CLEARFIELD, PA., DEC. 22, 1858.

WHO ARE THE AGITATORS !

The Administration Party have been two years deploring the agitation of Slavery, and ever since last Spring have insisted that the Slavery question was finally and conclusively settled. There has been no new attempt at agitation on the part of the Opposition. But how is it with themselves? The President of it are devoted to fanning the flames of slavery agitation. Congress meets, and on the first day of the session, Mr. Mason, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, acting in behalf of the Administration, takes the earliest moment to revive the Slavery agitation by calling up the claim of the owners of the Amistad negroes. The South Carolina Legislature assembles with a conceded Adproposition to re-open the Slave Trade, and the Allegheny tier. the revival of "agitation." The Arkansas Legislature, also in session, devotes its time to Pro-Slavery Resolutions. The North Carolina Legislature is agitating the subject of reducing free negroes to Slavery. The Alaare issuing manifestoes, all to a greater or less extent agitating the Slavery question. All these are Democratic bodies. Well may it be asked : Who are the "agitators ?"

THE HOUSE COMMITTEES .- The Washington correspondence of the New York Courier & Enquirer says that the House Committees are made up by the Speaker for this session with something more than the accustomed partiality and unfairness. The sectional proclivities of Mr. Orr have been so often exhibited that it creates little surprise, though more than a little suppressed indignation, that he has given the Chairmanships of fourteen important committees to the South, and but four to the North; that on nearly every Committee which has any actual participation in legislation, he has placed five Southern to four Northern members, though the Free States have more

For the "Raftsman's Journal." PINE COUNTY.

For a number of years past the inhabitants of the South-Western portion of Clearfield and parts of the adjoining counties of Cambria, Indiana and Jefferson, have been exerting themselves to procure the formation of a new county to be called Pine. Active preparations are now being made by the friends of the project to have it brought before the Legislature during the approaching session, and, judging from the number of influential men engaged in it, as well as the determination manifested to press the matter to a conclusion, their efforts bid fair, at last, to be crowned with success. That such a result will meet the approbation of every right thinking and unselfish citizen of either of the counties interested, can scarcely be doubted.

By the lines, as they are proposed to be run, the new county will embrace the townships of Burnside, Chest, part of Ferguson, nearly all of Bell, and a small part of Beccaria, in Clearfield ; the townships of Canoe, Montgomery, and part of Green, in Indiana; part of Gaskill | Watrous engaged in extensive speculations in in Jefferson; and Susquehanna, Chest, and a small part of Carroll, in Cambria. This will give it an area of about four hundred and sends in his Message, and two mortal columns twenty square miles, and a population, (taking the census of 1850, as a guide,) of about eight others with whom litigation was apprehended. thousand. There is scarcely an acre of the soil, throughout the whole extent of these boundaries, that is not susceptible of cultivation, and it contains, in addition to the large quantity of excellent timber, immense beds of coal, as well as iron ore, limestone, and frebrick clay. The necessary developement of these rich resources, consequent upon the forministration majority in both Houses. Its, mation of a county, will make it one of the whole time is taken up with discussions of a most thriving and prosperous of those forming

Their the Slave Trade. The Mississippi politicians lands, to a great extent, lie idle and undeveloped, whereas the formation of a county would enhance their value and draw out their products. That they should be relieved from these difficulties, and be permitted to enjoy the benefits to which their neighbors are entitled, is their prayer-a prayer that should meet a response in that inate sense of justice which swells the bosom of every upright cit-

