at the Camp-Grand Review and Speech by the The Washington Union announces the fact Governor-Arrival of Gen. Patterson, Sc. WILLIAMSPORT, Sept 9th, 1858 .- Camp Susnehanna culminated to-day. The night had been a livelier one than suited the somnolegt propensities of many of the excessive population. There were not beds enough for more than twothirds of the human beings in Williamsport, and those who could not secure beds, cots, shake. quartette. downs and soft planks, remained up all night, amusing themselves in various ways and disturbing all others. There was a heavy fog in the norning, which made even the unpoetical streets of the town look nicturesque and dreamy. The distant mountains and hills were heavily draped with mist, and even the dense, impalpable dust of the streets and roads was subdued for a time by the condensing vapor.

During the night there were large accessions. by rail-cars, canal-boats, carriages and waroos. to the already multitudinous population, and by nine o'clock, Williamsport, which is usually cona guarantee of a faithful execution of the tent to boast of six or seven thousand inhabitants, must have contained twelve or fifteen thoucontract, which would have existed under an sand. Williamsport, was very beautiful; the crowd of visitors, the varied costumes, the lines of troops, the waving flags, the white tents, and the beautiful framework of green hills that enclosed the picture, being particularly striking under the light of a morning sun. The military operations The earnings of the Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne in the morning were unimportant. There were company drills, a general parade, and a review y General Case, of Northumberland county .-The afternoon was look forward to as the grand period of the encampment, and men, women and children kept crowding out to the ground. By the regulations, pedestrians were admitted within the lines without passes, vehicles alone requiring such a document. This liberality had the effect of adding largely to the picturesque character of the scene; for the slope of the hill. from the level parade ground to the line of the tents, was covered with people in costumes of all^ocolors, which made a very animated, and beautiful picture. By four o'clock in the afternoon there could not have been fewer than ten thousand persons in the field, beside the large number of soldiers that were in camp. A good many vehicles were within the lines and hundreds on the outside --The booths were filled with customers; the mon strosities, the dog faced baboon, the wonderful serpents, the wild boys, &c., held large and profitable levees, and the refreshment saloons did a heavy business. It was considerably after four when the cas cort of osvalry from Williamsport, commanded by Col. Smyth, of Clinton, accompanying Governor Packer, appeared in sight. The Governor was in an open barouche, and with him were months I suffered with this dreadful disease. The Brig Gen.
