

KATY VAT LIFS ON DE BLAIN.

The following parody on Tannahill's universal popular song, "Jesse the Flower of Dunblain," was written, it is thought, by the Hon. James M. Porter, of Easton. It is one of the best of its kind. De sun was gone down shoot point the blue mountains. Und let de tank night to come on us again. Ven I shambled along mongst de schwamps and de fountains. To see vone my Katy vat lifs on de blain.

How schweet is to lilly, mit its prawn yellow plossom; 'ud so is to beauty, all cofered mit green; 'ud so is to mear, all schlicks in mine posom, Like schweet little Katy vat lifs on de blain.

She's as fresh as any, shunt like her aunt Chiny. She's a milder high lart, not yet foolish nor vain; 'ud he's a great filin, midout any feelin. Dat would hurt vone schweet Katy vat lifs on de blain.

My tats was like noting dill I met mit mine Katy; All dem tings in de town dey was nonsense and vain. I didn't see a gall I would call my dear lady. Till I met little Katy vat lifs on de blain.

I ton't care how high I might get in de nation. From all dem high places I would get de rain. 'ud I was in de nation, I would have a great station. Ven I couldn't have Katy vat lifs on de blain.

A LADY ON BEARDS.—A fair correspondent of the Home Journal has the following sensible remarks on the wholesome habit of wearing the beard, which has lately come into fashion:—

"It is astonishing what change a few years has wrought in regard to shaving. Once, every body shaved, but now, I much mistake, if to shave, a question suggested by his morning toilet. Alas for the razor-strop-man. His occupation is nearly gone. I hope he will succeed in finding another, for the present generation will be a bearded race.

"I was quite interested last winter in reading a 'Natural History of the Human Species,' by Lieutenant-Colonel Charles H. Smith, in which he states that the bearded races are the conquering races. For this reason the beardless races are averse to the union with them. This aversion he states to be the result of experience, proving the superior activity of those who have sprung from such races. Jenghis, Timur and Nadir Shah, were directly, or in their ancestry, descended from Caucasian men, and hence, also, the jealous exclusion of European women from China. The progressive nations, he tells us, are a bearded and hairy race. Samson's strength lay in his hair. Beret of that his mighty power was gone.—The lion is the king of the forest. How much of his proud beauty he owes to his magnificent mane. Shave him, and he is king no longer.

"I cannot imagine why a beard is given to man, unless it is to try his patience, if he is to spend his time in a daily cutting it off, as it daily asserts its right to a manifested existence. The beard is an emblem of manly power and dignity, and is certainly an element of manly beauty. The Father of the Faithful and all the old Patriarchs and Prophets wore a beard; so did the Saviour, when he dwelt among the hills of Judea. In fact, too, most of the venerable divines who have transmitted to us their schemes of theology. It is a modern innovation to shave off the whole beard. It was not common before the commencement of the last century. Moses forbade the Jews to mar the corners of the beard, and David, when his Embassadors were insulted by Haman, ordered that each of their beards, permitted them to tarry at Jericho till their beards had grown.

"While the beard, properly worn, is an ornament, it is sometimes rendered hideous by the manner in which it is trimmed. A round mass of bristles on the chin is never becoming, yet sometimes thin-checked, long-faceted gentlemen elongate their countenances in this way; often these tufts impart a low, animal expression; they never confer dignity nor beauty. Some few are greatly improved by full whiskers, others by a moustache. Some look best with the beard trimmed rather close. It requires an artist's eye to decide on what is most becoming. Nature leaves a varying outline to the beard which is more perfect than any semi-circle cut by the razor.

"Perhaps you may think I have wandered from my proper sphere in writing about beards. I had no idea of doing so when I commenced this letter; you must charge it all to the snow storm. I must leave the subject of ladies' dress for another day. Yours, &c., 'ANNA HOPE.'"