> Under the recent amendment to the Constitution it will be necessary to submit the question to a vote of the citizens of Clearfield, as more than one-tenth of their population is embraced in the proposed boundaries. That a majority of them will vote in favor of the erection of the county, is generally conceded. The principal business men of the borough of Clearfield are active supporters of it, and as it leaves us over a thousand square miles of territory, and over thirteen thousand population, delicacy and brilliance, who were never born with serious objection from any considerable number of the citizens of other parts of the county. Nearly all are convinced that the people asking it are entitled to a new county, and they are willing they should have it. Those who may oppose it, (and there are alrect pecuniary interest in preventing its formation.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS. DEC. 13 .- This day the Senate Committees were appointed, the list agreed upon in the Democratic caucus being adopted by a party rote, with the exception of Messrs. Bell and Broderick, who voted in the negative. Mr. Clingman urged the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. The Pacific Railroad Bill was taken up, and Mr. Gwin spoke at length in its favor. The House was occupied with the impeachment case of Judge Watrous, of Texas. DEC. 14 .- The Senate to-day devoted the session to the Pacific Railroad question. Numerous suggestions with reference to the location of the road were made. A motion by Mr. Mason to lay the bill upon the table was lost. Mr. Wilson moved to postpone the subject until Monday. Without taking a vote the Senate adjourned In the House, Mr. Washburne of Illinois gave notice of a bill providing for the establishment of an emigrant and mail route from some point in Minnesota to Puget Sound. The residue of the session was devoted to the case of John C. Watrons, Judge of the District Court of the U. States for the State of Texas. Two memorials have been presented to the House, praying for his impeachment, one of them by Eliphas Spencer, and the other by Jacob Mussina. It is alleged in the memorial of Spencer that Judge real estate in his judicial district, where he knew the titles were in dispute, and that he employed his Court as the means of promoting the interests of himself and partners in the speculation, and to secure an advantage over DEC. 15 .-- Mr. Cameron delivered an interesting speech on iron duties. A motion to take up the Pacific Railroad bill was lost by a tie vote. In the House some Tariff modifications were proposed and referred, and then the Watrous impeachment was taken up. The resolution to impeach the Judge was nullified by a substitute saying that the evidence produced is insufficient to justify such accusation. The Baltimore election business, of Nov. 1857, was called up, pending the discussion of which the House adjourned.

DEC. 16 .- The Senate adopted a resolution calling for information as to the landing of slaves by the Wanderer. An attempt to take up the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was voted down. Mr. Bell spoke in favor of a Pacific Railroad. Adjourned to Monday. The House had a message from the President covering information as to recent events in Central America, which was sent unread to the Foreign Affairs Committee. The resolution requiring a new election in the 3d congressional district of Maryland was discussed and tabled, 106 to 97. In Committee, the 1812 and subsequent pensions bill was discussed, but nothing done with it. DEC. 17 .- The Senate was not in session. In the House, a bill to provide for the payment of the claims of citizens of Georgia and Alabama on account of losses sustained at the hands of the Creek Indians gave rise to a long discussion.

From the Philadelphia Press. BIGLER AND HIS BOSWELL.

The immortal bard was not wide of the truth, when he said that "some men have greatness forced upon them." In fact, this sort of fame is wont, upon some peculiarly fortunate individuals, to fall in a perfect shower. The more unpretending and the more diminutive the apparent virtues and merits of the individuals in question, the more pretentious and avalanchine the weight of glory that overwhelms them. Tho' Gray may tell us, "Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,

And waste its sweetness on the desert air. there are many others, even of a sun-flower

the gulf too wide between his Majestic High-ness and his "humble" fellow-citizens. He ..., Gen, George Potts, of Hollidaysburg, does not dine on gold services, nor revel in has been appointed, by the Pennsylvania Rail damask curtains, nor drive his coach-and-six- road Company, Weighmaster at Altoona. . . little laxuries, which might do very well for Some petty thief stole several articles of clothed wonders as he. "Although the Senator" (according to the Clearfield paper, which must his residence is as unpretending in its appear- | the children, horrible to relate, were consumed. ance and its appointments as that of a private citizen in moderate circumstances!" How very kind and condescending to live just like other private citizens, instead of lording it in a princely mansion, as he is certainly entitled to do by right of his "distinguished" position ! How cruel-hearted his constituents must be not to build him a marble palace !

THE RAFTSMAN'S JOURNAL,

That they have not done this tardy act of simple justice is mainly due, as we are glad to learn from the Clearfield chronicler, to the fact that Senator Bigler, like Shakspeare, is "not a man for a day," or even "five months," "but for all time." His greatness is too great for a single county-Clearfield county cannot contain it, and if it could, and if it were kind enough to do it, has no right to such "distinguished" monopoly 1 "The people of Clearfield are justly proud of being able to claim Senator Bigler as one of her adopted children, but she can no lorger claim him as exclusively her own. His varied and commanding talents, and his political experience and sagacity, have already marked him as one of the nation's statesmen, and hereafter his history will be part of the history of the country whose legislative halls he helps to adorn !"

