Agricultural,

RAISING FRUIT TREES.

This is one of the most important of the farmer's duties, and one in the execution of which he can rely but little on the experience of the generations which, in this country, have gone before him.

As to the value of fruit trees, as a source of profitable income, all doubt has long since vanished. Fruit in great varieties may be profitably raised for home consumption, and the market is always open, and seldom refuses a paying profit. A single orchard may fail-or a single variety of fruit-but this luxury the people will have, cost what it may. Apples, pears, quinces, plums, gooseberries, peaches, blackberries, cherries, grapes, and even walnuts, always find a market.

We know that orchards deteriorate, but still apple trees live quite as long as their owner. Fruits deteriorate; but this process is very slow, and the new varieties take the place of those run out. The Newtown pippin has been a standard fruit for one hundred and fifty years, and it is now as good as ever. The Baldwin apple has stood among first varieties for more than one hundred years .- If we are not mistaken, some of the earlier trees of these kinds are still in bearing order. One pear tree, at least, is known, which is over two hundred years old-the Endicott pear tree, in Massachusetts; and we are told by Mr. Proctor. that another eighty years old, has recently made twelve or eighteen inches of wood in a season .- The Golden pippin was commended as early as 1600, and has ever since retained

Surely this is sufficiently "permanent" for

But besides well-known fruits, newlvarieties may be procured of equal value; and this department need be limited among the scientifle fruit growers no more than the care of an orchard. Indeed, the latter needs more science than the originating of new fruit. There is no magic known only to a few, which will ever tend in these experiments to insure pe-

Plant your nurseries, grow your trees, and try your chance among the rest. One new valuable fruit will pay for fifty failures.

PEACH TREES AND TANSY. A writer in the New York Times recommends the sowing of Tansy about the roots of peach trees, as a means of preserving them .-He says that he once knew a large peach tree which was more than forty years old, while several generations of similar trees in the same soil, had passed away. This led to examination, and a bed of tansy was discovered about the trunk. It was naturally inferred that the preservatian of this tree to such a green old age was attributed to the presence of this plant. It was decided to try experi- I'm the wheel revolving on the haxis.' Now ments on others, and acordingly a few of the roots were placed about each of the other trees on the premises, some of which gave signs of fetched up on the curbstone. His concluding decay. Not only has it preserved for several years the sound trees, but renovated those that were unsound. The odor of the plant, he | broken and the vehicle is out of repair." says, doubtless keeps off the insect enemies of this kind of tree, and it might have the same effect on others, as the plum, apple and pear, as well as the elm, sycamor, and other orna-

His object is always to make his wax of such consistency that it will not run in warm weather, and will not crack in dry, windy weather. These are the important qualities in grafting wax, of whatever it may be made.

To TELL GOOD Eggs .-- If you desire to be ertain that your eggs are good and fresh, put them in water. If the buts turn up they are not fresh. This is an infallible rule to disringuish a good from a bad egg.

Wit and Bamor.

LEATHER BREECHES .- Mr. Joseph Gilbart, who was attatched to the astronomical service in Capt. Cook's expedition to observe the transit of Venus, and whose name was conferred, by the great navigator, on "Gilbert's Island," resided at Gosport, where, according to the fashion of the day, he, like Count d'Artoise, wore very tight leather breeches. He had ordered the tailor to attend him one morning, when his grand-daughter had also ordered her shoemaker to wait upon her. The young lady was seated in the breakfast room, when the maker of the leather breeches was shown in; and, as she did not happen to know one handi-craftsman from the other, she at once intimated that she wished him to measure her for a pair of "leathers," for, as she remarked, the wet weather was coming, and she felt cold in "cloth." The modest tailor could hardly believe his eyes.

"Measure you, miss?" said he, with hesita-

"If you please," said the young lady, who was remarkable for much gravity of deportment; "and I have only to beg that you will give me plenty of room, for I am a great walker, and I do not like to wear any thing that the money returned. None gennine without the constrains me."

"But, miss," exclaimed the poor fellow, in great perplexity, "I never in my life measured a lady; I--- " and there he pansed.

"Are you not a lady's shoemaker?" she

"By no means, miss," said he. "I am a leather breeches maker, and have come to take the measure, not of you, but of Mr. Gilbert."

