MODERN FRIENDSHIP.

Ye speak of Friendship as a gift bestowed To every being by the hand of God ; A natural flame, which glows in every breast—

A common thing, by all alike possessed.
Whilst fortune smiles, and plenty fills your board—

Whilst copious draughts your cheering vaults afford ;

Whilst rosy health supports the human frame ;

Whilst credit lasts, and whilst exists your fame ;

Whilst you have plenty, and whilst cash to spend,

So long you're known—so long you have a friend !

But change the scene—let sickly fortune frown,

You stand forsaken ; and, alas unknown !
Let wretched poverty and hunger press ;

Let want hang out the ensign of distress ; Let sore affliction sink thy feeble frame ;

Let cruel Slander wound thy honest Fame ; Let Neighbors slight thee, and let credit fail ;

Let sheriff's come, and creditor's assail ; Where's then thy Friend ? Alas you search in vain,

Self-interest sways; unheeded you complain!
Alas ! how oft in friendship's garb arrayed,

Deception triumphs—hapless man's betrayed !

Pretended Friends in every clime abound ; But real friends are rare as comets' found.

Ye who pretend the human heart to know, Show me a Friend, and I'll an Angel show !

FORTITUDE.

As in labor, the more one doth exercise the more one is enabled to do, strength growing upon work ; so, with the use of suffering, men's minds get the habit of suffering ; and all fears and terrors are to them but as a summons to battle, where they know beforehand they shall come off victorious.

Burns and scalds. It is ascertained by repeated experiments, that raw Cotton is a cure for burns and scalds. When bound on the place affected, it will give some pain for a little time, but will soon draw out all the fire and fever. It may not be useless to remind our readers here, that raw Cotton, bound on the oldest and worst corns, seldom fails of drawing them out, root and branch.

COLONEL DAVIESS.

Colonel Daviess, who fell in the battle of the Wabash, was a man of high character, a native of Kentucky. He was a Lawyer whose character was tinged with those eccentricities that indicated future genius. There was a difficult question to decide before the court of Kentucky, involving an important question in regard to the title of an estate.
The case embracing a long concatenation of facts and sundry technical niceties. When the case was called, a Kentucky hunter, with his musket and bird-bag, loaded with provisions, all equipped and complete, entered the hall and took his seat among the lawyers.
There was a grin on the faces of the Bar, Court, Jury and Spectators. He, all unconscious, took out his provisions and began to eat with the most perfect composure. The Lawyer, on the side of the plaintiff, rose, and made along argument. And who answers for the defendant ? inquired the court. I do, replied the hunter, and rising, broke forth into a torrent of eloquence that astonished the court and jury. Away went the plaintiff, law and evidence ; and so complete was the discomfiture, that the opposite counsel made a most piteous reply.

The jury found a verdict for the defendant without retiring from their seats, when the court adjourned and invited the stranger to their lodgings. "No, I thank you gentlemen ; and unless you will take a cold cut with me, I must begone." So saying, he shouldered his musket, and with great sang froid departed, such a man was Col.
Daviess.

In 1712, when the Russian army occupied Holstein under Menzikoff, commanded the cavalry. No one knew any thing about his origin ; even his native country was almost a secret. He was then encamped near Husum. One day he invited to dinner all his brother officers, and some other persons of distinction. When the party were assembled, he sent for a miller and his wife from the neighborhood. Such an invitation from a commanding officer alarmed the worthy couple. But Bauer did every thing in his power to inspire them with confidence. He wished them to dine with him ; he wanted some information respecting the country. They were seated by him at table, and during dinner he asked the miller a number of questions concerning his family.
This had the desired effect and loosed the miller's tongue. He related to his excellency, that the mill had belonged to his father, that he inherited it as the eldest son, Two brothers were tradesmen, a sister was married to one of the same business ; and God had blessed him with a family of four children. "So you were three brothers," said the general. There were four of us," answered the miller ; (who did not wish perhaps to rank a famous soldier with millers) "the fourth enlisted as a soldier, but we have never heard of him ; he must have been killed."

It is easy to conceive the effect this conversation produced on the other guests—But Bauer would not notice their astonishment till he could raise it still higher—"Gentlemen !" he exclaimed, "you were always anxious to know my origin. I was born here, and you have heard the history of my family." He then embraced the miller and his wife as their long lost brother.— The next day he regaled them all in the mill where he was born, made valuable presents to his relations, and sent the miller's only son to Berlin, who afterwards had the honor of propagating the name of Bauer.

[It being the usual custom of the Roman governors to advertise the senate and people of such material things as happened, in their respective provinces ; in the days of Tyberius Cæsar, the emperor Publius Lentulus, at that time being President, wrote the following epistle to the Senate concerning Christ.]

CONSCRIPT FATHERS,

"There appeared in these our days a man of great virtue, named JESUS CHRIST, who is yet living among us ; and of the Gentiles is excepted for a prophet of truth ; but his own disciples call him the Son of God. He raiseth the dead, & cureth all manner of diseases. A man of stature some what tall, and comely ; with a very reverend countenance, such as the beholders may both love and fear ; his hair of the color of a filbert full ripe, plain to his ears, whence downward it is more orient of color ; somewhat curling and waved about his shoulders. In the midst of his head is a seam or partition of his hair, after the manner of the Nazarites ; his forehead plain and delicate ; his face without spot or wrinkle beautified with a comely red ; his nose and mouth exactly formed ; his beard thick, the color of his hair, not of any great length, but forked ; his look innocent ; his eyes grey, clear and quick. In reproving terrible, in admonishing courteous, in speaking very modest and wise. In proportion of body well shaped. None have seen him laugh, but many have seen him weep. A man for his singular beauty surpassing the children of men"

In thy choice of a Wife, take the obedient daughter of a good mother."

King James I. of England, went out of his way to hear a noted preacher. The clergyman, seeing the King enter, left the text to declaim against swearing, for which the king was notorious. When done James thanked him for his sermon ; but asked him what connexion swearing had with his text. He answered, "since you came out of your way through curiosity, I could not, in compliance, do less than go out of mine to meet you."

REWARD.

Deserted this day, June 1, from the Redezvous at Bellefonte,

DAVID THARE,

A private in the 4th Rifle Regt. born in Duches county, state of New York, and by profession a Shoemaker. He is full six feet high, about thirty nine years old—complexion very dark, sharp nose, black eyes, and dark hair ; was enlisted on the 24th ult. at Mill Hall, in this county. His clothes (having none belonging to the United States) cannot be minutely described. He had on a light grey long coat with large gilt buttons, a pair of coarse Home-made tow trousers, cross-barred, and a pair of half boots, very short and old

It is earnestly hoped that all citizens favorable to the interests of their country, will make use of some exertions to ensure his apprehension, as every recent desertion appears purposely to defraud government.
There are now upwards of one thousand deserters running at large, so that every suspicious character ought to be taken up and strictly examined.

Whoever apprehends said deserter, shall receive the above Reward, & all reasonable expences for securing or delivering him into the custody of any United States' officer.
