

THE RAFTSMAN'S JOURNAL.

SIR JOHN FRANKLIN.

The Montreal Herald, of Dec. 24th, contains the following highly interesting and detailed particulars of the journey and discoveries of Messrs. Stewart, Anderson, and others, who recently returned from Montreal Island, near the South of Back River, in the Arctic Ocean—where they obtained evidence of the fate of Sir John Franklin and his comrades.

The party reached the outlet or estuary of the river on the 30th of July, and skirted along its eastern shore as far as Point Beaufort, but found no traces to reward their search. From there they crossed over to Montreal Island, twelve miles distant, lying near the western shore of the estuary; probably, in that crossing, incurring as great peril as any in the gloomy record of Arctic travels, pushing their bark canoes boldly out into the Arctic Ocean, and forcing their way thro' drifting masses of ice seven and eight feet thick. But they were prepared to make any effort to reach the Island, which, as well as Point Aigle, near it, had been the places Dr. Rae understood the Esquimaux to mean when describing where the white party perished in 1850; and they had the melancholy satisfaction of procuring, on that very spot, the fullest possible confirmation of Dr. Rae's report. They also met Esquimaux in that vicinity who had seen the whites, and gave much valuable information. Suffice it to say, that on the Island were discovered the remains of a boat, which had been partially destroyed by the natives for the sake of the wood and the metal fastenings, although there was sufficient left to identify it as belonging to the Franklin Expedition, one fragment of wood (now, as well as some other small relics, in possession of the Hudson's Bay Company at Lachine) having the name "Terror" branded on it, while another has the name of Mr. Stanley (surgeon of the Erebus) cut upon it, this latter being part of a snow shoe, evidently of English manufacture, being made of oak, a species of wood no man accustomed to use snow shoes would ever select for the purpose.

No paper or books, and no human remains, were found; nor was it likely, as four years had elapsed since this tragedy was enacted upon a low sandy beach, exposed to the storms of four Arctic winters; and there is little doubt that either the sea has washed off, or the sand has buried deep, the unfortunates who perished on this spot. The Esquimaux were very friendly, and freely displayed all their treasures obtained from the boat, or found near it, and these consisted principally of the cars, used by them as tent poles, the boat-kettles, the empty preserved meat cases, &c., &c., but no papers, and the natives stated, with every evidence of sincerity, that none had ever been seen or found. Everything portable was secured by Messrs. Anderson and Stewart, and brought back, and are now on the way to Canada; it would be useless to recount them all, but we may mention bar iron, rope with the broad arrow mark on it, oars branded with the government mark; pieces of buffing, remains of a flag, a letter holder, a slip of a mast, &c., all clearly European and all government supplies. Is any thing more wanted?

The weather is described as having been "execrable," constant storms, with ice, snow, rain, sleet, hail, thunder, and whatever else can be conceived that is disagreeable. It is a part of the coast the natives, even, consider uninhabitable, merely visiting it for a short time in summer, when the deer pass that way. On the 14th August, when the expedition commenced its retreat from its coast, the ground was covered with fresh fallen snow, and the ice was forming, in fact; winter had set in.

Few further details of the last moments of the last party have been collected; we may mention one mournful incident reported by an Esquimaux woman, who saw the last man die; he was large and strong, she said, and sat on the sandy beach, his head resting on his hands, and thus the last survivor of Franklin's Expedition yielded up his brave spirit. Messrs. Anderson and Stewart retraced their steps to Great Slave Lake, from whence the latter continued his journey onwards to Red River settlement, and thence by way of the Minnesota Territory to Montreal, where he arrived on Friday evening last, direct from the Arctic Sea, after upwards of five thousand miles travel in open craft, and through uninhabited regions, without a halt. A few facts, taken at random, may serve to bring home to our appreciation what this Northwest expedition accomplished and went through. In 13 months, a day, the Iroquois who were sent from Lachine to form part of the expedition, returned thither, thus performing in one year the same service that Sir George Back got through in three.

For sixty days and nights the party saw no fire, there being no timber on the Great Fish River or Arctic coast; and during those sixty days they traveled incessantly in open craft in a wretched climate, never had dry clothes or slept on dry blankets, and never eat cooked victuals except on rare occasions, when they made a little tea by means of a lamp. This party of sixteen in all, traveled in bark canoes down one of the most turbulent rivers known, even to Northwest voyagers; ventured among the ice on the Arctic sea, and returned to their starting point without meeting with a single accident to person or property—and, vial, performed all that was required of them; and had they gone out four or five years earlier would, no doubt, have been instrumental in saving the lives of a portion of Franklin's party.

One word in conclusion as to the Franklin expedition. The two vessels Erebus and Terror left England in 1845—were last heard of in 1845. They probably tried several passages, but were baffled by the ice; and finally, in 1848, were crushed, probably in Victoria Straits. Most of the crew perished, but one or more boats got off with the survivors, who took all the stores they could collect and traveled southwards towards the Arctic coast, in the hope of reaching some of the Hudson Bay Company's ports. The season of 1849 was probably spent on this dreary journey and renewed in 1850, when they reached the coast at the mouth of Fish river, but in so exhausted a state that they could merely run their boat on the beach and crawl ashore to die. This seems all that is certain, and all that we can ever know, of the fate of the Franklin expedition.

