SHOWING THEIR HANDS. The plans of Southern politicians are gradually developing themselves. Mr. Stephens has taken grounds in Georgia in favor of a territorial slave code and the revival of the African Slave Trade; Senator Brown, of Mississippi, follows on the same side; and now we learn that Jefferson Davis, in his last speech at Jackson, Mississippi, which may be called a sort of reply to Senator A. G. Brown, took very ultra ground, declaring that the laws against the opening of the African slave trade were unconstitutional, and asserting that the election of a Republican to the Presidency would justify a resort to secession on the part of the South. Thus one after the other of render it more certain, every day, that a Congressional Slave Code for the Territories and the re-opening of the African Slave Trade will be the great issues before the people in 1860. It is true that they may not be presented directly in the shape of a plank in the platform that will framed by the Charleston Convention-that body may not consider it prudent or politic to do so; but the tone of those men who, it is well known, control the pseudo Democratic party and shape its course, shows plainly and unmistakably that the object of all their efforts will be to carry those measures into effect. Northern Democratic politicians may cry out never so lustily against the agitation of the slavery question, and say that it is a dead issue and that the question is settled. (though it seems strange, if this be true, that they nearly always discuss it in their letters or speeches)-the South impels the agitation, and there is no escape from it. If northern doughfaces have the temerity to oppose it, the fire-eaters threaten to dissolve the confederaey, and immediately their Northern allies turn Union-savers, and urge a compliance with the demands of the South, so that the impending danger may be averted, and the Democracy be glorified for its disinterested magnazimity and intense patriotism.

The editor of the Clearfield Republican has just made a discovery which, we think, entitles him to a leather medal. He has found law to its Northern allies. out in some way or another that "them 'orrid Black Republicans" are the cause of the "evils" that attach themselves to the recent planting them in the Territories under the mail arrangements, by which the service has sanction of Congress. REWARDED .- President Buchanan evidently remembers his Lecompton friends, and knows how to take care of those who were "killed or wounded" in the compaign last fall. Hon. James L. DEMOCRATIC DECLIVITY.

Those who doubt that the success of Gov. Wise, insists upon the incorporation of the Democracy in 1860 will be followed by the Slave-Code tenet into the creed of the the adoption of a Territorial Slave Code, and in due time by the legalization of the already revived slave-trade, have superficially scanned the past history and present position of that party. Those measures may not be incorporated in express terms into its creed at the Charleston Convention. Though Rhett, Wise, Brown, Fitzpatrick, and the men of that school, backed by influential journals like The Charleston Mercury, Richmond Enquirer, tiser, demand it on pain of a bolt in the Convention or at the polls, we question whether these issues will be set forth in the platform to disclose her programme till she is able to execute it. She desires that Conventions she has already won, while by the nominations, they place at her disposal pliant leaders whom she can use in achieving new triumphs. She conquers not by fighting in the open field, but rather by subtle strategy. Though she makes some use of all her partizans, yet, in the exigencies of a doubtful campaign, she relies more upon the cool Hunter than the flery Wise, the wily Slidell than the blatant Brown, the practical Breckinridge than the metaphysin the history of the Democracy-facts so commonplace that the lesson they teach is lost upon the public mind. Since the advent of Jackson, the Southern wing of the party, though in a numerical minority, has given the law to its Northern allies, dictating the poliwhom they might exalt and those whom they themselves in favor of extreme measures, and | promise measures of 1850, the Kansas-Nebraska bill, the Lecompton swindle, the repudiation of Van Buren in 1844, the crushing of Wright in 1856, and the election of Pierce and Buchanan, may be cited as proofs of this

> While it is unquestionable, therefore, that the entire party has been ruled by the members dwelling in one section of the Union, and those a minority of the whole, it is equally true that that minority has of late years been controlled by a small moiety of its members. The radical and revolutionary portion of the Southern Democracy have, for twenty years, dictated the measures of the party beyond the supremacy of Slavery in the Federal Government, and its spread, more or less densely, over all the States and Territories of the Union. The founder, the apostle, and finally the martyr, of the Negro Propaganda, was Mr. Calhoun. He originated the doctrine of the inviolability of slave property, and the incompetency of Government to do aught to it except protect it. All the new ideas respecting Slavery, which have startled even the slumbering Conservatism of our day, emanated from his fertile brain. All the assaults upon the old-fashioned principles of Freedom which have marked our time were planned by the same bold mind. His doctrines and his disciples now control the Southern wing of the Democratic party, and that wing gives the

