Post Master .- Daniel E. Brubaker, has been appointed Postmaster at Rockton, in this county, in place of William F. Johnston,

RELIGIOUS .- By Divine permission, the Rev. Mr. Runyan will preach in the Baptist Church in this place, on next Sabbath, at 32 o'clock in the afternoon.

BISHOP BOWMAN will visit Clearfield or Saturday next, 6th July, and Preach and Confirm, the next day, Sunday the 7th in St. Andrews Church. The citizens generally and those from the neighborhood are respectfully invited to attend-morning service at second bell ringing 101 o'clock, evening at second bell ringing 71 o'clock.

H. D. PATTON.-It is with pleasure that we record the fact, that H. D. Patton, of Curwensville, has been appointed Quarter Master of 'Col. Biddle's Regiment of Pennsylvania volunteers. This is a good appointment, and we have no doubt Harry will discharge the duties encumbent upon him, with punctuality and fidelity, being an active and energetic business man.

HON. JOSEPH HOLT'S LETTER .- We this week publish on our outside, Mr. Holt's letter to Mr. Speed, on the present condition of our country. It is an able and patriotic document, and should be read by every man in the country. Mr. Holt was Postmaster General under Mr. Buchanan, with the exception of a few months at the close of Mr. B's administration, during which he was Secretary of War. As this letter is not a political document, but the honest expression of a loyal citizen and a Kentucky Democrat, we bespeak for it an attentive perusal by our readers, and hope that it will be placed in the hands of ev- British Parliament, the motion to recognize ery Democrat in the county, with a request the ill starred Confederacy Las been indefinitethat it be carefully read.

LETTER FROM CAMP PORTER.

CAMP PORTER, June 23d 1861. MR. EDITOR JOURNAL :- This beautiful afternoon, whilst reclining in the shade of a towering Black Walnut, I was dreaming "day dreams" of home and loved ones that may never smile upon us again. And I thought too, Mr. Editor, of the many sweet though sad looking eyes that might glance over the pages of the Journal, and grow bright and sparkle at the sight of a letter from "Camp." It you will let this have a place, I will give you a rambling account of our doings since we left Camp Johnson at Lancaster. We left that place with feelings something akin to those we had when leaving home. The ladies of Lancaster have our heart-felt thanks for the many acts of kindness extended to us. When we arrived at Chambersburg, we began to realize some of the hardships of soldier life. We had to remain in the cars some six or eight hours after we arrived at the depot, and make our breakfast on hard bread alone. It was raining hard all the time, and some of the boys feeling the need of a comforter, quietly left the cars and procured enough of the "Oh be joyful" to create a few out-bursts of patriotism. One of them grew so rapidly in his own estimation, that he thought he was the Commander-in-chief, and mistaking the Captain for a secessionist, he charged bayonet, and with an oath said he would kill him. At this moment, one of the boys who had not forgotten his duty, and wishing to save the life of his Captam, knocked the man down. In half an hour after, the order was given to leave the cars and take up our line of march for Camp. The rain still continued to fall, but there was no help for it, out we must go. This we all did cheerfully, except Wm. Gillen, who had threatened the life of our Captain. Gillen, however, was forced to go, after ma-king a dash at our Lieut. In passing through Chambersburg, Gillen made an other attempt on the life of the Lieut., who avoided him, not wishing a fuss in the street. Again when a mile from town Gillen refused to march, and swore he would sooner kill a commissioned officer than a secessionist, and that if he got into a battle, the first shot he fired would be at his own officers. The Lieut ordered him on with his company, but instead of going, he made another charge with his bayonet. The Lieut having lost all patience, took the musket from him and knocked him down, and gave him a few pelts after he was down. All the officers and men unite in saying, that the Lieut did but his duty, and would have served the villain right if he had killed him. Gillen has not showed himself at Camp since and his whereabouts is not known. After marching three and a half miles, through mud nearly knee deep, we arrived at Camp Patterson. A few days after we arrived in Camp, this same Lieut was promoted to the office of Regimental Quarter Master and acting Commisary of subsistance. Our Camp was named in honor of General Patterson. At this Camp we were supplied with tents and began to realize more and more the discomforts of a sol-diers life. On Sunday the 10th inst, we struck our tents and the same day pitched them in Hager's field on the south of Hagerstown, Md. In the evening we were reviewed by Gen. Patterson and Gov. Hicks. The Gen. made us quite a speech, and during his remarks the Gov. appeared to be much moved; but he had not a word to say. On Monday night about eleven o'clock the call to "arms" was given, and in course of two hours the Regiments were under way, going they knew not where. We marched back to, and through Hagers-town turning to the left. Not a sound was to be heard but the heavy tread of armed men. I think it was one of the most impressive sights I ever witnessed. So large a body of men moving along with hasty strides, all silent as death, save that solemn TRAMP, TRAMP, tramp. As the sun's first rays gilded the spires and house tops of Williamsport, company after company, and regiment after on the banks of the bright Potomac; and ere the birds had sung their matin hymn, there were twenty thousand troops, where the night before there was but a regiment or two. Not being one of the initiated, I can not tell why these troops were so rapidly concentrated at this place; but rumor said the rebels had breatened to sack the town on that day. Two not meeting an enemy returned. After passing the day in the sun, and it was most intensely hot, without anything to eat and but effect that purpose. for Camp Negley. About nine o'clock we day night, about 10 o'clock, we again left Camp and arrived at this place (Camp Porter) near sharpsburg, and within a mile and a half of the Potomac. The people generally appear to be unionists, but there are also a ew rebels in the neighborhood. We have now one in custody, who was taken as a spy. and will most undoubtedly be condemned, Our beloved General is using his best endeavors to have the soldiers conduct themselves as becomes men and Pennsylvanians; and I feel sure, that we will leave a reputation behind us that we may be proud of. Our General is one of the best men and a most excellent officer. Hoping you will not weary at the length I am yours, GIBSON.

