THE RAFTSMAN'S JOURNAL.

BRILLIANTS. AUTUMN SEETCH.

There was not on that day, a speck to stain The azure heaven; the blessed sun alone, In unaproachable divinity Career'd, rejoicing in the fields of light. How beautiful, beneath the bright blue sky, The billows heave ! one glowing green expanse. Save where, along the line of bending shore, Such hue is thrown, as when the peacock's neck Assumes its proudest tint of amethyst. Embathed in emerald glory ; all the flocks Of ocean are abroad ; like floating foam The sea-gulls rise and fall upon the waves; With long protraded neck the cormorants Wing their fair flight aloft, and round and round The plovers wheel and give their note of joy. It was a day that sent into the heart A summer feeling; even the insect swarms From the dark nooks and corners issued forth, To sport through one day of existence more. The solitary primrose on the bank Seem'd now as if it had no cause to mourn Its bleak autumnal birth ; the rocks and shores, The forests, and the everlasting hills Smiled in the joyful sunshine ; they partook The universal blessing. [Southey.

An English View of American Enterprise.

Amelican papers are remarking on the ab sence of all literary effort in the Crimea, and are therein noting-very much to their own glory-a characteristic between the surroundings of an American and of an English army. The contrast is fair. The self laudation is not unjust. Our readers know that when the Yankees marched into Mexico, they carried with them a printing press, and established a newspaper along the line of invasion. Across prairies, through dangerous passes over mountain ranges, sometimes on mules, oftener on men's shoulders, occasionally in wagonstravelled press, paper, type and ink; editors, contributors and pressmen, fighting, foraging, writing, working onward. Infinite were the uses of the press. It carried orders through the camp. Every morning the soldiers read in it the story of the previous day. It anticipated the gazettes. It disseminated orders of the day. It perpetuated the gossip of the camp; reflected public opinion in the army; taken of a supper of bacon and eggs, Bob made known every want; supplied every information ; exercised, inspired and animated the floor. The first one to notice the 'critter' every heart. Had the Americans been in the Crimea, they would have had daily papers at Balaklava, Eupatoria, Yenikale and Constantinople ; and those papers, reflecting the humors, incidents and life of the camp, would have ranked amongst the best historical documents on the war. As it is, our soldiers in the Crimea are indebted to the London Journals for authentic information of what occurs in the camp itself, and within a mile or two of their own tents. Jonathan is far ahead of us in

ROYAL COURTSHIP. A London correspondent of the Bosion Post says the Queen is troubled about an "affair of the heart" between the Prince Royal and the King of Portugal, now on a visit to the Eng- to order, at the lowest prices, every variety of lish Court.

Not that there is anything objectionable in the latter, either in mind, morals, or good looks, that would render him an undesirable husband or son-in-law, or in the throne he has to fill, which is all an anxious mother could aspire after for one of her four daughters-nor that the queen would not gladly see the Princess Royal well disposed of in marriage-but that the young King is a Roman Catholic, and is thus debarred from allying himself by marriage with an heiress, however distant, of the British crown. Meanwhile the young King has fallen violently in love with the fair girl of fifteen, who is not insensible to his merits, and lets pass no occasion, either by presents, messages or tokens when he is absent, or by tender looks when present, to manifest her sincere affection. They are not, of course, suffered to meet except in the presence of others; but there are numerous occasions during the morning walks and rides, or the steamer trips sentiments of his heart to the object of his pur-a large and well selected stock of suit. It is whispered that amongst the numerous teachers employed to perfect the royal children in the knowledge of the modern lan-gnages, there is one who is a subject of His Majesty, and who is devotedly attached to him, and that through him communications have passed for a long time, which never meet the august scrutiny of the Queen.

An American Rat Dog.

Last Summer, Bob L-crossed the Atlantic to spend a little time and good deal of money in looking at the women and wonders of the world. Among the wonders' which he took along, 'just for the fun of the thing,' was HATS, CAPS, BOOTS, SHOES, BONNETTS, CASa small sized snapping turtle. Having a week's leiusre at London, Bob packed up his traps and went over to Ireland. The first night he spent 'on the sod,' was at a little roadside inn. about fifteen miles from Dublin. Having parwalked into the bar, and placed the turtle on was Mr. Flynn, who kept the house.

