The cans and jars are constructed with a channel around the mouth, near the top, into which the cover fits loosely. This channel is filled with a very adhesive cement, propared for the purpose and allowed to harden. In order to seal the vesand allowed to harden. In order to send the ves-sel hermetically, it is only necessary to heat the cover slaghtly, and press it into place. It may be opened with as much case as it is closed, by slight-ly warming the top. The ordinary tin cans. used for the same purpose for which this is intended, cannot be closed, as is well known without the aid of a tinner; are difficult to open, and are generally so much injured in opening as to be useless for future service. future service.
