Or its super-baby size. Or its glorious golden tresses, Or the smile its mother blesses. Or some other charm or feature, Of the darling little creature!

Has your daughter won the prize? Hang it up before her eyes; Sure 'twill teach her infast mind To be humble, modest, kind Make her gentle, womanly-Everything a girl should be; As a prize-boy-baby's medal-wife,

Or has your noble little son The meed of fat or beauty won? When old enough to go to school, If he comes back a drivelling fool Made so by cruel gibe and jest Rankling within his manly breast, Then amuse his idiot eyes. With the hard won glittering "prize" More hopeful far from stranded wreek.

With heaviest millstone round his neck The chance to stem the ocean's strife. Than, launched upon the sea of life To safely reach tee "Isle of Man," Burdened with Barnum's baby-ban That medal weighing down his soul In vain for him the seasons roll-Dwarfed, be ne'er so wise or good-Doom'd to perpetual bylyhood!

But should it please the God who gave
The angel infant in your arms, From ignominious life to save

The baby of the medal charms,

How sweet to write upon its tomb-Lo! God hath called our baby home; Our baby, who, at Barnum's show, With forty others in a row, Besides a giantess as tall As mother Eve before the fall, For four long, tedious, glorious days, Was held before the admiring gaze Of male and female, gentle, rude, Thievish and honest, bad and good,-Whoever could command a quarter, Could critisize our son or daughter; Point out their points, canvass their chances, Witness their baby circumstances; See the prize baby get its dinner Like any common little sinner; While mamma' with a modest air.

And Wood exclaims, "How well he DRAWS!" But baby's dead and buried here. And we should shed full many a tear, But blessed but ! we've got the prize-Its glitter dries our dewy eyes; And while we linger here below, Its gleam shall gild this vale of woe; And when we join our babe in glory, Doubtless they will have heard the story, And greet us with a loud "Huzza! "HERE COMES PRIZE-BABY'S PA AND MA!"

Barnum can scarce restrain the applause.

ANECDOTE FOR FARMERS.-We have seldom read any thing more sensible or appropos than the following remarks and anecdotes from that excellent contemporary, the Maine Farmer, in church, then ?' illustrating the importance of the proper care or to Spain and Germany for the choicest | be published. How long does it take ?' sheep; we may search the world over for cattle that please the eye; but unless they receive the best care and liberal feeding, they haunt our rich but neglected pasture lands. We remember an anecdote in point, and will relate it by way of illustration.

A farmer having purchased a cow from a upon taking her to his own inferior pastures, found that she fell short of the yield which he was informed she was accustomed to give. He purchased, that the cow was not the one he my teeth.' bargained for, or, in other words, that she was not what she "was cracked up to be."

"Why," said the seller, "I sold you my cow, but did not sell you my pasture too."

The above, which we cut from an exchange. reminds us of a reply which a shrewd old farmer, whom we knew many years ago, made to one of his neighbors. The latter had obtainoff, and who, because intelligent, particularly surpassed his neighbors in raising. Shortly after, meeting the old gentleman referred

WILD FRUITS IN AUSTRALIA .- In this country there is an almost total absence of wild fruits. There is scarcely a nut, berry, or wild fruit of any kind. No apples, no plums, no grapes .-There is a species of cranberry, the fruit of which grows under the plant, but this is exrremely rare; and there is a fruit called the quandong, which has a large stone, and seem to resemble a plum. Edible roots are as few. In fact, except a very rare sort of fungus, growing in the ground, called native bread, which the natives roast and eat, and the small root called the murmong, the natives have no vegetable food. But it is a country which takes kindly to any fruit, root or vegetable that civilized man brings into it; and will doubtless, one day, be as affluent in all these riches of nature as any land on the globe .-The peach flourishes; the same is the case with the vine and the fig .- Scientific American.

PATRICE'S WARDROBE .- At a sale of furniture which took place in a country town, among the lookers on were a few Irish laborers, and upon a trunk being put up for sale one of them said to his neighbor:

"Pat, I think you should buy that trunk." "An what would I do with it?" replied Pat, with some degree of astonishment.

"Put your clothes in it," was the adviser's

The Phrenologist Posed. An itinerant phrenologist was passing thro' one of our New England villages, stopping at each house he passed, in hopes of making his scientific acquirements the means of putting a stray quarter into a pocket-book which was far from being plethoric. Among others, he stopped at a rustic farm-house, the proprietor of which was busily engaged in the backyard, approaching winter. The old farmer did not take much notice of our phrenologist, who after watching the axe ascend and descend a few times ventured to broach the object of his visit, by saying-Sir, I am a phrenologist .--Would you like to have me examine the heads
