson, who pretend to have the interests of stockholders so much at heart, have both been in the employ of the company, and were discharged from its service. And these are the men who clamor about swindlers and incompetent officers. Mr. Hutchinson owns four shares of stock, Mr. Dill fifteen; and as far as our experience goes, the time they occupy with their complaints of mismanagement, at the meetings of stockholders, is entirely disproportionate to their pecuniary interests in the
