ELIZA CHASE, P. M. Nov. 13.

A SAD AFFAIR .- On last Wednesday evening, the 5th, the wife of Thomas Liddell of this place, whilst laboring under a temporary derangement of the mind, committed snicide, during a visit to her parents (Mr. Johnson's) restding in Jordan township. Mrs. L. had been unwell, but under the treatment of a physician was improving. For several days she expressed a belief that her child was getting poor on account of her sickness, and said it would die : and it is supposed that under this apprehension she committed the fatal deed, by cutting her throat with a razor. The family was absent from the room at the time. A more affectionate family did not reside in the county. The occurrence has cast a gloom over the whole neighborhood where they reside ; and all deeply sympathize with the parents and husband in their sad bereavement.

WHAT IS IN THE BEDROOM .- If two persons are to occupy a bedroom during a night let them step upon weighing scales as they retire, then again in the morning, and they will find that their actual weight is at least a pound less in the morning. Frequenlty there will be a loss of two or more pounds, and the average loss throughout the year will be more than one pound. That is, during the night there is a loss of a pound of matter gone from their bodies, partly from the lungs and partly through the pores of the skin. The escaped material is carbonic acid, and decayed animal matter, or poisonous exhalations. This is diffused through the air in part, and in part absorbed by the bed clothes. If a single ounce of wood or cotton be burned in a room, it will so completely saturate the room with smoke that one can hardly breathe, though there can only be one ounce of foreign matter in the air. If an ounce of cotton be burned every hour during the night, the air will be continually saturated with smoke unless there be an open door or window for it to escape. Now the sixteen ounces of smoke, thus formed, is far less poisonous than the sixteen ounces of exhalations from the lungs and bodies of two persons who Whatever other taults may belong to the character of John C. Fremont, an over-weentng self-esteem is not one of them. It may be that he is too proud to be vain-for vanity and pride do not often go together-but certainly he has none of that self-love which is quick to take offense, and so apt to lead its possessor to rash and ill-judged, and sometimes to criminal acts for his own justification. It may be that he is not great enough for the military command of the Western District; that he wants experience, judgment, energy, and that insight into character which would be a safeguard against his surrounding himself with dishonest men. On these points we have nothing to say here, for it is on such charges that he is arraigned by the Government. But surely it is not improper for us to affirm that if he is not great enough for that command, he is, at least, great in his removal from it. "He that " ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh " a city." For in truth it seldom talls to the lot of man to be placed in a position more trying than his. It is not within the range of possibility that he believes himself guilty on those points whereof he is accused ; for, if that were the case, he would long ere this have relinquished his command voluntarily. However wise and just the Government may be; however wrong Gen. Fremont may be, most assuredly his confidence in his innocence is unwavering, and he looks upon himself as an injured man. The order for his removal comes to him at the head of an army in the field-an army of 40 ,-000 men, every one of whom is bound to him with a personal devction and attachment such as has been rendered to no commander of any country except Napoleon. It is something that he should obey the order for retiring without a murmur, though we trust there is no General in the service who would not have been equally prompt in obedience to such a duty. But it is not only that he was at the head of such an army, so bound to him by that peculiar influence which he wields over all who become his followers; but he was on the eve of a battle, long looked for and longed for. The enemy whom he had followed for hundreds of miles; the enemy by whose defeat the country for weeks had told bim he might justify himself; the enemy who, with fire and sword, had made a State a desort, was at length before him, and about to be delivered to his bow and spear. In the temper of that army at whose head he stood, not merely a General but a beloved chief, he could have "fanned the spark of mutiny-who can doubt it ?-- into the flame of rebellion by a word. Was the word spoken ? Was there even the thought of speaking it ? Clearly not. "Soldiers !" he says, "I take leave of you. I regret to leave you sincerely. I deeply re" gret that I shall not have the honor to lead "you to that victory you are about to win. We " have grown up together, and I have become "familiar with your brave and generous spirits. I thank you for your regard and · confidence."