A DARING OUTRAGE was committed some two weeks since at Winchendon, Wisconsin, by a gang of young men upon a Miss Francis B. Bennett and Wm. L. Chatterbox. The young men, instigated by jealousy, entered the house, in the evening, one seized Miss B., threw her over his shoulder and carried her out of the house, chinking her at the same time to prevent her screaming; the others laid hold of the young man, dragged him out some distance, stripped off a part of his clothing, daubed him with black paint, beat him severely, and left him on the ground, bleeding, faint and disabled. Chatterbox was the lady's lover, and the young men, all of whom have been arrested, looked with the green eye of jealousy on their proceedings.

LIGHTNING AND LAMPS OF HEAVEN.—We find the following unique explanation of electrical phenomena in the New York Knickerbocker: "A little girl the idol of a friend of ours, was sitting by the window during a violent thunderstorm, apparently striving to grapple some proposition too strong for her childish mind. Presently a smile of triumph lit up her features, as she exclaimed 'Oh I know what makes the lightning; it's God lighting his lamps, and he is throwing the matches down here.'"

The light of the lamp was dying in the socket, the midnight clock struck heavily a-lot, and its brazen tones sounded loudly on the frozen air; it was the hour when disembodied spirits walk, and when murderers like the stealthy wolf prowl for their prey, the lonely watcher shuddered as he heard a slight noise at the door; big drops stood on his pale brow, the door gently opened, and in came a strange cat!

Col. Rowleson has just discovered among the ruins of ancient Babylon an extensive library—not, indeed, printed on paper, but impressed on baked bricks—containing many and voluminous treatises on astronomy, mathematics, ethnology, and several other most important branches of knowledge. These treatises contain facts and arguments, which in his opinion, will have no small operation on the study of sciences to which they relate, and which throw great light on Biblical history and criticism, and the history of our race.

THE PENNSYLVANIA TELEGRAPH.—ENLARGED FOR THE IMPROVED TERMS. THE CASH SYSTEM ADOPTED.—On and after the first of January, 1855, the PENNSYLVANIA TELEGRAPH, published at Harrisburg, Pa., will be enlarged, and conducted by the undersigned, who will give the best energies to make it worthy of its name and of its friends.

It will commence the new year printed on enlarged type, and the Weekly greatly enlarged in form, and the price will be lower than that of any other paper of its class ever published in the Capital of the State, and PAYMENTS WILL BE REQUIRED STRICTLY IN ADVANCE. No paper will be sent until it is paid for, and all will be discontinued unless the arrears be paid. The TELEGRAPH is published on a double sheet of four columns, during the sessions of the Legislature, and WEEKLY on a double sheet of four columns, the remainder of the year. It will present a condensed summary of the legislative proceedings, all important general laws, as they are passed, and aim to give the current political intelligence of the times in a brief and most reliable manner. In short, the TELEGRAPH is published for the Family and Political Journal, and they consistently appeal to the people of Pennsylvania to sustain their entreaties.

The undersigned will advocate a liberal political policy, and aim to unite those who, though animated by the same common purposes, and looking to the same beneficial results, seem distracted by the conflict of distinctive organizations. It will be a fair and candid expositor of the merits of the various parties, and will not compromise the Constitution, will determine the extension of Human Slavery. It will give a cordial, earnest and independent support to the administration of Gov. FULTON.

TERMS.—Strictly in Advance. The TELEGRAPH will be furnished SEMI-WEEKLY during the sessions of the Legislature, and WEEKLY on a double sheet the remainder of the year, at the following low rates:—THE MONEY IS ALWAYS ON HAND TO ACCOMMODATE THE ORDER:—

Single subscriptions, $2 00
Five copies ($1 50 per copy) 7 50
Ten copies ($1 70 per copy) 17 00
Twenty copies ($1 50 per copy) 30 00
And at the same price ($1 50 per copy) on any number over twenty. This should be made up at once, and the subscription forwarded before the first of January, so that they can commence with the session of the Legislature. All orders must be addressed to

M'CLURE & SELLERS,

THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE, 1855-6.
THE TRIBUNE is now in the middle of its fifteenth year. Vol. XV. of its weekly issue commenced on the 1st of September last. The American public need not be made acquainted with its character or claims to consideration. With but subordinate regard for prudice, policy and popularity, it has aimed to stand for Righteousness, for Truth, for Humanity, against fortified Inim-ity, Fraud and Oppression. There is not a slave-trader on this Continent, he may never read anything but his Bills of sale and notes-payable, who does not know and hate the Tribune; there is not an extensive fabricator of drugged and poisonous Liguors who does not consider it a very dangerous and immoral paper, and wonder why its publication is tolerated in a commercial, cotton-raising City like New-York. The Tribune's Merit is not its popularity, but its honesty and its character of claims to consideration. With but subordinate regard for prudice, policy and popu-<