We do not wonder that the Clearfielders are all in tears at their incalculable loss. The sudden vanishing of such a brilliant light from their horizon must plunge the "American citizens" of Clearfield into saddening gloom. It must be a poor consolation to them even to feel that their loss is the country's eternal gain. It cannot relieve their agitated and bereaved bosoms a particle to know that their "distinguished son" is "helping to adorn" the National Capitol, on whose adornment so much expenditure has already been lavished that the addition of Bigler seems a piece of pure wasteful superfluity. They cannot be quieted with such cold comfort as home, or Clearfield must go into sackcloth and ashes. Hinc illa lachryma. But they need not pine as those who are utterly without hope. Three more revolving moons, and the commanding talents and political sagacity? of Clearfield's "distinguished son" need not answer at the Senate's roll-call. The short agony of the Thirty-fifth Congress will soon be over, and the immortal Senator, "whose history is to be the history of the country,' may pocket his perquisities and mileage, and travel home as fast as steam and his own condescension can carry him. Then Clearfield may rejoice once more, and clutch that extended hand. If Clearfield is content to get him back, the country will be satisfied to spare the Senator, and we question whether it would ever feel a single throb of agony if his county should keep the "distinguished son" at home for the rest of his natural life.

Note .- Boswell was the biographer of Dr. Johnson. Macauley says "he was always laying himself at the feet of some eminen man." it he could thereby secure the least notice. When he remarked on one occasion that "the world said Johnson was a bulldog," the Doctor replied that "the world said he [Boswell] was a tin-kettle tied to his tail." ----

PENNSYLVANIA ITEMS PREPARED FOR THE "RAFTSMAN'S JOURNAL." INDIANA COUNTY .- The store of J. & G. S. Moore, of Saltsburg Borough, was entered by burglars on the night of the 3d inst. The villains succeeded in boring off the lock, and gained an entrance, but afterwards became alarmed, perhaps, and fled before they succeeded in securing any great amount of goods. . . . On the 9th inst., Mr. John Swan, met with an accident, at the R. R. engine house in Indiana, to a white oak in the line of Thomas Billington by which his face was badly burned. He had thrown a quantity of coal into the stove, thereby smothering the fire. Shortly afterwards he approached, and opening the stove door, with a large poker commenced stirring at the fire, when on a sudden, the gas which for a time had been confined burst out, enveloping him in a sheet of flame. . . . A few nights ago some person entered Dr. Mitchell's barn in Indiana, and damaged his horse gears by cutting them in several places. Such conduct shows a motal depravity capable of committing a crime of a higher grade. . . . On the morning of the 13th, a little son of Mr. W. H. Kerr Rowles and others, with log house and barn and of Indiana borough, was riding a horse to water, and while going at a rapid pace the animal stumbled and fell, bringing the lad between it and the stones and bruising him hadly. ... On the 3d Dec., Mr. John B. Riddle, of East Mahoning, shot a large grey eagle, which weighed 12 pounds and measured 8 feet between the tips of the wings. .... We learn from a reliable source, says the Register, that several farmers in the north of the county. have been herding a drove of over one hundred hogs on acorns, in the mountain, to the right of Luthersburg, in Clearfield county. LEHIGH COUNTY .- On the night of the 8th inst., a valuable roan horse was stolen from the stable of Mr. Lorenz Klein, in Salsburg. He was however subsequently recovered near Trexlertown. The supposition is that he was taken from the owner's premises by a lunatic recently released from the Almshouse, who formerly owned the animal. . . . . The good people of North Whitehall, in the vicinity of "Egypt," seem to be much afflicted with a gang of nocturnal house breakers. Eatables seem to be the main want of the thieves. Within a week or two past, the cellars of Dr. Wm. S. Kohler, Joseph Stein, Aaron Kohler, S. Schmidt, Edmund Kohler, F. G. Bernd, William Falk and Solomon Steckel, have all been ransacked in succession. The granary of Daniel Kohler, we learn, was also robbed of several bushels of rye.... On the night of the 6th inst., the Store of Messrs. Shitz & Ochs, at Bunker Hill, two miles below Quakertown, was burglariously entered and robbed of between $400 and $500 in gold and silver. A German, named Nicholas Hank, was arrested and $400 of the money recovered. . . . Another German, known as "Dutch John," on the 27th ult. stopped at the hotel of Mr. Sellers, in Quakertown. On Monday morning, he turned up missing, having helped himself to a number of coats, hats, pantaloons, shirts, &c. No trace of him has since been discovered. BLAIR COUNTY .- A little son of John Schuberts, in Bush Mountain, was severely burned on the 10th Dec., by his clothes taking fire from a stove. . . . The horse thieves are about again. On Thursday night, the 9th, a fine horse belonging to Jacob Nofsker, residing in Freedom township, was stolen from his stable. The Horse Company of which Mr. N. is a rection, but they found no trace of the thief. ..., On Sunday, the 12th, as the family of Seth R. WARREN COUNTY .- On the 4th Dec., the gunshop of John Hahn, of Warren, was broken into and $200 worth of guns, pistols, keys, tools, &c., stolen. He offers $25 reward. Mr. Hahn had just commenced business.... Capt. Nathaniel Kidder, living in Conewango township, two miles from the town of Warren, has just received information from England that he has inherited property valued at half a million of dollars! It has been in chancery some ten years, unbeknown to him. The final decision makes a hard working though successful tarmer among the hills of Warren County, the lucky but unexpected possessor of English wealth. He expects to leave for the land of his fathers in a short time.

