SELECT SCHOOL -- We direct the attention of the public to the advertisement of Mr. J. Buchanan, who proposes to open a school for youth, on the 12th day of October. Mr. Buchannn, we have every reason to believe, is a gentleman in every way well qualified to conduct a school of the higher grade, and we trust he will be liberally patronized by our citizens.

DRAMA OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION. BY CYRUS JEFFRIES, M. D .- Published by Wm. Hoover, at $1,00 plain, $1,25 gilt cloth, and $1,50 fancy binding. The author of this work has taken the principal historical facts of the Revolutionary War, and has dramatized them. Much intimate knowledge of the history of our country, a keen perceptiion of the difficulties, dangers and hardships connected with the struggle for our National Independence. and an unmistakeable facility of versification, are alike displayed by the writer in this volume. The interest of the narrative in many places becomes intense, and carries the reader fields and the porsonal efforts of the brave men who pledged "their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors," to achieve the inharlance of liberty which we now enjoy. The book cannot fail to become popular, and we have no doubt, one of the standard works of the age. We commend it to the public.

KANSAS papers to the 12th instant represent that the resolution of the Free State men to vote, if permitted, at the pending Territorial Election, seems now almost unanimous. It is hoped few will be repelled by their natural repugnance to paying the tax imposed upon them by the Border Ruflian usurpers. The "National Democracy" are making desperate exertions and will inevitably have some thousands of Missourians over the border on the day of election. Whether these shall vote or not, depends on the facilities for voting which shall then be found to exist. At heavenworth and Lawrence there is not much of that sort of thing to be apprehended; but at other points, where the settlers are few and in good part clavery men, they will have little trouble to do as they please.

If there are any focle not yet used up who want to luxuriate on unsavo y mule steaks and horse carrion, and lie for weeks with a shattered ankle unattended and unfed in a swampy chapparal, now is their chance. Don't all speak at once! Walker is out in a new manifesto, purporting to prove that he did not purpose the estabnent of Slavery in Nicaragua until observation and study convinced him that "the peculiar institution" was needed to develop the resources of that country. Unluckily for him however, all the arguments he adduces in favor of Slavery in Nicaragua are 1 ased on alleged tacts in the history of Hayti, Jamalea &c., which were just as well known to him and as are both .- N. Again, says the Tribune, we are compelled o record one of those terrible marine disasters which, from the immense loss of human life they involve, seem peculiar to the age in which we live. After much anxiety, our painful doubts are changed to a tragic certainty. The steamer Central America foundered at sea on the evening of the 12th inst. Of all her officers, only one survives. Of 525 passengers, only about 100 are at this writing known to be saved. It is impossible, until we obtain accurate lists of the passengers and of the saved, to estimate the loss of human life. Secondary, of course, in importance to this, is the loss of treasure, which will amount to $1,500,000. We are not yet sufficiently informed of the de tails and particulars of this event to say whether or not those who were intrusted with the custody of so many lives did their whole duty. and are wholly guiltless of criminal neglect. The fact that so many officers were lost would seem to indicate that they were faithful to their trust and stuck by the ship to the last. The Central America is said-though we have heard grave doubts expressed on the subjectto have been in excellent order, and in every respect stannch and seaworthy. The storm in which she foundered was one of the severest of a season nausually perilous to navigation, and we trust it may be satisfactorily proved that this was one of those accidents which it is impossible for human reason, skill and foresight to prevent.