GIVE THEM A TRIAL.—SILVER'S PLASTIC PAINTS, CHEAP, DURABLE AND PROTECTIVE. WEATHER & FIRE-PROOF. These Paints will stand any climate, without crack or blister, and when exposed, they will not be injured by fire, and will protect the wood from decay, and iron and other metals from rust and corrosion. They differ essentially from the so-called Mineral Paints of the day, which are principally Ocher, and Clay, and are entirely worthless. SILVER'S Plastic Paints are purely METALLIC, containing no Alum or Clay. They are levigated finely, mix readily with Linseed Oil, and are perfectly drying, and flow under the brush as freest as the best White Lead, and excel all others in body or covering properties, one pound of which will cover as much as two-thirds of the surface of a wall. There are six distinct colors: Olive, Light Brown, Light Chocolate, Black, Dark Do., Deep Do. All equally valuable as a preservative, and particularly adapted to painting the outside of BUILDINGS, FENCES, STEAMBOATS, CARS, TIN AND IRON WORKS. REMEMBER! Exposure hardens and increases the durability of these PAINTS. DIRECTIONS.—Mix with pure Linseed Oil, thickly as possible, as the Paint is the best 'protecting body,' and the oil simply the medium, or agent in its use. FRENCH & RICHARDS, GENERAL WHOLESALE AGENTS, N. W. Corner Third and Market Streets, PHILADELPHIA. For sale, Wholesale and Retail, Dry and Grocers in Oil, by SAM'L BERLIN, Tyrone City, Pa. THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE, 1855.—The Tribune is now in the middle of its fourteenth year. Vol. XV. of its weekly issue commenced on the 1st of September last. The American public need not be made acquainted with a character of the Tribune, which has long been a subordinate regard for prudence, policy and popularity. It has aimed to stand for Righteousness, for Truth, for Humanity, against Fortified Iniquity, Fraud and Oppression. There is not a slave-trader, a land speculator, a monopolist, a man who reads anything but his bills of sale and notes-payable, who does not know and hate the Tribune. There is not an extensive fabricator of drugged and poisonous Liquors, who does not know that a weekly publication is tolerated in a commercial, cotton-buying City like New-York. The Tribune has never been a party paper, and never has been anything but a public journal, devoted to the interests of the people, and to the promotion of human liberty. It may have done temporary injustice to individuals, but it has never been unfaithful to Principle, nor deaf to the cries of the wronged and suffering. In its columns the advocates of the progress of the human race, contemplating the melioration of human woe, especially those of the voiceless and down-trodden, have ever found audience and hospitality; while the advocates of the slave trade, and of the sale of human beings, have ever found the Tribune a most deadly and accurate enemy. The Tribune has given publicity to the public opinion from the day of its origin. It means of serving the public have been augmented in proportion. Instead of a single editor, with one or two assistants, it has now a staff of writers, each fitted by special acquaintance and experience for the particular line of discussion to which his pen is devoted; the daily amount of material given more than quadruples that of its first issue. The Tribune's correspondents embrace the globe, transmitting early and intelligent narrations of whatever is most worthy of attention; while Politics, Legislation, Literature, Science, and the progress of the human race, are all subjects which it touches. Theology alone excepted—finds here the freest and most searching discussion.