Somenser County .- On the night of the 1st Dec., a rogue entered the premises formerly owned by Mr. Norton, in the town of Somerset, where half a dozen hogs were hanging that had been butchered the day previous, and maliciously did cut off and carry away certain portions of them. About five pounds were taken from each hog. . . . Isaac Ankeny, of Jenner township, killed a hog on the 2d Dec., weighing five hundred and fifty six pounds! Who can beat it? There must have been "10 gallon of ile" in him.

LAWRENCE COUNTY .-- On the 8th Dec., Mr. Robert Law of Slipperyrock township met with an accident which will probably, if it have not already, prove fatal. He had unhitched a pair of horses from his wagon, and mounted upon the back of one of them, when the other (a stallion) became unmanageable, and both horses fell carrying Mr. Law under them and tracturing his spine.

CLARION COUNTY .- The Grist mill of Messrs. Richardson & Baker, near Shippenville, was entirely destroyed by fire on Saturday night the 11th, with all its contents, books, papers, this. They want the "distinguished son" at &c. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. The mill was fortunately insured. JEFFERSON COUNTY .- The rain which fell in the beginning of last week, raised the creek. Redbank, over a ratting stage. The roads are very muddy.

than three-fifths of the House ; that on the same committees he has allowed the Opposition but two or three members out of nine, and that he has appointed Southern men to fill all the vacancies caused by death or the retirement of former Chairmen.

A difficulty occurred on the 18th inst., in Washington City, between two Congressmen-Mr. English, of Indiana, and Mr. Montgomery, of Pennsylvania. They met for the first time this session on Pennsylvania Avenue, on the day named, when Mr. English, extending his hand, said, "How are you, Mr. Montgemery ?" Mr. Montgomery withheld his hand, and passed on without making a reply. Mr. English stepped after, and struck him over the head with a cane, knocking him into the gutter, but not entirely down. Mr. M. then picked up and threw a brick at Mr. English, but did him no injury, the brick striking him on the foot. This is the newspaper report of the affair.

A GOOD PAPER .- The Pittsburgh Gazette, (Daily and Weekly.) is now in its 73d volume, first of those that compose the fifth class, or and a paper which we can cordially recommend. It has all the latest news, is beautifully printed, and is a firm and unflinching supporter of the Republican cause. The Daily is rection of Pine county, (as it would require furnished in clubs of ten or more at $5 per annum, single copies $6. The Weekly, an immense sheet with from 27 to 30 columns of reading matter every week, is furnished at $1 per annum, to clubs of ten or more; $1,25 in clubs of five, or at $2 to single subscribers. Now is the time to subscribe.

It is said the chair of Mr. Douglas in the Senatorial caucus is to be draped with black as a hint that he "has departed" and that it is "recorded" against him. We have mistaken the character of the "little giant" if he does not walk into the caucus, take his accustomed seat, and prove that black is white or that the craped chair is the emblem of the defunct Administration. We shall hear of some strange doings before the ides of March.

FUN AREAD .- A well posted correspondent of the Chicago Press, in a letter dated Washington Dec. 8th, says :- "Bigler and Green are going to bring in an anti-Polygamy bill to show their contempt for Squatter Sovereign- publicans, having been compelled to appease ty, and at the same time to make Douglas face the music on it when he comes here."

The Philadelphia Bank case was terminated last Saturday, and Messrs. Allibone and New- to put his legs under the Executive mahoghall were acquitted of the charge of conspiracy to defraud the Bank of Pennsylvania.

It is said that Judge Douglas has prepared and will soon publish a declaration of his intention not to be a candidate for the Presidency in 1860.

