The look, the air, that freis thy sight, May be a token, that below The soul has closed in deadly fight With some internal firey foc, Whose glance would scorch thy smiling grace And east thee shudering on thy face!

The fall thou darest to despise-May be the slackened angel's hand Has suffered it, that he may rise And take a firmer, surer stand; Or, trusting less to earthly things, May henceforth learn to use his wings.

And judge not lost, but wait, and see, With hopeful pity, not disdain, The depth of the abyss may be The measure of the hight of pain, And love and glory that may raise This soul to God in after days!

Premature Matrimony. Marriage is a divine and beautiful arrange. ment. It was designed by providence not solely as the means of keeping up population, or as a mere social and economical convenience, but as the blending of two spirits into onethe masculine representing wisdom, and the feminine affection. When there is a true spiritual affinity between the two, then the design is occomplished.

Premature marriages are among the great est evils of the times; and it would not be a bad idea in these days of reform, if an Anti. marrying-in-a-hurry Society were instituted. Now-a-days, people leap into the magic lifecircle with no more consideration than they would partake of a dinner-little thinking that, when once in, they are there until their end comes. There is little, sometimes no mutual analysis of disposition, and comparison of taste and effections. They seem to fancy that, if there are any discrepancies, the fatal Gordian knot, which can be seldom cut and never untied, will harmonize all.

The numbers who have felt this truth-the numbers still feeling it to their heart's coreare incalculable. They recognize it as the great mistake of their lives. The chain is not to them a silken one, but a cable of iron, that tightens around them more and more, crush-· ing out all hope and energy, substituting hate for love, and eating out with its rust, the very inner life of the soul.

Boys and girls now marry to a greater extent than ever before, instead of waiting until they become full-grown and matured men and women. The young dandy, as soon as he gets out of short jackets, and finds a little furze gathered on his upper lip-and the young miss, as soon as she emerges from the nursery and abbreviated frocks-think they are qualified to assume the most solemn responsibilities of life. And so if "Pa" and "Ma" won't consent, they post off to some Gretna Green, and there take obligations that, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, they will never cease bitterly to Marriages should never be the result of fancy. The ball-room and the evening party rarely develop real character. Under the exhilirating influence of the dance, the glare of lights, and the merry squib and joke, the dissolute young man may appear amiable, and the statternly scold lovable. Matches made at such places, or under similar circumstruces, are not of the class that originate in heaven. They more generally are conceived in the opposite place, and bring forth only iniquity .-The true way to learn each other is to do it at home, in the parlor, in the kitchen, and on occasions that lest the temper. We see the result of these unions in the almost daily divorces that are taking place, in the running away of husbands, leaving their wives and chileren to starve and in the elopement of wives. Not only this, but we witness it in broken-spirited men, made old in the prime of life, struggling on for food, and clothing, and shelter, and in women cross, dirty, sluttish, and wrinkled.

It would be quite impossible for us to depict faithfully the multitude of physical and moral evils that result from these sinful alliancesfor sinful they are. They ruin the body, corrupt the morals, and stultify the mind. And the result does not stop with husband and wife. There are the children. They partake of the feebleness and vices of the parents, both physical and moral, and go out into the busy world stunted and gnarled. God pity them !

We would not be understood as speaking against the institution of marriage. It is holy, beautiful, and beneficent. But let every one take his mate or none. Let not the brave eagle pair with the stupid owl, nor the gentle dove with the carrion crow. Like should have like. It is a glorious sight to see two old people, who have weathered the storms and basked in the get two chapters of Job by heart. sanshine of life together, go down the gentle declivity of time, with no angers, nor jealous- | whispered a lawyer to his Irish client in Caliies, nor hatreds garnered up against each oth- fornia. A Michigan Legislature. A friend told us that our anecdotes of the Legislature that wanted the Constitution to run through his farm, and of his worthy brother who did not think his constituents had any "senses," reminded him of the freaks of a distinguished Michigan State Senator, who in his day, was the unfailing source of half the fun at the Capitol. Upon one occasion, while some resolutions were under discussion which involved an endorsement of the course of the Michigan delegation in Congress upon the Tariff question, this gentleman sprang to his feet and exclaimed :

"Mr. President! I do not care a cuss about this plagny Tariff, but I'n afraid that the Whigs will get a branch of the d-d thing in | Bast, and more durable in material. this State !"

The same gentleman was at another time made the victim of the sarcasm and irony of a political opponent, who, in a long and personal speech against him in the Senate Chamber, accused him, among many other things, of having "stolen the livery of heaven to serve the devil in." Our friend rose to reply, violently agitated and trembling with indignation.

"Mr. Presidedt! This is the first time i all my life that I have been accused of stealing! My opponent says I have stolen the Library of Heaven! Mr. President in the most solemn manuer, allow me to assure you that I did not know that there was such a book in print."

He was originally from New Jersey, and was very fond of glorifying that State. Upon these occasions, he always commenced as fol-

"Mr. President, the great State of New Jersey, which State I had the honor to leave.

These are all pretty hard to beat, but we be lieve we can still cap the climax by a leaf from our Hoosier reminiscences. It is what we remember of a speech we once heard de. livered by a candidte for County Clerk. The orator was one of those lank, shambling men that are almost always found in fever and ague countries, and was dressed in a complete suit of linen, which at once was too small and too large for him. He was troubled at the time with a bad cold in his head, and blew his nos every few minutes with his fingers, wiping them after each operation upon the seat of his pantaloons, which, by frequent repetitions of the process had grown quite sleek and glossy.

"Feller citezens! I was born in glorious old not been for the goodness of Divine Povidence and some other gentlemen. I would have been as darned a fool as any on you. But I have learned a first rate education, and will make as good a clerk, if elected, as Squire Law would be. I hold it my hands an American half-eagle. Upon one side are inscribed the Goddes of Liberty, with her cap upon a bean pole; upon the other is an eagle, bearing in his mouth a mottar, E. Plaribus Unum, signifying a plurality of unicorns, and if you will step over to Phil Haynes' we will spend it for liquor !" He was not elected .- Chicago Tribune.

Humorous Incident.

A laughable incident occurred in this country some time since, the circumstances of which we got from one acquainted with the transaction. An old gentleman farmer who had two handsome daughters, was so cautious of his charge, that he would not permit them ever, they adopted the following expedient to SAMUEL BERLIN, enjoy the company of their lovers. After the old man retired to rest, the girls would hang a sheet out of the window, and the beau would scize hold of the sheet, and with the assistance of his lady love, who tugged lustily above, tage to give him a call, and examine his Stock be would thus gain entrance; but it so happened one evening the girls hung out the sheet too early, for the old gentleman, by some ill wind was accidently around the corner, and spying the sheet, could not conjecture the meaning of its being there; so he caught hold and endeavored to pull it down; the girls above supposing it to be one of their beaux, began to hoist, and did not discover their mistake "Oh Lord? 'tis dad!" and letting go the sheet, market. souse came the old man on the hard ground, dislocating one shoulder, which convinced him that to make "old maids" out of his daughters was a matter not so easily accomplished, and withdrawing all further opposition to their keeping company, he was soon a fath-
