For a young lady to dream of lemons, is a eign that she ought to be squeezed.

Nearly all, if not all, the drinking salsons in St. Louis, it is said, are furnished with straws for sucking juleps, by one man, who sells them for one and a half or two dollars a thousand. From about two acres of land, on which he grows rye annually, he sells about twenty-four hundred dollars' worth of straws. They are packed also in barrels, containing about 12,000 straws, and shipped to New Orleans, St. Paul, and the intermediate places, and the demand is increasing.

The Kinderhook Rough Notes tells the following about a shoemaker who plies his awl in that village :- "Once upon a time he promised to have a pair of boots finished at a specified day for ex-President Van Buren, but failed to have them done when called for. In the meantime the ex-President started for Europe and was gone three years. Upon his return he called for his boots, and was told they were finished, with the exception of treeing out !"

They have a juvenile prodigy at Boonvillea "wee bit of a boy"-who astonisned his mother a few days since. She had occasion to chastise him slightly for some offence he had committed; Charley sat very quietly in his chair for some time afterwards, no doubt thinking very profoundly. At last he broke out thus: "Muzzer, I wish pa'd get anuzzer housekeeper, and let you go." "Why so, my son?" "Cause, I've got tired seein' you round."

During the Revolutionary War, the Earl of Dartmouth asked an American in London of how many members the Congress consisted. To which the reply was, "Fifty-two." "Why that is the number of cards in a pack," said his lordship, "pray how many knaves (jacks) are there?" "Not one," returned the republican; "please to recollect that knares are court cards."

Two country lawyers, overtaking a wagoner and thinking to crack a joke on him, asked him with assumed gravity, "Pray, mister wagoner, how is it that your lead horse is so fat and the others so lean?" The wagoner, with sharp penetration, replied : "Well, you see the reason is plain-the lead horse is a lawyer, and the other two are his clients." The jokers vamesed instanter.
