THE RAFTSMAN'S JOURNAL.

For the "Raftsman's Journal." THE RED SHIRTS. BY J. P. W., SR.

Ye are noble boys, ye Red Shirts, Ye Raftsmen of the mountains. Ye fell the stately pine trees, That grow among the fountains. Ye face the wintry snow-storm. With axe upon your shoulder, And hew till ye are toil-worn, Anaid the wind-storm colder.

Ye are noble boys, ye Red Shirts. While the snows the mountains cover, And the Ice-King reigns with rigor, Ye turn the timbers over. And with horses and with sledges, Ye drag them to the river, And ye toil and strain and labor. Until the heart is made to quiver.

Te are noble boys, ye Red Shirts; When Winter's blasts are over, Ye raft your gathered timber, Till the water you do cover : And ye build the neat board platform, And heap the sounding shingle, And then ye fondly fancy You hear the cagles jingle.

Ye are noble boys, ye Red Shirts, ve seen you on the river. When the chilling wind and rain storm Made your hardy bodies shiver. Ye rowed the raft in safety Through the rocks and mountain bending, And shutes, and dams, and riffles, Till your toil had made an ending. CLEARFIELD, PA., APRIL, 1856.

"Scolorso is the pepper of matrimony and the ladies are the pepper-boxes!" So, says an old fogy bachelor. We would give his name but are afraid that the peace of his neighborhood might be disturbed by the noise of a broom handle.

LOVELY WOMAN .- There is a woman in Cincinnati who keeps a grocery, attends faithfully to a fat pair of twins, does her own housework, and yet finds time to give her lazy husband a sound thrashing three or four times a week.

MR. JAYCOCKS changed his boarding house the other day, because his landlord would persist in bringing sausages home in his hat. Mr. Doyle left because Mrs. Slocum objected to his driving nails in the bureau to hang his boots on.

AN IRISH ATTORNEY, who died poor was baried by a shilling subscription. Some one -sked Curran for his shilling. "For what ?" he exclaimed. "To bury an attorney."-"Here, take this pound note, and bury twenty of them at a shilling a head."
