What Vegetables are best for Stock.

Dr. Dewey is a careful farmer. He watches carefully the effect of his own methods of cultivation, and the value of his crops, and tries to improve every year by his own experience.

Speaking of raising vegetables for stock, Mr. Dewey took us into his cellar, where was heaped up nearly 200 bushels of beets...

MARKING THE BEST OF IT.—A Yankee, went out walking, in Virginia, at Wheeling, while to himself a talking, experienced a feeling strange, painful and alarming.

Mr. D., has planted the same piece of land with beets and alternate rows of turnips or carrots for six years, and with constant increasing success. The land is a clayey loam.

So much for the Mangel Wurtzel. It may suggest to those who have not turned their attention particularly to the subject, what is one of the secrets of raising choice stock, and also the great profit of cultivating well and manuring highly a small piece of land.

Harrowing Wheat in the Spring. A correspondent of the Michigan Farmer says that Mr. James Worthington, of Homer, Michigan, had last spring a lot of wheat which looked so bad that had not the field been sowed down to clover he should have ploughed it up and sown it with spring crops.

Soap Yarns Home and Crows. Mr. Levi D. Cowles, of this place, informs us that he and his brother, Chester Cowles, have thoroughly tried the soaking of seed-corn in soap over night and rolling in plaster before planting, as a means of securing quick and vigorous growth, and as a remedy against crows and hens; and he says that nothing will give the corn a better start, and that neither hen nor crows will touch the corn when so treated.

With a downright taste for fruits and flowers, a man may have occupation and amusement for years, in a hundred feet square of good soil.

Wit and Humor.

A GOOD STORY.

A certain friend of ours, whose urbanity and good-fellowship have won him a host of admirers, amused a company a few evenings since, with the following anecdote, which is too good to be lost.

Presently he approached Captain S., who is a diminutive specimen of the genus homo, and called out to him, "hat off, sir, our national air!"

The "United States" had just arrived from Rouse's Point, with passengers bound for Saratoga, New York, &c. The Captain eyed the party sharply, and among them recognized his Montreal acquaintance.

His Montreal friend did not heed him, when round came the bludgeon and away went the Montreal gentleman's hat into the Canal.
