WHEN I SAW SWEET NELLY HOME.

BY MARY PRANCIS KYLE. In the sky the bright stars glittered. On the grass the moonlight fell, Hushed the sound of daylight's bustle, Closed the "pink-eyed pimpornell," As down the moss-grown wood-path-Where the cattle love to roan From aunt Pattie's quilting party I was seeing Nelly home.

Jetty ringlets softly fluttered O'er a brow as white as snow, And her cheek!-the crimson sunset Scarcely has a warmer glow; 'Mid her parted lips' vermillion, White teeth flashed like ocean foam; All I marked, with pulses throbbing, While I saw sweet Nelly home.

When the Autumn tinged the greenwood, Turning all its leaves to gold, In the lawn by alders shaded I my love to Nelly told; As we stood together gazing On the star-bespangled dome, How I blessed the August evening When I saw sweet Nelly home.

White hairs mingle with my tresses, Furrows steal upon my brow, But a love-smile cheers and blosses Life's declining moments now; Matron in the snowy 'kerchief, Closer to my bosom come-Tell me, dost theu still remember When I saw sweet Nelly home?

A PREDICTION OF THE PRESENT WAR. The Rev. John Cumming, D. D., of the Scotch Church, London, in a lecture delivered in Exeter Hall in the year 1847, pronounced among other matters, the prophetic words written below. They are copied from his mal, and started on his journey. "Apocalyptic Sketches:"

"Having explained the pouring out of the six preceding vials, the learned lecturer proceeds with the seventh-his text is Rev. xvi., 17 to 21.

"The seventh vial is ready to be poured out, or if not already pouring out we are upon the very verge of its being so. It trembles in the hands of the angel. We may expect that during the action of this vial, the mountaineer among his fastnesses-the miner in his subterranean caves-the voyager upon the ocean's bosom-the Arab in his desert-the moslem in his mosque-the Cossack in his Steppes-the King upon his throne-the mother in her household-the babe in the cradle-all will feel its vibrations, receive the taint of its influence, and respond in a thousand echoes to the voice from above, 'It is done.'

"There will be rocking thrones; there will be subverted dynasties; there will be dislocated systems; there will be nations scattered and shaken as by a whirlwind; and the hearts of the great and the mean, the rich and the poor, trembling for fear of the things coming on

"Now, you will notice that under the seventh vial the ten-kingdom form is no longer to be the distinctive characteristic of the Romish nations; they are to assume a new shape-they will be divided into a tripartite shape; three great masses will be the ultimate form into which all the nations of Europe and Christendom will be divided; as soon as you see three great leading powers coming into collision, with broad Europe for the battle-field, and the evening of the world for the bour of the conflet, you may expect that the downfall of Babylon, and the advent of Christ, and the dawn of the millenium are near.

"It is probable that this tripartite division will consist of France leading its host upon the one side, as the great partisan of the Papacy; the autocrat of all the Russians, who has more than once played a cruel game, may land this old England of ours, so illustrious by its sainted suffers, its noble army of martyrs, its devoted Christians, its preached Gospel, its spreading Christianity, its circulated Bibles, will be also the third part; and when the conflict comes, It will be as of old, England against the world, the truth of God against the apostacy of Satan and the infidelity of man."

TEACHERS AND SCHOLARS

The School Journal for the past month contains several decisions of great importance; and among others this one, in regard to the power of the teachers over the scholars out of The doctor thundered savagely.

the school house, is a question over which the to be a connecting link between a man and a Department has, under the law, only advisory | brute.' and not absolute power; and deference to former decisions on the subject, has delayed instructions thus far on this point. But numerous and increasing complaints from single schools and entire districts, of bad conduct and acts of insubordination, at the school house and under the eye of the teacher and directors, have been received. These cases, so demoralising in their character and subversive of the discipline of the schools, yet neglected by parents, and not properly cognisable by the Courts, require the statement, here, that in the opinion of the present Superintendent, the jurisdiction and authority of the teacher over pupils is neither limited by school house walls nor to the time the school is actually in session; but that, as a general rule, in all matters legitimately connected with the schools and the manners and morals of the scholars, the teacher's jurisdiction commences at the moment when pupils leave the parental roof and control to go to school, and continues until their return from school.

A GEM PROM AN OLD BOOK .- It has been eloquently and truly said, that if christianity were compelled to fiee from the mansions of the great, the academies of philosophers, the halls of legislators, or the throngs of busy men we should find her last retreat with women at the fire-side. Her last audience would be the children gathering around the knee of a mother; the last sacrifice, the secret prayer, escaping in silence from her lips, and heard, perhaps, only at the throne of God.