Delicious free-stone peaches, fresh picked from the trees, were for sale in the Memphis markets, last week. They were selling at fifty conts per peck.

Robert M. Riddle, for many years editor of the Pittsburgh Commercial Journal, died on the 18th inst. in that city.

Should Pine county be formed, it will at once receive an accession of population from the surrounding counties, which, together with the concentration of the means of the people within smaller limits, will give an impetus to every kind of business, develope the resources, open the roads, clear the land, increase the value of property, and premote improvements of every description. It would start on its career with as many thousands of population as Clearfield had hundreds, for as late as five! In a very few years it would rival its neighbors, and take its stand among the very the bituminous mountain counties.

It is not the design of this brief article to present or elaborate the arguments for the emore time than the writer can now devote to the subject.) but simply to bring the matter to the attention of those interested in the movement, and urge upon them the necessity of active ention. There can be no doubt, if the claims of the people of the proposed county are properly presented to the Legislature during the coming session, their prayer will be granted. If the project is not successful this winter, it will be owing to the apathy of its professed friends. Let there be activity and combined effort, and Pine county is "a fixed fact." H. B. S.

THE PRESIDENT RELENTS .- Forney writes from Washington that the President has given up his social proscription of the Republican Congressmen, but without accomplishing anything, as will be seen by the extract we append

"The President has reconsidered his social programme, and yesterday invited a number of Republicans to take dinner with him. I understand that, like most of his hospitalities, these latter came 'too late,' and that the Retheir hunger during the long session outside the Presidential mansion, have resolved to appease it in the same way during the short session. It is now given out that not a single member of the Republican party will consent any."

Du Vall's Galvanic Oil acts on the system by imparting to the diseased part a natural current of electricity, by which the restoration of all the natural functions are produced immediately, and a cure is at once obtained. AN IMPORTANT FEATURE .- The great demand which exists for its graduates, and the high salaries which they command are the best possible guarantees of the practical and a condescending notice from "a distinguishbusiness value of those whom the Iron City ed Senator." it is scarcely to be presumed that it will meet for this prosaic, unromantic destiny. They are never content till they figure before the world's eye, and intoxicate the town with their peculiar fragrance. They are gleeful at agricultural fairs, and at the annual meetings of horticultural societies ; for they are ambitious then and there, by ventilation of their sweets, to win "that medal" which is to stamp them as fairest of the fair and brightest of the ways some,) are only the few who have a di- bright. If taken abroad as exotics, their cup of dew is full to overflowing; and if brought back again to their native and accustomed vale, they are apt to snub and look down upon the poor little "dafly-down-dillies" and modest primroses who used to be fellowcompanions of the field in earlier days. If they prove generous enough to still smile on these early friends, despite the new accession of renown from foreign wanderings at Court, they are pronounced as condescendingly good and great, and tip-top specimens altogether.

We were abruptly reminded of these trite truisms in reading a paragraph in a late number of the Clearfield Republican. It was a source of delight for us to learn-a satisfaction which we would not prevent our readers 1810, we had only eight hundred and seventy Pennsylvania has been spending five or six months in his old home." The phenomenon is, perhaps, not altogether a startling novelty, and per se does not call for any peculiar force of exuberant ecstacy, were it not accompanied with facts of most significant suggestions. The authority in question, like Virgil in his account of Encas' wanderings, embellishes the simple fact with a classically graphic account of the attendant circumstances. "The time" of this distinguished son "has been occupied in friendly and unreserved intercourse with the friends and associates of the humbler days of his early life." What marvellous and refreshing condescension for the noble and "distinguished" to thus find a solace from the cares of State in loving communion for five calender months with the "humble !" And, can it be credited, as the Boswellian biographer relates, that "during that time, no man of his acquaintance, [even the commonest farmer or most ordinary log-roller of the Clearfield region,] be his condition in life what it may, can say that the hand has been withheld from him by or destinguished citizen!" If this isn't a stooping of Jove-like majesty to notice "the lower classes," we should like to know what else is. If this be not unbending from "the frown which sits so well on kings," we should like to learn. To have given that hand with such generous looseness, however "weak in the knees" may have been the Administrative force that lent if muscle, was, under the circumstances, a degree of affability rarely seen outside of the court of his Imperial Majesty Faustin the First. Neither Crichton nor Chesterfield ever touched this sublimity of self-sacrifice, and the only wonder is that the generous hand

We certainly think "the Aconceive of anything "more gratifying" than