The young lady became perplexed, too, but she recovered her self-possession after a good common-sense laugh, and sent the maker of breeches to her grandpa.

AN INCORRIGIBLE FELLOW .- "Young mando you believe in a future state?"

"In course I does, and what's more, I intend to enter it as soon as Betsy gets her wedding things ready."

"You mistake me. Do you helieve in a future state of rewards and punishments?"?

"Most assuredly. If I should cut up mugs with a red headed woman, I should expect my hat indented by the first eistern pole she could lay her hands on."

"Go to, young man, you are incorrigible .-

"Go two! if it wasn't for the law agin bigamy, darned if I wouldn't go a dozen. But who supposed, deacon, that a man of your tarting in life?"

At an association dinner, a debate arose as to the benefit of whipping in bringing up children. Old Mr. Morse took the affirmative; his opponent, a young minister whose reputation for veracity was not very high, affirmed that parents often did harm to their children the case. One of the deacons in Edward Dey's church asked him if he ussually kissed the bride at weddings. 'Always,' was the reply. receive orders for the New Volume, the editor deep not know he has any very brilliant ideas to hold out in large capitals to dazzle people's eyes-"Graham" will be pretty much what it has been the last volume, with some improvements which experience suggests. No number will contain less than 100 pages of matter, and the readers of "Grzham' may rely with great confidence upon thisthe volume shall contain

OVER TWELVE HUNDRED PAGES Of the very best reading matter that capital cas command from original sources, or taste select from the vast mass of available material.

The aim of the editor will be to produce a pubcation which sholl be valuable in matter, and choice in taste and style; and he flatters himself from the known talents of his contributors, that he will be able to present as many good original ar-ticles to his renders as any publication of the day, He shall not, however, hesitate to publish, from time to time, articles from English authors, and translations from the best German and French writers, provided the pieces have never before appeared in print in this country. Essays on impor-tant Political Subjects will likewise be inserted, and criticisms on the Literature of America and the movements of the Age. The Leview Depart. ment, in which a large and liberal spirit of criticism will always be maintained, will be extended For the defence of American Diterature the editor will always be ready; the maintainance of a correct tone in the Magazine, he will, if possible, be still more watchful

EACH NUMBER WILL CONTAIN AN ENGRAVING FROM & FINE STEEL PLATE IN ADDITION TO THE CHOICE

DESIGNS AND ENGRAVINGS OF DEVERUX. who will supply illustrations for the text in the body of the book. The aim of the editor will not be so much to increase the number of his engravings, as to secure for those he publishes the utmost finish the artist can give them ; for common wood-cuts are so easily multiplied, that the most indifferent publication may outrank in dreary dis lay the choicest periodical. The Editor does not feel, that with his own readers, he can increase his claims to respect by insisting on any very great superiority of 'Graham' over several similar publications, but thinks he may safely confide in their friendship for the Magazine, and in its past management for its present list, and such increase as naturally grown out of an extended circulation in a country where readers are multiplying so rapidly. Of the January number the first adition will be 0.000 copies, and the editor trusts his old friends will be so prompt in renewing old clubs, and extending the list among new ones, that the first edition shall be but half os what the year will ultimately establish, as the permanent circulation of 106 Chesnut st., Philadelphia. W WOUSEHOLD WORDS .- A MONTHLY MAGAZINE AT $2 PER YEAR .- Only those who read the serial so promptly issued every week by Dickens, with thoughtful appreciation, know how to prize it. "Household Words" is a modern journal for the people, devoted to common subjects, uncommonly treated, excellent in style, in genius, in manner, and wonderfully fertile in subject. The pieces are the right length; they exhibit wonderful variety and are attuned to a harmonious key and remarkable unity of effect. For the money, there is not the equal of "Household Words" for a family journal. Pleasant stories, useful knowledge, graceful anecdotes, charming essays, alternate in its pages. It is not always convenient to secure a copy of the weekly issue on the arrival of a steamer; in order to enjoy regularly this delightful work, we advise our readers to possess themselves of the handsome monthly reprint of McElrath & Baker, who bring out Household Words" with commerciable punctuality, at New-York. Frederick Parker, 35 Washing-