"VIL HE BARK."

In looking over some old papers, the other day, we accidentally come across the memorandum of an anecdote, we had heard or read somewhere, and which, to use a hackeneyed expression, we consider rather too good to be

It will be recollected, doubtless, by many of our old citizens, that years ago, before railroads, canals, or turnpikes, were known in our country, the merchant of the interior was compelled to make his annual visits to Philadelphia, (for the purpose of purchasing his stock of goods,) on horseback, and that the journey was regarded as an undertaking of no ordinary character, requiring weeks of previous preparation, and calling forth, oftentimes, many sighs and tears from the dear ones at home,' as the leved husband and father took his departure.

It was late in the evening of a long, sultry day in midsummer, when Merchant Vanderslight, with his horse, and well filled saddlebags, arrived at a small country tavern, and dismounting, called for 'supper' and 'feed.'-After partaking of the not very delicate repast, (consisting of onions, sourkrout and bacon) he ordered his horse, and notwithstanding the protestations of the landlord and his brother merchants, who had "put up for the night," lighted his pipe, settled himself and his saddlebags on the back of the faithful ani-

He had not proceeded many miles, ere he was made acquainted with the danger apprehended, by his fellow travelers at the inn, for his onward course was suddenly arrested by a stalwent arm at his bridle rein, a pistol at his breast, and a pretty determined voice accosting him with the cry of

"Deliver, or you're a dead man."

For a moment the merchant eyed the pistol when his phlegmatic phyz lighted up with somewhat quizzical smile, and he inquired, pointing to it.

"Vat is dat you got dare ?" "Humph," replied the highwayman "that? It's a dog."

"Vil he bark?" said Vanderslight. "Yes,' answered the rober, amused at what ie thought the verdancy of the dutchman. "Vel" says Vanderslight, "I'll giv you tousand tollar you make him bark ?"

No sooner said than done. Off went the pistol, and great was the astonishment manifested by the verdant German.

"Hash you got any more of dem tings?" he "O yes, got another one," replied the facetious disciple of Robin Hood. "Vel, I give you a nodder tousand tollar on make him bark too ?" Off goes the second pistol, when the "ignorant dutchman," very coolly draws from his pocket a portentious looking "flint lock," and presenting it at the head of the now astonished highwayman, exclaimed.

"Vel, I got von too, buf ren mine parks he

It is needless, to remark, that Vanderslight pursued his journey unmolested.

MRS. PARTINGTON'S SIMPLICITY .- Breeches of faith! screamed Mrs. Partington, as she heard the term applied to the Mexican violation of the armistic. Well I wonder what they will have next! I have heard tell of 'cloaks of hypocracy,' and 'robes of purity,' but I nov they're made of something that wont change and wear out, as old Deacen Gudgin's faith did, for he was always changeing. He went from believing that nobody will be saved, to believing that all would be, and at last turned out phrenologer, and didn't believe in nothing! I wonder if it is strong as cassimere?' and she bit off the end of her thread and prepared a new needle.

HOUSEHOLD WORDS .- A MONTHL. those who read the serial so promptly issued every week by Dickens, with thoughtful appreciation, know how to prize it. "Household Words" is a modern journal for the people, devoted to common subjects, uncommonly treated, excellent in style in genius, in manner, and wonderfully fertile in subject. The pieces are the right length; they exhibit wonderful variety and are attuned to a harmonious key and remarkable unity of effect. For the money, there is not the equal of "Household Words" for a family journal. Pleasant stories, useful knowledge, graceful anecdotes, charming essays, alternate in its pages. It is not always convenient to secure a copy of the weekly issue on the arrival of a steamer, in order to enjoy regularly this delightful work, we advise our res ders to possess themselves of the handsome monthly reprint of McElrath & Baker, who bring out "Household Words" with commendable punctuali-ty, at New-York. Frederick Parker, 35 Washington street is the Boston agent .- Buston Trans

The articles, both in style and thought, are far superior to the trash that occupies the pages of so many of our popular magazines. New York

The above are but a few extracts from numerous notices of the press lately received. Those who wish Household Words will receive it mentally by mail upon remitting the subscription price. Specimen numbers sent on receipt of five red postage McELRATH & BAKER, Publishers, Aug. 23. 17 Spruce st., New York.
