CLEARFIELD, PA., JULY 29, 1857.

ATTACKED BY A PANTHER .- On last Wednesday, the 22d inst., towards evening, Mr. Jacob Koonts, of Goshen township, started on the Karthaus pike, in the direction of Caledonia. on horseback, in search of his cows, which he found about 6 miles from home. Night overtook him on his return, and when within about 3 miles of his house, a panther sprang out of the woods upon the bell cow and threw her down in the road. Mr. K.'s horse frightened and ran a short distance, during which time the cattle were in a terrible uproar. It was very dark, and Mr. Koontz could not see all the performances, but by some means the cow managed to escape, without any particular damage. The "varmint," however, left a fair impression of its paws, which it had muddled, on the cow's side. He is an old offender that has been prowling about for several years, and a pursuit was projected for the next morning, but we have not learned whether it was carried into effect.

CAPT. DAN. WEAVER, of the Mansion House, did a rather pi-ous act one day last week. As we were about passing his door, he invited us to take dinner, adding, by way of parenthesis. that he had some fresh "huckleberry pies." Well-if we didn't do ample justice to the dinner in general, and the pies in particular, then there is no need trying to do so. The Capt. is a sprince of good fellows," and keeps an excellent hotel.

PATAL ACCIDENT .- On last Thurday, a man named Joseph Paine was felling a tree in the neighborhood of David Tyler, Esq., of Huston township, when the top struck another tree and broke off. Flying back, it struck Mr. Paine on the forehead with such force as to to explain, he said, "facts are stubborn things " fracture his skull, and cause the blood to ooze from his nostrils and eves every time he breathed. He died in the course of the day.

Bungtany .- On last Thursday night, the store of James S. Williams, in Philipsburg, we learn, was entered and goods stolen therefrom to the value of about $130. Among the goods taken were two silver watches, several at fifteen. pieces of muslin, calico, &c. The thief has thus far eluded apprehension.

"A CHIEL AMANG YE TAKIN' NOTES."

"DIEDRICH," a correspondent of the Somerset Herald & Whig, has recently been trayeling through our region of country, and gives the following sketch of his trip from Tyrone to Clearfield.

"We slept at Tyrone. The next morning we were pleased to see an old-fashioned, four horse coach ready to convey us over another mountain to Clearfield. The coach looked like an old acquaintance; we entered it on the best of terms; but the road was bad, so bad, indeed, that the coach lost all self-command, and went jumping and pitching at a desperate rate, and without the least regard for the feelings of seventeen men, women and children that were in and upon it. Indeed, it became so familiar with us, and took so many privilegos, that we were all perfectly satisfied before the journey was half completed, to cut its friendship and bid it adieu forever.

"The country through which we passed is very mountainous, and the inhabitants sparce. The sell is shallow, so shallow that one or two crops are said to exhaust its native productiveness, and render manuring and careful culture necessary. It has always been a wonder to me, how men can settle down in this wild, mountainous country, and exhaust their energies and their trength in clearing away these dense forests of pine, hemlock and laurel; in ploughing among pine stumps, rocks and roots, with no other prospect than that of reaping a crop too scanty to furnish themselves and their families with bread, and especially is it a wonder, when it is known that these same men, by going a few days ride farther west, can obtain land at half the cost of their own, cleared of trees, slumps, and stones, with a soil so deep and productive that an ordinary lifetime is too short to exhaust it. This country, so destructive to energy and human comfort, is nevertheless beautifully wild and remantic. The eye rests with pleasure upon the blue mountains rolling along the distant skies, and upon the dark green foliage of the hemlock, laurel and pine. The surface in many places is complefely covered with mosses, mountain-tea, and other winter-greens; the low laurel and honey suckle bloom beautifully just above the mossy carpeting; above these is the high laurel; and out of this laurel thicket the dark trunks of the hemlock and white pine rise majestically to the height of a common tree and then reach out their branches, lapping one upen another high up in the air, and forming a leafy arch. The sight is beautiful. As far as the eye can penetrate, these dark trunks rise up from the moss clad earth like round columns and sustain the arch of foliage, forming a grand temple of the Druids. Merging from this dense forest, we came suddenly upon the small village of Philipsburg, where we rested and took refreshment.

