When the hour for the performance arrived, the audience fastened their eyes upon the opening through which the Ring-master accompanied by Mr. Merryman, is wont to make his entrance previous to the Grand Entree with which all well regulated circuses commence. Imagine their surprise when, instead of the Master and Clown, there appeared before them a middle aged gentleman, dressed in a full suit of black broad-cloth, slightly bald on the top of the head and wearing gold

This preacher-like person advanced to the centre of the circle, and exclaimed in a loud but respectful voice:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I'm a man by the name of Robert Ridgely, formerly of a place called Richmond X Roads. This here circus stopped at Richmond X Roads, and the bad whiskey there made the circus men, wemen, and children sick excepting myself. They held up pretty well until they got here, when they all broke down, and I'm obliged to play the whole circus myself, and I'm going to do it."

Without another word, Mr. Ridgely made bow and disappeared. In less than two minutes he returned leading the Grand Entree. consisting of eight horses and one rider. So admirably trained were the horses, and so accustomed to the performance, that with the assistance of a few oaths and gestures from Mr. Ridgely they performed all the various and difficult evolutions without a single blunder, exciting great surprise and pleasure in the audience.

Scarcely had the last horse disappeared bebind the curtain ere Mr. Ridgely returned in the costume of the clown, and cracked the regular role of circus jokes with an imaginary ringmaster. Retiring for a moment, he soon came forth as a sailor, and went through with the whole performance admirably well, not forgetting to stop occasionally and jump down from his horse and take up the clown and ring master's parts where he had left off. Next he played the Two Horse act, and played it well. Next the Indian-admirably done. When he alighted from the horse, and pretending to receive a severe cut on the b-b-breast from the imaginary ring-master, clapped the palm of his hand to the wounded part, the effect was electrical-the whole house roared.

So he went on with the four horse act, the bare back act, the India-rubber man, the canon ball man, the tight rope performance, the ground and lofty tumbling, and indeed every part belonging to the regular circus role; all the time keeping up a running fire of jokes with the invisible ring master, and eliciting a continuously increasing amount of applause. He also seng two comic songs, both of which were rapturously encored. He also danced and most reasonable terms.

JOHN S. HOYT, the Highland fling and a Virginia break down.

It was taken for granted that the part of taken in exchange for work. questrienne, would not be attempted. But M'lle. Eugeine Duprez, the great Parisian Ethe versatile and daring Ridgely, like the counto eat or rather to play through the entire bill.

When he came out in "low neck and short sleeves," very brief petticoat, and flesh colored stockinet, and commenced smiling and kissing his hand to the audience, as he rode round the ring, the excitement was beyond anything in the history of circuses. Four fitths of the audience went into such convulsions of laughter that many of them rolled off the benches to the ground and struggled there in uncontrolable writhings of amusement. M'lle. Duprez Ridgely's legs, we are bound to say, were very creditable legs, and displayed themselves very freely. This was decidedly the great hit of the evening.

Mr. Ridgely's performances concluded with the exhibition of his pet elephants, named respectively Gizzard and Charles Jeems. Bringing these in under his arms, he placed them on the ground, and then made them stand on their heads, tarn summersaults, dance jigs, and pick his pocket.

At the end of the entertainment, Mr. Ridge ly thanked the crowd for their patronage, and invited them to come again to-morrow evening, and to come early, as he was in the habit with emphasis that he meant to keep a pitchin' in the ring and meant to keep the ring.

Pirates still swarm in the waters of the China Seas. The schooner Heather Bell, on her way from Macao to Hong Kong, was attacked by three pirate junks off Castlepeak, and the master and crew murdered. One Chinese es- ular delivery, past-paid. caped and brought the news to Hong Kong. A British gunboat was sent in search, and succeeded in capturing seven juaks. One hundred pirates made their escape, eighty were drowned, and seventy captured.

"Children and fools," says an old adage "always tell the truth." "Mother sent me." said a little girl to a neighbor, "to come and ask you to take tea with her this evening." "Did she say at what time, my dear?" "No, ma'am; she only said she would ask you, and then the thing would be off her mind; that's all she said."
