CHORUS. Hie! for school, Ho! for school, Come along with me, "You'll rarely find go where you will, A happier band than we."

When the beams of light shall fade In the distant west, Then with joy we'll hie for home, And those who love us best! Fathers dear, mothers true' With loving words we'll greet; O! how pleasant after school Around the board to meet. Hie! for school, &c.

Once again join the shout, All our merry band-Blessings on our common schools, The glory of our land. Then around the fireside hearth, When the day is sped, Bless the teacher in our prayers, Then we'll hie to bed. Hie! for school, &c.

EASTERN HORSES.

Most European horses like to teaze their riders; the Eastern horses would as soon think of flying. Nine out of ten English horses, if an accident happens to your saddle or bridle, will select that very moment for some display of energy or temper. I have known many Anatolian horses which you could stop in full career simply by taking your foot out of one of the stirrups. Not that they are tame and spiritless-far from it. Let the Anatolian horse know that his rider sits firm in the saddle, that his feet press equally in either stirrup, that the bridle is all right, and that prancing and curvetting are desired, and he will play at that game with spirit enough to satisfy even the most fastidious horseman. If the rider is up for a neckor-nothing race, his horse is the horse to dash forward at all risks. But if his master is faint and weak, the same horse feels for him, and will carry him carefully and tenderly, as a good nurse does a sick child. If you ride him over broken ground, he will take the greatest care; and, if he falls, you may be sure he will fall in such a manner as to hurt himself, and not you. Our young officers are rather reckless riders. I have heard of scores of falls in full gallop, during this campaign .-I never knew any one come to harm that had a fall with an Eastern horse. In July last, an hour after sunset, racing it hard over the darkened plain of Devna, with a young officer of the Light Division, who since died a hero's death at Alma, his horse fell in full career .-Horse and rider rolled in the dust, and it was altogether a fearful fall. The rider got up bewildered, astonished, and perfectly sound. The animal's knees and face were cut; he had put down his head to break the fall! If that laborers exclaimedaccident had happened with a European horse, the officer would hardly have died in battle .-Letter from the Camp.

One Happy Man.

The happiest man I have ever known is far enough from being rich in money, and who will never be very much nearer to it. His calling fits him, and he likes it, rejoices in its progress as much as in its results. He has an active mind, well filled. He reads, he thinks. He tends his garden before sunrise every morning-then rides sundry miles by the rail-does ten hours work in town-whence he returns happy and cheerful. With his own smile he catches the earliest of the morning, plucks the first rose of his garden, and goes to work with the little flower in his hand and a great one blooming out of his heart. He runs | forthover with charity, as a cloud with rain; and it is with him as with the cloud-what coming from the cloud is rain to the meadows, is a rainbow of glories to the cloud that pours it out. The happiness of the affections fill the good man, and he runs over with friendship broke forth, which made our hair stand on and love-connubial, parental, filial, friendly, too, and philanthropic besides. His life is a perpetual "trap to catch a sunbeam," and it always "springs" and takes it in. I know no man who gets more out of life; and the secret of it is that he does his duty to himself, to his brother, and to his God. I know rich men, and learned men-men of great social position; and if there is genius in America, I know that -but a happier man I have never known .-Sermon of Theodore Parker.

AN IRISH WIDOW IN CLOVER .- Seedy Mahomed, soon after his elevation to the throne of Morocco, about the middle of the last century, was desirous to complete the defenses of Fez. and knowing the superiority of the English in engineering, he applied to the British governfor the aid of some person skilled in the art .-The request was acceded to, and an experienced sergeant of the Sappers and Miners having been selected as a fit person, was placed at the disposal of his Majesty. Seedy Mahomed received him with much kindness, and allotted a suitable house for his reception. The sergeant continued in the service of the Sultan for some time after he had completed the the works at Fez, and at length died, leaving his widow without issue. After his interment, the widow, who was a pretty Irish woman. sought an interview with the Sultan, in order to obtain a pension and the means of returning to her own country. His Majesty was much struck by her fair and comely appearance, and treated her with condescension and benevolence. That interview resulted in the poor Irish woman becoming the Sultana of Morocco .-Connolly's History of the Sappers and Miners.

der for having called it forth.