"Philipsburg, a small village surrounded with forests of pine, takes its name from its proprietor. Mr. Philips was an Englishman of those countries appear to have been previously enjoyment. The wild and romantic aspect of this country, together with its mineral resour-ces, pleased his fancy, and promised fair to increase his wealth. Having purchased a large tract of land, he laid out the village, established large from works, and built himself a beautiful dwelling on a hill covered with primeval forest, which he improved to suit his taste. He kept his horses and his hounds, and found much enjoyment in the chase. He lived in his enterprise proved a failure, and Mr. Philips is now no more yet his beautiful dwelling still stands a monument to his memory, and the village associates his name with the pioneers of our country, and will hand it down to pos-

The old coach resumed its rocking, pitching and jolting over a very bad road, through dense torests and half cultivated fields. The crops we saw were as good as could be expected of a soil so shallow and so hard to cultivate. Wheat, eve and oats look very well, but town of Charffeld. The site of the town is almost level, with the young Susquehanna on of all honest men for the determination he has and opening drains along the curbs. On Sunday we went to the Episcopal Church and heard a sermon on that great subject: "What shall a man give in exchange for his soul."

In Minnesota, the Republican majority of the Constitutional Convention still continues in permanent session, day and night, to keep possession of the Legislative Hall. On the 22d inst , twenty children were poisoned in Cincinnati by eating lozenges which had been scattered along the street by a man and two boys. One of the children died. The lozenges were analyzed and found to contain arsenic, and it seems are designed to destroy rats. The perpetrator of this horrible attempt on life is a German, and was drunk at the time.

THE CONTESTED ELECTION CASE between Messrs. Mann and Cassidy, in the Philadelphia Court, has at last been decided in favor of Mr. for District Attorney. Mr. L. was a native of this vicinity, and son of the late Abm. Leonard, of Bradford tp. About the year 1830 he left his fathers house, and for a short time acting as clerk in a relatives store in Pittsburg; he joined a party of men for the purpose of crossing the Rocky mountains, exploring the Columbia river and the Pacific coast, there to trade. trap and barter with the Indians and Spaniards of those remote regions, and if possible to find out more of the realities that have since been discovered in that golden quarter, of which a pretty fair narrative is familiar to all the youth of our coun-ty, as he sketched off one, which was published during his short visit home in 1835 or again bidding his friends adieu, he went introductely to the spot where he died, having selected that point—then a wilderness, far beyond any habitation—on his way back from the mountains, as the scene of his future operations. Here he soon found the tide of emigration to follow, and of course he quickly realized the reward of an enterprising and sagacious mind, in the rapid increase and value of his possessions; as a town, warehower and wharf and Lonard's landing, soon became realities. Mr. L. was a widower, and now leaves but an only son to cherish his memory. All who remember him in his youth admired him for his social qualities, his keenness of perception, and the nobleness of his character generally.

BY AUTHORITY. RESOLUTION PROPOSING AMEND-

OF THE COMMONWEALTH. Resolved, by the Senate and House of Represen tatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met: That the following amondments are proposed to the constitution of the com-monwealth, in accordance with the provisions of the tenth article thereof.

FIRST AMENDMENT. There shall be an additional article to said constitution to be designated as article eleven, as fol-

