

peace were fulfilled by the French government. The sum required of France, to reimburse them for the expense of the war is said to be about 25 millions sterling, and that when this is paid the complete administration of the country will be restored to the king. Louis had ordered a contribution of 100,000,000 francs as the requisition towards the payment of this sum, it being one of the first preliminary conditions of the treaty of peace. A Vienna article of July 20, says, "we are here daily more and more persuaded that the treaty of Paris will suffer several changes in favour of the allies, and that France will lose several great provinces. The restoration of the three legation to the pope is considered as a proof of this, since it leads to a supposition that Austria will obtain an indemnity elsewhere.—However, great our joy may be at the glorious success in France it is tempered in some measure by the reflection that the fruits of peace will not be the immediate result. As matters now stand, it will probably be long necessary to hold the rod over France, if we wish to be safe from a new attempt of the French to proceed again to revolutionary measures." The remonstrance of Louis XVIII. against the military occupation, &c. and the consequent oppression of his subjects, (as lately published in the American papers) is said by the Morning Chronicle to be a genuine state paper; that it had been read to the national guards at Paris, and had been handed to the ministers of the Allied potentates; and it was supposed would tend to hasten the departure of the allied troops from Paris. The Morning Chronicle is of opinion that when Louis is left unprotected by their bayonets, he will soon be compelled to retreat from the government of the country. Philipville, Laon, Roeroy, Marienburg, Strasburg, &c. had surrendered to the Allies; Toulon remained in a state of siege. The different regiments which constituted the Army of the Loire, had proceeded with much order and obedience to the cantonment assigned them.

CARTHAGENA CAPTURED.
A letter dated at Havana on the 29th of September, and received on the 6th inst. at Charleston, mentions at the Havana, that Carthage had surrendered to the Spanish troops under general Morillo."

We sincerely hope there is much exaggeration in the following article which we find in an Ohio paper. The citizens of Orleans have proved themselves such good Patriots that it would give us pain to believe the carried their foreign prejudices or predilections to this extent.
[National Intelligencer.]
Extract of a letter from N. Orleans, dated September 11.

The affairs of Europe have excited most extraordinary interest in this section of the union. Party contentions have arisen to an unbounded degree; skirmishes and even assassinations take place among the hostile powers of this city, at least weekly. Last week of eleven burials, five were caused by the poignard.

The wife of the unfortunate Labedoyere, died a few days after his execution.

BOSTON, Oct. 19.

The Fisheries.

Mr. Asheron, the British agent for the province of New-Brunswick, writes thus explicitly of the Fisheries:

"London, July 10.

"The intercourse between the United States and the King's colonies is to be strictly carried on in British built vessels, and none others.

"The Americans are excluded from the shore Fisheries, and are not allowed to come into our harbors; as formerly, to fish; they are to possess, in this respect, no other right than the subjects of any foreign nation; which by the law of nations, is limited to 3 leagues from the coast."

A letter from a gentleman in Holland to his friend in the city of Philadelphia, dated July 28, 1815, concludes as follows: "you will hear it said the war in France is ended; do not believe it, the Bourbons never can remain long on the throne of France."

Charleston, October 4.

PIRATES OF BARBARIATA.

By the ship Three Sisters, captain Shepperd, arrived at the port last evening in 13 days from New Orleans we learn that the U. States schooner Fire Brand, capt. Cunningham, had captured a pirate supposed to belong to the noted Barratarians, loaded with Specie, Silk, &c. and carried her in. They were seen by capt. Shepperd going into balize when he came out. Captain S. politely handed us a New Orleans paper of the 5th September, nothing new.

Catholic Emancipation.

Cork papers state, that it is the intention of government, during the next session of Parliament, to introduce and support a bill giving unqualified emancipation to his Majesty's Roman Catholic subjects of Ireland, reserving to himself the payment of the Clergy.
