Be lost by their sons on the Fourth of July. Not forself were we born; like our fathers for others For our homes and our country, to live or to die, In peace, to unite, like a band of true brothers,

In war, to hold fast by the Fourth of July. Forever like them, let harmony bind us, And, rulers! act wise lest you sever the tie, And traitors succeed, and our enemies find us. To rob us of mirth on the Fourth of July.

Should fees then invade us, like lads of true metle If Union be ours, swift to battle we.ll hie, Like a whirlwind the storm of our vengeance shal And we'll 'trample their graves on the Fourth

For Columbia, my friends, till the end of time' May God and our arms still protection supply, Let actions, not words, be the test of our glory, And loud be our mirth on the Fourth of July.

Then a health to our sires who so nobly defended The soil where their ashes in peacefulnessilie, And ne'er may their memories, till time shall Be lost by their sons on the Four h of July.

OUR FATHERS.

No nation, can dwell with more just satis faction upon its annals, than the American people. The emigrants who settled the country, were illustrious men; distinguished for their piety, wisdom, energy, and fortitude .-Not less illustrious were their descendants. who served as the guides and counsellors of the colonies, or who fought their battles dur ing the revolutionary struggle. No one who admits the intervention of a special providence in the affairs of nations, can hesitate to believe, that the statesmen and heroes of the revolution were raised up by the God of Heaven, for the important and definite purpose of achieving the independence of America-of rescuing a people, whose ancestors had been eminently devoted to the duties of piety, from the thraldom under which they had groaned for years-and of presenting to the monarchical governments in the eastern hemisphere, the example of a government, founded on civil and religious liberty.

For the accomplishment of such a purpose the statesmen and heroes of the Revolution were eminently fitted. They were endowed with minds of distinguished power, and exhibited an example of political sagacity, and of high military prowess, which commanded the admiration of statesmen and heroes, was commensurate with the noble objects which they had in view; and amid the toils, and privations, and sufferings, which they were called to endure, they exhibited a patience and fortitude, rarely equalled in the history of the world.

Of the revolutionary patriots, none present themselves with more interest to the rising generation, than those who composed the congress of 1776; and upon whom devolved the important political duty of severing the ties, which bound the colonies to the mother counand to follow their example will be felt; nor can we fail to realize the debt of gratitude we owe in common, to that benignant providence, which was assigned them.

They were fifty-six in number; and the average length of their lives was about sixtyfive years. Four of the number attained to the age of ninety years, and upwards; fourteen exceeded eighty years; and twenty-three, or one in two and a half, reached three score years and ten. The longevity of the New England delegation, was still more remarkable. Their number was fourteen, the average of whose lives were seventy-five years. Who will affirm that the unusual age to which the signers, as a body, attained, was not a reward bestowed upon them, for their fidelity to their country, and the trust which they in general reposed in the overruling providence of God? Who can doubt the kindness of that Providence to the American people, in thus prolonging the lives of these men, till the principles for which they had contended, through a long series of years, had been acknowledged, and a government had been founded upon them?

Of this venerable body, not a single one survives. They are no more, as in 1776, bold and fearless advocates of independence. They are dead. But how little is there of the great and good which can die. To their country all that perpetuates the remembrance of men in the deep engraved lines of public gratitude, and in the respect and homage of mankind .-They live in their example; and they live, emphatically, and will live, in the influence which their lives and efforts, their principles and opinions, now exercise, and will continue to exercise, on the affairs of men, not only in our own country, but throughout the civilized

It remains to us to cherish their memory, and emulate their virtues, by perpetuating and extending the blessings which they have bequeathed. Se long as we preserve our country, their fame cannot die, for it is reflected from the surface of every thing that is beautiful and valuable in our land. We cannot recur too often, nor dwell too long, upon the lives and characters of such men; for our own will take something of their form and impression from those on which they rest. If we inhale the moral atmosphere in which they moved, we must feel its purifying and invigorating influence. If we raise our thoughts to their elevation, our minds will be expanded in contact with a jackass, which was making and ennobled, in beholding the immeasurable distance beneath and around us. Can we ing. Jemmy stood a moment in astonishment, breathe the pure mountain air, and not be re- then turning to Pat, who was also enraptured freshed; can we walk abroad amidst the beautiful and the grand works of creation, and feel no kindling of devotion?