THE APPROACHING SESSION OF CONGRESS. Never has Congress met under more eventful circumstances, says the New York Methodist, than will surround it on the fourth of July, 1861. From the adjournment of the last Congress to the meeting of this, there have been mighty strides of progress. Then Fort Sumter was beleaguered and the wisest statesmen counselled its surrender; and with each repetition of that ominous word "surrender." every man's heart sank. Then the world abroad accepted the dissolution of the Union as an accomplished fact. Then loyal citizens asked one another despairingly: "Have we a Government?" How completely all this is changed to-day ! At the call of the President, an army has risen up for the defence of the Union. The points of strategic importance have been occupied. Maryland has been saved, Western Virginia rescued from destroyers, and a new Virginia born. In Kentucky disunion has been overawed, and in Missouri it has been suppressed. Loyalty to the Government has found an expression in East-Tennessee, and is daring to speak above its breath in North-Carolina. A strict blockade of the Southern ports is smothering rebellion, by withdrawing from it the vital air. If we look at the active military operations, we have the capture of the rebel forces at St. Louis, the rout at Philippi, the victory at Booneville, the evacuation of Harper's Ferry, all of which have been followed by decisive results. Our blockade has been formally recognized by the great maritime powers, a strict neutrality proclaimed, and the last hope of the rebels extinguished by the refusal to them of the privilege of carrying prizes into neutral ports. Our weakest point-our commerce-is now well protected. Foreign ministers in full sympathy with the nation, in its spresent attitude, are now representing us abroad. In the ly postponed. Such are some of the brilliant results secured in the brief interval from the fourth of March to the fourth of July, 1861. Never before, in our history at least, have events of so much importance been crowded into the same space of time. The fact that these victories have been almost bloodless, but adds to their lustre.

