

POETICAL.

BEAUTIFUL MORCEAU.

IN a far distant clime I have met a sweet rose,
 A blossom unfolding its exquisite ray;
 More lovely than morning it timely glows,
 And tamer than blush than the rich bloom of May.

I fear that another enamour'd may view it,
 May steal it away from its fond parent stem;
 That in absence some fortunate lover may woo it,
 And I sigh when I think of the beautiful gem.

To the shade where the flowret is destin'd
 to flourish,
 On the wings of affection I hastily fly:
 For what is there sweeter than fondly to nourish,
 What is dear to the heart, what is fair to the eye.

Leave not the bower, sweet rose, till I come,
 Hope whispers thy blossoms I again shall survey;
 My bosom, believe me, was form'd for thy home,
 Leave not the bower till it bears thee away!

FROM THE WEEKLY MESSENGER.

The lost Traveller.

The incidents on which the following lines are founded, are mentioned by Drake, in one of the volumes of his Essays, as facts.

'Twas November's chill night, and the billows were dashing
 On the wide spreading beach with tumultuous roar;
 And the breeze 'mid the rocks, which the wild waves were lashing,
 How'd dreary and hoarse on the desolate shore.

A traveller came—he would pass o'er the ford
 E'er the darkness and terrors of night had gone by;
 But ah! from the heavens in torrents it pour'd,
 And the pass was o'erflow'd as the river swell'd high.

Yet rashly he ventur'd—but scarce from the shore
 The perilous way on his charger he tried;
 When the terrified steed, and the rider he bore,
 Were torn from the ford and whelm'd in the tide.

Oh! loud were his shrieks, 'neath the wave as he sunk;
 And downwards was plung'd to his watery grave;
 Oh! dreadful his cries, as we stood on the bank,
 That loudly and vainly implor'd us to save.

The seaman turn'd pale, as he gaz'd on the sight,
 For the force of the tempest no barque could outlive;
 And nought could we do on that horrible night,
 But to pity and weep, for we could not relieve.

An islet he gain'd, and lash'd to a tree,
 He hop'd that the rage of the storm would subside;
 But vain was his hope, for the fast rising sea
 Soon whelm'd his last hold in its merciless tide.

At times the red lightning would flash o'er the wave,
 And we saw how half-rais'd 'mid the water he stood:
 Oh God! can I think of the look that he gave?
 It thrill'd through my bosom, it freezes my blood.

And there when the darkness had hidden his form,
 And desperate he struggled with hopeless endeavor—
 How his shriek reach'd the shore with the noise of the storm,
 As the water rose high to enshroud him forever.

At length it clos'd o'er him—we heard his last groan,
 In the anguish of death, as it roll'd to the shore;
 How dread! Oh how dread! was that low plaintive moan,
 As it came to us mix'd with the tempest's wild roar.

The morn came at last—the sun rose serene—
 The tide had gone down, and the tempest declin'd,
 And there, where he died, was the traveler seen,
 Left bare by the waters and bleach'd in the wind.

To Samuel Dunlop,

late of Centre County, Tailor:

YOU are hereby requested to be and appear in your proper person at a Court of Common Pleas, to be holden at Bellefonte, for the County of Centre, on the 4th Monday of January next, to answer the complaint of your wife Mary Ann Dunlop, who sues by her next friend, William Petrikin, for a divorce from the Bond of Matrimony, and to shew cause if any you have, why the said Mary Ann Dunlop should not be divorced agreeably to her petition or libel.

Wm. Alexander, Sh'ff.
Of Centre County.

NOTICE TO IRON MASTERS.

BY virtue of an order of the Orphans Court of Centre county, will be sold on Friday the 29th day of December next, at the house of Evan Miles in the Borough of Bellefonte, the following mentioned valuable property, being part of the real estate of John Dunlop late of Centre county deceased, to wit: The one undivided half part of "Washington Iron Works," consisting of a blast Furnace and a Forge, both lately erected, now in blast, and in good order, with about two thousand acres of land situate in Bald-eagle Township in said county, about eight miles from the Bald-eagle creek, (a navigable stream) and ten miles from the west branch of Susquehanna. The quantity, quality, and convenience of the ore, attached to these works, as well as their situation, and quality of the land, will be found worthy the attention of enterprising men.—Also the whole of 77 adjoining tracts of unimproved land containing about 415 acres each, situate in the said county of Centre, about twenty miles above the Great Island, on the west side of the west branch of Susquehanna,—these lands, a considerable part of them being rich and well watered, the whole abounding with timber, and having on them Stone Coal, Iron ore, and scites for works, in the possession of monied men to settle and improve them, would soon be of very great value &c the titles are good, and taxes paid. One half of the purchase money to be paid when the sales are confirmed, the residue in two annual payments.—attendance will be given by John G. Lowrey and Charles Huston, Adm'rs. and the sale to commence at 12 o'clock.