With the song, he remarked: "It's a fine car the bird has got for music; but he's got a wonder-ful cowld."

OUR REVOLUTIONARY SIRES. Alexander Hamilton was hardly of age when he began to play his part in the awful drama of the Revolution, being only 20 when he was taken into the family of the Commander-in-Chief, with the rank of lient. colonel; Benjamine Franklin was 59 before he began to be heard of; Samuel Adams 44; James Otis 88; John Adams 35; Josiah Quincy 40; John Hancock 38; and Thomas Jefferson 32, before they were greatly distinguished. And so with all actors of that age. They were full grown men -workmen-ripened with toil and strengthened by long habits of endurance and self-dependence. Washington was a surveyor and in after life a farmer. ("Expressive silence muse his praise!") Knox was a book binder and stationer. Morgan (he of the Cowpens.) was a drover,-Tarlton got from him a lecture on that subject. Green was a blacksmith and | ronage. withal a Quaker, albeit through all his southern campaigns, and particularly at the Eutaw Springs, he put off the outward man. Arnold -(I ask pardon for naming him in such com- store, when not professionally engaged. [Apr. 25. pany)-was a grocer and provision store keeper in New Haven, where his sign is still to be seen-the same that decorated his shop door before the revolution. Gates, who opened Burgoyne's eyes to the fact that he could not "march through the United States with 5000 men," was a "regular built soldier," but after the revolution a farmer. Warren, the martyr of Bunker Hill, was a physician, and hesitated not to ebhibit to 1 is countrymen a splendid example of the manner in which American physicians should practice when called on by their country. Marion, the "Old Fox" of the South was a cow boy. Sumpter, the "fighting cock" of South Carolina, was a shepard's boy. Let it be forever remembered that the men of the Revolution were working men, those of New England especially:-Green, (as we have stated) was a blacksmith; Franklin a printer; Roger Sherman a shoemaker, and Putnam, Stark and Allen were farmers; not a man of them all above his business or ashamed of his

They were tinkers, and tailors, and coblers,-what Were they not patriots? Were they not men ?"

REVOLUTIONARY BATTLES.

The following is thought to be a complete list of the battles fought during the war of the Revolution, with the exception of a few in the Southern States:

Battle of Concord, April 18, 1775; battle of Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775; battle of Old Hampton, Va., where we took five decked throughout the world. Their patriotism was vessels, sometime in November, 1775; battle of a pure and exalted character; their zeal of Great Bridge, near Norfolk, Va., December 18, 1775; battle of Long Island, August 27, 1776; battle of Fort Washington, November 17, 1776; battle of Fort Lee, November 16, and Gen. S. F. Hersey, Bangor, Maine. 1776; battle of Trenton, where one thousand Hessians were captured, December 16, 1776; battle of Princeton, January 2, 1777; battle of Bennington, August 16, 1777; battle of Brandywine, September 11, 1777; battle of Germantown, October, 4, 1777; Burgoyne's Army taken near Saratoga, October 17, 1777; battle of the Red Banks, October 22, 1777; battle of Monmouth, June 28, 1778; battle of Stony try. MAGAZINE AT $2 PER YEAR .- Only those who read the serial so promptly issued every week by Dickens, with thoughtful appreciation know how to prize it. "Household Words" is a modern journal for the people, devoted to common subjects, uncommonly treated, excellent in style, in genius, in manner, and wonderfully fertile in subject. The pieces are the right length; they exhibit wonderful variety and are attuned to harmonious key and remarkable unity of effect. For the money, there is not the equal of "Household Words' for a family journal. Pleasant stories, useful knowledge, graceful anecdotes, charming essays, alternate in its pages. It is not al ways convenient to secure a copy of the weekly issue on the arrival of a steamer; in order to enjoy regularly this delightful work, we advise our readers to possess themselves of the handsome monthly reprint of McElrath & Baker, who bring out Household Words' with commendable punctuali ty, at New-York. Frederick Parker, 35 Washing ton street is the Boston agent.-Boston Trans The articles, both in style and thought, are far superior to the trash that occupies the pages of so many of our popular magazines.-New York The above are but a few extracts from numerous notices of the press lately received. Those who wish Household Words will receive it monthly by mail upon remitting the subscription price. Specimen numbers sent on receipt of five red postage