All these results have been achieved by a display of resolution. While we hesitated, treason prospered; the moment we were resolved, it began to falter. We have created a new public opinion both at home and in Europe. We have regained confidence in ourselves; we are now certain that the American people united, are competent to maintain the integrity of the Union against all opposers. It is incredible, therefore, that any man, or any clique of men, should seriously propose compromise. How can we compromise? Can we, of our own free will, demand less of the parties to rebellion, than the laying down of their arms, the dissolution of their pseudo-confederacy, the restoration of the national property they have seized, and the retaking of the oath of allegiance? A compromise with rebellion is a capitulation. There can be no compromise with the theory of secession in its final form-a rebellion backed by an army. We may surrender to it, but if we do so, let us honestly call the act by its right name. We are not to be told that it is more Christian to yield ; it is not, when the question in controversy is one of right and duty to ourselves and our children. As we have already quoted from the eloquent De Gasparin in another part of this paper, "resolution is always pacific." Timidity alone has dragged us into civil war ; and resolution, firm and determined, will even now make for us the shortest way out.

It is to be hoped that the unanimity of the nation may be reflected in the unanimity of Congress. The loyal citizens of these United States are of one mind; and the intriguers who would effect their objects by a degradation of the national honor may well beware. And we ask that the moral effect of this unanimity may not be marred by any wrangling about the end to be pursued; that question has already been decided by the voice of the nation. Rebellion has thriven upon our dissensions; it has paled before our united energy; and Congress by unanimity will give the deathblow to its sole remaining hopes. Our Sena-tors and Representatives should, before they adjourn, pass in substance the old Roman decree, "Let our magistrates take care that the republic receives no detriment !" And with this ample commission we may safely entrust our cause to our rulers and to God.

THE PRIVATEER SAVANNAH .- It would seem from the statements made that the Savannah went to sea but poorly prepared for the dangerous business of privateering; her armament was very defective, and her officers unskilled in seamanship. The captain states that he had never anticipated the possible contingency of his capture, having trusted to the excel-lent salling qualities of his craft to escape a superior foe. Nor had he determined what he should do with his prizes in the event of his not being able to get them into a Southern port. The three principal officers of the privateers were very indiguant that they should be put in irons like the rest of the crew, but Marshal Murray very properly told them that he could make no "distinction between pirates." The prisoners, thirteen in number, are with three exceptions, either foreigners, or from the Northern States. The first officer and purser are Charlestonians, the captain a Philadelphian, and the sailing-master a North Carolinian. The whole number were safely lodged in the Tombs, in New York City.

THE SECESSION CONSPIRACY .- Edward Everett, in a private letter, recently published, declares his knowledge of the fact that for thirty years leading Southern politicians, had been resolved to break up the Union, and that the slavery question was but a pretext for keeping up agitation and holding the South together. The New York World is informed, regiment, filed past the town, and camped up from a trustworthy source, that one of the latest occupations of the now deceased Senator Douglas, was the partial preperation of a pamphlet exposing, from a personal knowledge similar to that from which Mr. Everett speaks, the secret machinations and public plans of this great Southern conspiracy. Before the close of this war, it will become self-evident to every nothern man with a grain of sense in thousand men, perhaps crossed the river but his head that such has been the purpose of the Southern conspirators, and that the name of "democracy" has been used as a catspaw to

The Latest News.

Received by Tuesday Evening's Mail.

July I .- It is said, that a plot has been discovered in Baltimore, of an intended outbreak. The police commissioners have been arrested and sent to Fort M'Henry. Federal troops are stationed in various parts of the city.

A movement is on foot in Western Texas to seperate it from the rest of the State, and erect it into a Union State. It is settled princepally by Germans. The Union sentiment is gaining daily. Gen. Carpan, a Unionists at the head of 200 men, recently routed twice that number of rebels.

Gen. Patterson has moved his headquarters southward towards Harper's Ferry, and his column has made an advance movement. He will erect a battery commanding the Ferry.

Three pickets of the 4th Penn's regiment were attacked by 14 rebels, who killed T. Murray of Norristown, and wounded another. A rebel sergeant was killed.