"And what do you call that!" 'That is an American rat dog.' "A what ?""

"An American rat dog." 'Musha, go long-and do you call such a spalpeen a dog.'

'I do indeed, and he is worthy of his name.' "Will he fight?"

Astonishing the "Browns."

The Laureate says that we are fools to trust "a tradesman's ware or word," but we hope that we may be permitted to recognise his politeness. The remark is forced from us by observing the exquisite mode in which the West End traders now return us our very small change. Before us lies the sum of two-pence, which, with a bottle of soda-water, we have received from a Pimlico chemist, in return for a six-pence. The "coppers" are enclosed in the envelope, on which is embossed a charming wreath of lillies and roses-the latter colored rosy red-and this legend is intertwined. with the flowers-The change-with Thanks." Can politeness go farther? Echo answers in the affirmative, for we understand that other tradesmen have even blander engravings on their packets. Cne hands you the change, inscribed, 'What a lovely day !' Another with an eye to business, says, 'With hope to see you again,' and a third, 'Would you recommend our articles ?' The Spaniards used to perfume their money. The Englishman does this, and more-he gives perfumed money and tair words. He may cheat, but, even if he does, it is a case of 'stealing and giving odor.'

The School and the Scholar. The school is like the earth in spring time ; it requires merely to be sown. But on that sowing depends, perhaps, the harvest of centuries. The one single word that falls upon the mind of the child may determine something far higher, whose consequences are felt through ages; for the progress of thought is endlessit reckons its prosperity to the thousand gencrations, to the end of days. Therefore, the child is a holy thing, for it bears God's unbroken seal on its torehead. Treat it with all truthfulness and care for care has its rewardif not to-day hereafter-if not for you, for a coming race. Ye are laborers in God's kingdom. But God's kingdom has no fairer symbol upon earth than a child with its innocence -than a youth with his open countenance .-Of such things are the kingdom of Heaven.

Love for the Dead.

The love that survives the tomb, says Irving, is one of the noblest attributes of the soul .-If it has its woes, it has likewise its delights; and when the overwhelming burst of grief is calmed into the gentle tear of recollection. have them taken in the store !' then the sudden anguish and convulsed agony over the present ruins of all we most loved. are softened away into pensive meditations on all that it was in the day of its loveliness.

Who would root such a sorrow from the heart though it may sometimes throw a passing cloud over the bright hour of gaiety, or spread a deeper sadness over the hour of gloom; yet. who would exchange it even for the song of pleasure, or the dust of the dead to which we turn, even from the chamber of the living.

Barney did as desired. The brindle pup purchased from Sheridan was brought in .-The brindle pup took a look at his American relation and then he made a plunge. She caught the brindle pup by the nose.

The brindle pup gave one yell an put for the door. When last seen he was rushing towards Dublin as if he had eight tin cullenders tied to his tail. Whether Flynn gave up the money without getting a shilelah to act as umpire, will be known when the next steamer arrives.

A LUCKY ESCAPE .- The Memphis Appeal says, a physician of that place paid a morning visit recently to one of his patients in the upper end of town, and on entering the room of the sick man the following dialogue took place: "I say, doctor, I've got you cheated this load of poles."

"How ?"

Raising on his elbow and looking acroos the room-"Look there, doctor, at that feller lying there; I got him to take that pill you left me, and it killed him in an hour." The doctor mizzled.

Goon .-- Two gentlemen of opposite politics meeting each other, one inquired the address of some political celebrity, when the other indignantly answered :

"I am proud to say, sir, that I am wholly ignorant of it."

"Oh, you are proud of your ignorance, ch sir ?"

"Yes, I am," replied the beligerant gentleman, "and what then sir ?" "Oh, nothing; only you have a great deal to be proud of, that's all."

NOT TO BE USED ON THE PREMISES .- At fashionable drug store on Chesnut street, a gentleman recently purchased some cigars, and was beginning to smoke one, of them, when his eyes caught a notice-Smoking not allowed in the store.' .