Attended by profound connection to the Independent policy, the Tribune has been a champion of Intercommunication whose most conspicuous champion through the last half-century was Henry Clay—an imbued, moreover, with the spirit of freedom, whose policy was to secure peace, and to the much wronged Aborigines of this Continent, and of Peace with all which will follow the name of Whig, the Tribune, sincerely surrendering to the just and proper independence of operated as a party paper, and to the Whig party, as its vitality was preserved. When in 1850-2 an attempt was made to interpolate slave-hunting into its creed, we sternly resisted that imposition; when, at the close of the last Presidential canvass, it was seen that a large portion of the Whig party preferred to defeat their own party rather than allow its Anti-Slavery wing to share its triumph, even under a conservative Chief of a Pro-Slavery platform, we saw and proclaimed that the Whig party was no more. Subsequent events, including the rise and culmination of the Know Nothing conspiracy, and the speedy absorption therein of the whole fabric of the Whig party, have confirmed our unshaking anticipations. With no sickly lamentations, therefore, for the inevitably bygone, but with hope and joy, and sympathy, and words of cheer, have we hailed the beginning of a new era, and the progress of the LIBERAL movement which impelled by the perfidious violation of the Missouri Compact, and stimulated by the astounding outrages whereof the rights of the Slave States are the cause, by the victims—repeated and utter violation of their elections by an armed mob collected by conspiracy and hurried suddenly upon them from the border counties of the neighboring Slave State, is destined to sweep away the Whig party, and to unite the true hearts and strong arms of the free-soiled in one mighty effort to confine the scourge and scandal of our country within the limits of the States which unwisely granted it. The success of this effort, the success of the Tribune will be sternly devoted; while the TEMPERANCE REFORM, including the entire suppression of the traffic in intoxicating beverages, will find in it, as heretofore, an only indirect pecuniary advantage. Commencing as a daily fold sheet of moderate size, and with scarcely a shadow of patronage, the Tribune is now issued in quarto form Daily (three distinct editions), Semi-Weekly, and Weekly, on a sheet of 34 columns, eight ample pages of six columns each. Its circulation has steadily grown from nothing to the following aggregate: Daily issues, eve and morn: 29,500 copies. Semi-Weekly: 14,175 Weekly: 136,500 California edition: 6,000

TOTAL: 186,175 copies. We believe no other newspaper in the world has a subscription list over half so large as this; and no periodical of any sort can rival it. And while its extreme cheapness rendering an increase of paying readers only in direct pecuniary advantage to us, has doubtless largely swelled its subscriptions list, it would be absurdity not to perceive in this unprecedented patronage some evidence of public approval. TERMS.—The Tribune employs no traveling agents and sends out no papers on trust. If it is not stopped when the term paid for expires, and the subscriber does not choose further to pay for it, we resort to legal process to compel him. The Weekly, we mean to stop every paper on the expiration of the advance payment, awaiting a fresh remittance from the subscriber. If none comes the account is closed. We pay no local agents—when no money is paid to any one, the paper cannot trust him to mail or otherwise send it to us; once mailed, its safety is at our risk, and a serious risk it often proves; but are grateful to every one who deems it a good object to obtain and forward the names and money of his friends and neighbors. Our terms invariably are—for the DAILY TRIBUNE, one copy, 86 per annum SEMI-WEEKLY, $3; 2 copies for $5; 5 for $11.25. WEEKLY, $2; copies for $5; 5 for $5. 10 for $12. 20 copies for $20. Copies for $25. 50 for $45. $1 each subscriber. Additions may at all times be made to a club at the price paid by those already in it. GREELEY & McCLURT, Nov. 21, No. 184 Nassau St., New-York.

There are many truisms in the world. Take the following as a sample in every-day life:—One new bonnet will make a young lady feel happy—very. One of the same kind will make a whole neighborhood. One good horse will disturb a whole assembly. One bad novel will waste whole reams of good paper. One drop of oil will stop a hideous noise. One jolly row will turn all the inhabitants of a street out of doors. One pretty girl will make a dozen plain girls unhappy for an entire evening. One sign will set thirty people talking.

Old Babies.—Dr. Oppert, of France, has spent two years on the site of Old Babylon, examining the cuneiform inscriptions on the bricks and slates. He states that this famous old city, in the days of its grandeur and power, covered rather more than an area of 200 square miles, being about two and a half more than the site of London. But all this space was not inhabited, there being immense fields to supply the city with corn and pasture in case of siege.

A friend just returned from abroad says he once found two African custom officers endeavoring to make out his name from his traveling trunk. One called while the other wrote. They had got it 'Mr. Varranti Soliezer.' The trunk was marked 'Warranted Soliezer's.'