It is now stated that the Government is waiting only for wagons, which appear to be much needed, before making an advance

The English bark Etna, with a cargo of rifled connon for the rebels at Pensacola, has been captured off Fort Pickens.

It is said, that there are at Yorktown, 12,000 troops from Louisiana, South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia.

About fifty members of Congress have reached Washington city.

THE HOPELESSNESS OF THE REBEL CAUSE--IM-POSING STRENGTH OF SCOTT'S POSITIONS .-When Gen. Scott shall have completed his preparations and dispositions, there will be such a tremendous proponderance on the side of the Federal forces at every point that it would seem not unlikely that the rebellion will be crushed out without any serious sacrifice of life. There is no doubt of the desperation of the rebels, and of their determination to prolong the contest, in the hope that the North will become wearied, or be deluded into some plan of compromise. But we can and should, by a vigorous use of the enormous resources which a patriotic and united people has placed at the command of our Government, crush the rebellion by the mere weight of our columns. The forces now concentrating upon Manassas Junction and Norfolk would seem to leave them no choice but to reenact the game of Harper's Ferry at both these points, and finally at Richmond, which city, according to the most reliable accounts, is without any considerable defenses, and can offer no serious oppositions to the advance of a well appointed army of 150,000 men. It is not unreasonable to anticipate that by the 1st of November next the Federal forces will be in occupation of every considerable port and every point of strategic importance in the Rebel States. Not a bale of cotton, not a tierce of rice, nor a hogshead of tobacco will be able to leave a Southern port, nor a box of goods or supplies of any kind to reach those States, except through the legal constitued channels of commerce, receiving clearances from Federal collectors, or paying duties into the Federal Treasury.

"He remembered the Forgotton" was beautifully said of Howard the philanthropist. It also applies to every man who brings the ameliorations, comforts and enjoyments of life within the reach of persons and classes who are otherwise deprived of their advantages. Especially may it it be said of him who laboriously seeks and finds new means of preserving health, "the poor man's capital and the rich man's power." We think this eulogium properly applied to J. C. Ayer, of Lowell, the enowned chemist of New England who, spurning the trodden paths to fame, devotes his entire abilities and acquirements to the discovery of Nature's most effectual remedies for disease. When the hidden blessings has been revealed, he proceeds to supply it to all man-kind alike, through our druggists, at such low prices that poor and rich may alike enjoy its benefits .- [Journal and Enquirer, Portland, Me.

RIOT .- A very serious riot occured on Monday, at Milwankee, Wisconsin. The mob attacked several banking houses, maltreated the persons employed there, and destroyed property to a considerable amount. The military were called out; the first company refused to act; the second charged with bayonets upon the crowd, which broke and fled. It was feared that more trouble would be made; the city was put under martial law, and troops were sent for from neighboring towns. The riot was caused by the action of the Bankers on Saturday, in throwing out of circulation the notes of a large number of the Banks of this

THE SHARP SHOOTERS .- Mr. Berdan who has been active in organizing the regiment of crack shots, has received more than five hundred applications, by letter, from sharp-shooters, who are desirous of joining this regiment cured in ten minutes. Sprains relieved in ten and who can send targets within the limits of minutes. Sore throat relieved in five minutes the requirement, properly attested. Detatchments from this regiments will be sent forward, and placed at the disposal of General Scott, as fast as subscriptions are made for equipping the men.

Every Summer the demand for Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters increases. It is found to be the only certain preservation of bodily strength during a period when the atmosphere is calculated to induce a feeling of lassitude and indigestion. The worst cases of Diarrhoea, and Dysentery give way to its potent influence. Innumerable persons, who are now alive and well, must thank the discoverer of this preparation that they have not been swept away in the harvest of death. The Bitters is recommended by the best physicians in the land. This is the best evidence of its real value, because, as a general thing, they will not speak a word in favor of advertised prepartions. They have been compelled to acknowledge the claims of the Bitters upon the community. Sold by all draggists.