Had the attempt been made to incorporate into the platform of 1852 the doctrine of the unconstitutionality of such a prohibition, it would have been successfully resisted by the convention that nominated Pierce. Yet the first Congress of his Administration engratted it upon the legislation of the country. So, too, of the Dred Scott pronunciamiento, and its logical corollary, the Lecompton English juggle; they could not have been to do so, he can make a much nicer thing out sanctioned by the Cincinnati Convention ; or of his appointment than he could have made if they had been, its nominee would have been sconted from the pells in every Free

An ex-Judge was achieves a victory, it chooses to forget the temperate proclamation it issued at the opening of the campaign, and improves its triumph quality. by striking some bold blow for the Propaganda not dreamed of by the masses who assured its triumph.

In the light of these facts it is plain where the country is drifting. Slave trading on the in Chautauque county, N. Y., as to cut down | seas, and slave-holding in the Territories, by everything except town and county accounts ! acts of Congress, are as sure to follow a Democratic victory next year, as effects follow causes. The seeming division of sentiment on these questions among Southern Democrats, on which so many hang their hopes, is super-

Texas was annexed, and when the Missouri

Compromise was repealed." The Examiner is right, both in its opinion of its Northern allies and of the true course to be pursued at Charleston. In regard to the former, our intimate acquaintance with them enables us to assure The Examiner that Slavery cannot make a requisition upon them so base in its nature, so humiliating in its terms, Let us illustrate our views by citing facts that they will not respond to it with alacrity -provided they can be assured of pay and rations. As to disclosing its Intentions in the platform, the Slave Power having heretofore won by secrecy and duplicity, by giving no warning of its delving till it sprung the mine, let it not hazard success in 1860 by tellcy to be pursued, and designating the men ing the country in advance what it intends to do. PREPARED FOR THE "RAFTSMAN'S JOURNAL." INDIANA COUNTY .- On the 15th, the house of Judge Cunningham of Blairsville was struck by lightning and considerably damaged. Mr. Patrick Finland, the occupant, was considerably stunned. A Miss Curry, residing with Dr. Laney, more than a square distant, was knocked down by the same stroke and lay insensible or two hours. She is in a critical situation, but hopes of her recovery are entertained. . . . On the 11th instant, a son of Mr. Robert Parks, of East Mahoning township, aged some 12 or 14 years, had one of his hands badly lacerated by the accidental discharge of a gun. The wound was not so severe however, as to render it necessary to amputate the hand. . . . . The wife miles from Blairsville, was bitten by a snake on the night of the 15th. She arose from her bed to go to the spring for a drink, and in stepping from the door sill she tramped upon a snake lying directly across the pathway. She became deranged and was in a dangerous condition, her entire body being swollen and inflamed. Medical aid was called in, and at last accounts she was recovering. . . . A son of Mr. D. > We heard a good story of the Sheriff or jailor of Clearfield county, which is worthy of a place in our local columns. A prisoner lately tried and convicted in that county, informed the Sheriff during the trial and after, that if he would furnish him with whiskey, he would give him information that would make his fortune. Mr. Sheriff accordingly supplied the ardent, and just before the convict was removed to Pittsburgh, he informed the said claims will present them duly authenticated for Sheriff that he was one of a gang of thieves, horse-runners &c., whose operations extended through Clearfield, Centre and Clinton connties. He then gave the Sheriff a sketch of a certain locality on the Moshannon creek, carefully marking and numbering the stumps, corners and roads. Under certain stumps, he alledged that a large number of gold watches were deposited-in a certain corner money was buried-and along certain roads, other treasure was secreted, all of which he transferred to the Sheriff of Clearfield, for the quantity and quality of the whiskey he had furnished. Mr. Sheriff sought the spot with as much trepidation and haste as Sinbad followed the golden lamp. He found the stumps as designated, dug, but found no watches, sought the corners, but they were empty, tra-versed the road-side, but they were barren of gain. The fact soon became apparent that the Sheriff was sold and bought for a few pints of whiskey. The shrewed rascal knew his vistim, judged his capacity properly, and at his expense, had a good time generally before taking his place in the Western Penitentiary. So much for Clearfield .- Bellefonte Press.

This is a rather rich story, but is not correct in all respects. The Sheriff neither furnished any liquor, nor visited the Moshannon. The jailor, however, we understand, did pay a visit to the stream named, for what purpose we cannot say, but if for that indicated, the curious can doubtless ascertain by inquiring of him "what time o' day" it is.