OF PUBLIC DEETS. Section 1. The State may contract debts, to supply casual deficits or failures in revenues, or to meet expenses not otherwise provided for; but the aggregate amount of such debts direct and contingent, whether contracted by virtue of one or more acts of the general assembly, or at different periods of time, shall never exceed seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and the money arising from the creation of such debts, shall be applied to the purpose for which it was obtained, or to re-pay the debts so contracted, and to no other pur-Pose whatewakened ion to the above limited pow-er, the State may contract debts to repel invasion. suppress insurrection, defend the State in war, or to redeem the present outstanding indebtedness of the State - but the money arising from the contracting of such dobts, shall be applied to the pur-pose for which it was raised, or to repay such dobts, and to no other purpose whatever. Section 3. Except the debts above specified, in sections one and two of this article, no debt whatever shall be created by, or on behalf of the State Section 4. To provide for the payment of the present debt, and any additional debt contracted as aforesaid, the legislature shall, at its first ses sion, after the adoption of this amendment, ereate a sinking fund, which shall be sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt, and annually to reduce the principal thereof by a sum not lethan two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; which sinking fund shall consist of the net annual income of the public works, from time to time owned by the State, or the proceeds of the sale of the same, or any part thereof, and of the income or proceeds of sale of stocks owned by the State, together with other funds, or resources, that may be designated by law. The said sinking fund may be increased, from time to time, by assigning to it any part of the taxes, or other revenues of the State, not required for the ordinary and current expenses of government, and unless in case of war. invasion or insurrection, no part of the said sinking fund shall be used or applied otherwise than in extinguishment of the public debt, until the amount of such debt is reduced below the sum of five millions of dollars.

SECTION 5. The credit of the commonwealth shall not in any manner, or event, be pledged, or loaned to, any individual, company, corporation or association; nor shall the commonwealth hereafter become a joint owner, or stockholder, in any company, association, or corporation.

Secretor 6. The commonwealth shall not assumthe debt, or any part thereof, of any county, city, borough, or township; or of any corporation, or association; unless such debt shall have been contracted to enable the State to repel invasion, suppress domestic insurrection, defend itself in time of war, or to assist the State in the discharge of any portion of its present indebtedness Section 7. The legislature shall not authorize any county, city, borough, township, or incorpora-ted district. By virtue of a vote of its citizens, or otherwise, to become a stockholder in any company, association, or corporation; or to obtain money for, or loan its credit to, any corporation, associasecond AMENDMENT.

There shall be an additional article to said cor stitution, to be designated as article XII., as fol-

OF NEW COUNTIES No county shall be divided by a line cutting off over one-tenth of its population, (either to form a new county or otherwise.) without the express assent of such county, by a vote of the electors thereof; nor shall any new county be established, containing less than four hundred square miles.

THIRD AMENDMENT. From section two of the first article of the constitution, strike out the words, "of the city of Philadelphia, and of each county respectively; from section five, same article, strike out the words. "of Philadelphia and of the several counties;" from section seven, same article, strike out the words, neither the city of Philadelphia nor any." and insert in lieu thereof the words, 'and no strike out section four, same article, and in lieu thereof insert the following: Section 4. In the year one thousand eight hun dred and sixty-four, and in every seventh year thereafter, representatives to the number of one hundred, shall be apportioned and distributed equally, throughout the state, by districts, in pro-portion to the number of taxable inhabitants in the several parts thereof; except that any county containing at least three thousand five hundred taxables, may be allowed a separate representation; but no more than three counties joined, and no county shall be divided, in the formation of a district. Any city containing a suffi-cient number of taxables to entitle it to at least -two representatives, shall have a separate repre-sentation assigned it and shall be divided into convenient districts of contiguous territory, of equal taxable population as near as may be, each of which districts shall elect one representative."

At the end of section seven, same article, insert these words, "the city of Philadelphia shall be divided into single senatorial districts, of contign ous territory as nearly equal in taxable population as possible; but no ward shall be divided in the rmation thereof."

The legislature, at its first session, after the adoption of this amendment, shall divide the city of Philadelphia into senatorial and representative districts, in the manner above provided; such districts to remain unchanged until the apportionment in the year one thousand eight hundred and

FOURTH AMENDMENT. There shall be an additional section to the first article of said constitution, which shall be numbered and read as follows:

Secrion 26. The legislature shall have the power to alter, revoke, or annul any charter of incor-poration hereafter conferred by, or under, any special, or general law, whenever in their opinion it may be injurious to the citizens of the common wealth; in such manner, however, that no injus tice shall be done to the corporators.

IN SENATE, March 27, 1857. Resolved, That this resolution pass. On the first amendment, yeas 24, nays 7; on the second amendment, yeas 23, nays 8; on the third amend-ment, yeas 24, nays 4; on the fourth amendment, yeas 23, navs 4.
