

Popular Song.

ROCKAWAY. On old Long Island's sea-girt shore. Many an hour I've willed away. In listening to the breakers' roar.

Wit and Humor.

A STEAMBOAT YARN. A fine western steamer, of the largest class, was ploughing her way down stream with a full head on.

ON THE WRONG TRAIN.—A few nights since some young men, going from Columbus to Cincinnati, Ohio, in the cars, were getting rather noisy and profane, when a gentleman in a white cravat tapped one of them on the shoulder.

A BEAUTIFUL ENTERTAINMENT.—A plain and uneducated man, who had received his education principally beneath the open sky, in the field, and the forest, and who had wielded the axe more than the pen, while speaking of children, remarked with true and beautiful simplicity: "The little chips are nearest the heart."

"Ah, Miss Caroline," said a Sundry School teacher to one of his class, "what do you think you would have been without your good father and pious mother?"

"I suppose sir," smartly and pertly replied Miss Caroline, "I should have been an orphan!"

"Madam, has your piano an aeolian attachment?" asked Sam the other day of the wife of a man who appeared to live up to it not beyond his income.

"What is thunder are you about it there?" Having, like two vessels about commencing an engagement, fired these shots across their bows, the twin went immediately into action, as follows:

"Pilot.—Who told you to 'stop her' and 'back her'?" Engineer.—You did; what did you ring the bell for twenty times?"

"Pilot.—You must be a nice fellow to trust. Mr. 'Kettles,' to get drunk before sunrise. Call your mate and turn in."

"Pilot.—Look here, 'old Kettles,' hold on a bit, and I'll be down on you like a thousand of brick."

"What have you done to further human progress?" asked a sententious philosopher one day of Jenkin's. Jenkin's reply was clear and decisive. "I've produced seven boys and two girls, sir." The philosopher departed, and for the first time in his life—thought.

JONATHAN AND HIS LADY LOVE. We heard a rich anecdote the other day, which we think will bear publication: Jonathan loved Sallie, and after many misgivings, concluded to ask her to have him.

"So bracing himself for the occasion, he called to see her, just as the 'old folks' were retiring, preferring to 'pop the question' when none were near to witness his confusion, save his love."

"Jonathan—Miss Sallie, as you love me, and I do the same thing, I've 'cluded to 'pose to you for us to hitch teams, and if you love me, you'll not say anything else but 'Yes, nothin' shorter."

"At that moment, Sallie's countenance darkened, her whole frame trembled with great emotion, then resting her elbows on her lap, the big tears trickled from beneath her long lashes."

"Jonathan—(Supposing the intensity of her love to be the cause of her violent emotions): 'What in the name of all nature makes you carry on so? If you love me and want to marry me, why on earth don't you say just that one thing?'"

"Sallie—(Casting at him a fond, loving glance and fairly shrieking): 'Look-a-here Jonathan, gosh, if you'd a eaten them green apples, what I did, last night, you'd a known what the matter with me. Gosh how it hurts?'"

"Up to SNUFF.—It is suggested that the story of a magnificent box, inlaid with diamonds, composing a crown, a cross and the letter 'N', recently sent by Louis Napoleon to an ancient friend and crony in New York, having been seized for debt before reaching the hands of the party for whom it was destined, and sold by auction by the Sheriff, was a "speculation" to make it bring double its value. Great country this!"

"The little chips are nearest the heart." A beautiful expression.—A plain and uneducated man, who had received his education principally beneath the open sky, in the field, and the forest, and who had wielded the axe more than the pen, while speaking of children, remarked with true and beautiful simplicity: "The little chips are nearest the heart."