THE NEW EMPEROR OF RUSSIA .- An American gentleman who has the entree at the Court of St. Petersburg, writes in these terms to a friend in New York largely interested in steam machinery, ADo not believe that the Emperor Alexander is of any softer material than his father Nicholas, or that he will let England and France off before he has taken the starch out of them. He either has repeated or very soon will repeat plainly the offer his father made to our government. He will give the United States the whole of Russian America (which carries with it immense whale fisheries and the unlimited control of the Pacific coast) for the privilege of buying and fitting out steamships and privateers in our ports. As it is now known in Russia that English agents have been permitted to recruit for the Crimea army in New York, the Allies cannot complain it the American cabinet accepts this fine offer. In case it does, thirty million of dollars will be spent among our laborers and mechanics by the Russians, and our clipperbuilt ships will find a prompt market. Alexander speaks English like one born to it, and keeps the run of American papers with surprising accuracy. Soon after his accession he said to a party of Americans who were presented to him. "Our countries have at heart one interest in common-to cure England of her mania for giving the law to other nations."

FACTS .- Should all the inhabitants of the United States cease to use intoxicating liquor, the following would be some of the beneficial results, namely:

Not an individual would become a drunk-

Many who are now drunkards, would reform, and would be saved from the drunkard's grave. As soon as those that would reform should be dead, which would be a short time, not a drunkard would be found and the whole land

More than three fourths of the pauperism of the country might be prevented, and also more than three fourths of the crimes. One of the grand causes of error in principle, and immorality in practice, and the sources of vice and wretchedness would be re-

The number, frequency and severity of dis eases would be greatly lessened; and the number and hopelessness of maniacs in our land be exceedingly diminished.

A Ventriloquist on the Dock. Quite an exciting scene occurred at one of our wharves yesterday. The hands of one of our steamers were engaged in rolling off a cask, when to the consternation and surprise of the persons engaged in performing that operation, a voice was

"Roll it easy, these darned nails hurt; I'd rather pay my passage than stand all this." Holding up their hands, their visuals expanded to the size of two saucars, the two

"That beats the devil! !"

The mate coming up at this moment, and unaware of the cause of delay, commenced cursing them for their dilatoriness, when from within, the voice again came forth-

"You're nobody; let me out of this cask." "What's that ?" said the mate.

"Why it's me!" said the voice; "I want to get out-I won't stand this any longer!"

"End up the cask," said the mate. "Oh, don't-you'll kill me!" said the voice. These darned nails prick me. Look out !d-o-n-t!" again said the casked up individual, as the men were turning it over.

"Cooper," said the mate, "unhead this cask,

As the adze sundered the hoops, and the head was coming out, the voice again broke

"Be easy, now! is there any one about? I don't want to be caught !"

Quite a crowd had now gathered round the " scene of action," when to the utter astonishment of the bystanders, a loud gutteral laugh end, the cask was found filled with bacon. "What does it mean?" says one.

"I swear, it beats my time," said the mate. We enjoyed the joke too well to "blow," as we walked off arm-in-arm with the "Fakir of Ava," the ventriloquist and magician.

HOUSEHOLD WORDS .- A MONTHL.
MAGAZINE AT $2 PER YEAR, -Only those who read the serial so promptly issued every week by Dickens, with thoughtful appreciation, know how to prize it. "Household Words" is a modern journal for the people, devoted to common subjects, uncommonly treated, excellent in atyle, in genius, in manner, and wonderfully fertile in subject. The pieces are the right length; they exhibit wonderful variety and are attuned to a harmonious key and remarkable unity of effect. For the money, there is not the equal of "House-hold Words" for a family journal. Pleasant stories, useful knowledge, graceful anecdotes, charming essays, alternate in its pages. It is not always convenient to secure a copy of the weekly issue on the arrival of a steamer, in order to enjoy regularly this delightful work, we advise our resders to possess themselves of the handsome monthv reprint of McElrath & Baker, who bring out Household Words" with commendable punctuals y, at New-York. Frederick Parker, 35 Washing-
