"Like an angel on the earth." Where is May? Where is May? I hear not her voice, As the voice of the lark ringing clear. And her song never bids now my weary heart rejoice Nor her step ever sounds on my ear.

She was good-she was pure; she was ours-our And her eyes beamed the love of her heart; But, 0, why do I sigh as I'm sitting here alone? Tell me, why, bitter tears, do ye start?

Still the birds sing their songs as they e'er have And we list to their evening lays; And the choir in the church—ah! we miss the voice of one, As the hymn of our worship we raise

Where is May? Where is May? Where is May, our own, While her eyes beam the love of her heart? Why. O. why do I sigh as I'm sitting here alone?

Tell me why, scalding tears, do ye start? She is gone-she is gone to her long, long home; And we made her a grave on the hill,

Where the birds sweetly sing, and the wild flow By the side of the murmuring rill.

While the sun through the trees sheds his last feint ray.

And the winds softly sigh as her heart.

And my faith takes a glimpse of the Resurrection day, Tell me why, bitter tears, do ye start?

IN FAVOR OF FAT MEAT .- Dr. Dixon, in a late number of the Scalpel, in an article on "Diet," assumes that the "use of oil would decrease the victims of consumption nine-tenths, and this is the whole secret of cod liver oil. The following is a summary of observations on this subject, made by Dr. Hooker:

1. Of all the persons between the ages of fifteen and twenty-two years, more than onefifth cannot eat fat meat.

2. Of persons at the age of forty-five, all excepting less than one in fifty habitually use fat meat-

3. Of persons who, between the ages of fifteen and twenty-two, avoid fat meat, a few acquire an appetite for it, and live to a good old age, while the greater portion die with phthisic before thirty-five.

4. Of persons dying with phthisic between the age of twelve and forty-five, nine-tenths, at least, have never used fat meat.

Most individuals who avoid fat mest also use little butter or oily gravies, though many compensate for this want, in part at least, by a free use of those articles, and also milk, eggs, and saccharine substances. But they constitute an imperfect substitute for fat meat, without which, sooner or later, the body is almost sure to show the effects of deficient ca-

Notwithstanding the high authority from which the above emanates, we believe there is too much fat meat, grease, &c., as a general thing, used in this country. In the colder latitudes, a larger quantity of oleaginous food is required to keep up the heat of the body, than in the warmer ones. It depends mainly therefore, upon where you are living, whether you should use much or little fat meat-tho' we admit that it will not do to abstain from It entirely anywhere.

COMPARATIVE VALUE OF ROOTS FOR COWS .-A writer in the Connecticut State Agricultural Transactions gives, from a careful experience in winter feeding of milch cows, his judgment of the comparative value of roots. Carrots promote the richest milk; sugar beets are next best; potatoes follow, and turnips as to quantity. They were compared as fed. pound for pound. Carrots he thinks best for small families, where they desire but a small quantity of milk, but of the richest quality, and a fat, sleek-looking cow. Turnips are the best when a large quantity, and not quality, is Tonatoes are benefitted by shorlening in. Three-fourths of the mature fruit is produced upon a small part of the vine nearest to the root, say one-third or one-fourth of its length. It is recommended to stop the further development of vines after a fair supply of fruit is set, by clipping off the vines growing beyond. The clipping should not be carried too far, as a supply of foliage is required to gather food from the air. One of our most successful cultivators makes it a rule to let no vine extend beyond four feet from its root .- Ex.

TA man in Ohio lately cut down a mul berry tree and split it, and in the heart of it found a black snake. The wood was sound where the snake was lying, not room enough length, blind, and had no use of itself, except its head.

"Now, spos'n you was to be turned into an animal," said Jim, "what would you like to be, Lill !" "Oh, I would like to be a lion," replied Bill, "because he's so-" "On no, don't be a lion, Bill," intercupted little Tom, who had recently had some painful experience at admirable stories are more extensively copied by school, "be a wasp, and then you can sting the schoolmaster!"

Young ladies should not write poetical love letters. It is dangerous. Such a one was written to a Kentucky beau, not long since. which so affected him that he stole a horse to go and see the writer, and got in jail to pay for getting in love with a poetess.

A dying West India planter, groaning to his favorite negro servant, sighed out, "Ah, Sambo, I'm going a long journey." "Never mind, massa," said the negro, consolingly, "him all de way down hill."

An Irish dragoon, on hearing that his widowed mother had been married since he left home, exclaimed, "Murther! I hope she won't have a son oulder than me-if she does, I lose