If there is in all this a shade of sadness, there is, much more, a tone of unbounded trust in the personal relations and the sense of duty that bound them together. For, he says, " Continue as you have begun, and give to my " successor the same cordial and enthusiastic " support with which you have encouraged me Emplate the splendid example which

CORRESPONDENCE OF THE "JOURNAL." CAMP PIERPOINT, Hairfax Co., Va.,

November 2nd, 1861. DEAR Row :- Since I wrote to you from through the columns of the Journal, which coming as it does, solitary and alone to this part of the camp, is indeed a welcome guest ; and it contributes no little to drive away the ennui and monotony of camp life, and to bring to the soldier, who is separated from home and friends, good news or evil, as the case may be. It is true, however, as far as the stirring events of the day are concerned, that no paper, coming from an interior locality, can bring news of that character which would be of much interest in camp, as they are entirely superceeded by the dailies, which do not fail to make their appearance here as often as the sun rises ; but, coming as they do, from home, bearing news of a local nature, they are of intrinsic value to the soldier as faithful chroniclers of home events. As such 1 greet the Journal, coming from my adopted home, its contents are indeed interesting and are devoured with avidity, not only by myself, but by others from Clearfield who are with me, and by many that Clearfield never knew. May it continue to come! for it speaks the senti-

I shall not weary you with a detail of the incidents of our trip, here, nor will I attempt to follow up the events which have transpired since we came here; time and space forbids it at present. But, allow me to notice briefly some of our doings, which, although of no general interest, may be of some to Pennsylvanians, for if it does not result in the killing of rebels, directly, it adds to the efficiency of our men, so that if an opportunity presents itself, for doing anything in that line, they will be enabled to perform it according to the improved rules of modern science. Last Monday Gen. McCall had a review of about 6 of the Reserve regiments. I noticed that the 5th was among them. The troops looked well and performed the various evolutions in a way that reflected great credit upon the officers who are entrusted with their training. I noticed several prominent officers present, among whom were Generals McCall and Reynolds, and others whose names I have forgotten. On Tuesday there was a general review of the whole Reserve corps, including infantry, cavairy and artillery. It was a fine spectacle, and if the minions of Davis & Co., could have seen the enthusiasm of our troops, (of which this Division forms only a fraction) they would be convinced of the hopelessness of their cause, I think, and lay down their arms in despair. From my position on the field I had no opportunity to see who the worthies were. We passed them once during the review on a full run. and had not military courtesy forbid us turn-

The Latest News.

Received by Tuesday Evening's Mail.

Information has been received from the fleet. and it appears Beaufort, South Carolina was its destination. The following is in brief, the news of the capture of that place. The fleet on arriving at Port Royal engaged the two Rebel forts and captured them-bombarded Beaufort and burnt most of the town, and landed the Federal troops. It is alao reported that the railroad above Beaufort fell into the hands of our troops with an immense amount of stores.

Col. Gresnel made an excursion into Texas county in Missouri, several days since, and captured 9 prisoners, 500 head of cattle, and 40 horses and mules belonging to armed Secessionists.

The news of the success of the fleet causes much rejoicing everywhere, still it is not certain that so much has been achieved as reported. The news comes through a rebel source. The gunboat Union was wrecked near Bague Inlet. She is a total loss. The crew, 73 in number, were taken prisoners by the robels, and are now at Fort Macon, N. C.

A report is also current that our troops had bombarded Charleston, but this is rather doubtful.

A number of rebel regiments are said to have gone South from the lower Potomac have lost a pound in weight during the eight hours of sleeping, for while the dry smoke is mainly taken into the lungs, the damp odors from the body are absorbed both into the lungs and into the pores of the whole body.

The report that Gen. McClellan had ordered four sentinels to be shot, is unfounded.

Need more be said to show the importance of having bedrooms well ventilated and of thoroughly airing the sheets, coverlids and mattresses, in the morning before putting up in the form of a neatly made bed. Perhaps bed-but according to the notion of some, if it is old and dirty it is so much the better-if it was slept on by a great-grandmother, and has absorbed the exhalations of the body, the disease and decomposition of three generations, it is a capital bed. A grand mistake. Being an insulation against the tree circulation of the electric forces of the system, and being a body of constantly decaying animal matter, a feather bed is the worst of all couches vigorous constitution will never rise from one without feeling a weakness which takes hours to recover from. The moisture and vitality of the system has been absorbed without being replaced by an equal amount of life capital; and particularly when the room is poorly ventilated will the destructive and weakening influences of the feather bed be felt. Our advice is to discontinue their use entirely.

CAMP CROSSMAN, Nov. 4th, 1861. MR. S. J. ROW :- DEAR SIR :- We feel it our duty to write a few lines in regard to our yeu will do us the kindness to publish the same in the Journal.

We are daily receiving reports by persons coming into camp and by mail, that Captain Ogden had sold his men to Capt. Carby ; and Capt. Ogden. Now, for the good of the cause Ogden and Curby are too much of gentlemen them. This foul-mouthed trash only shows to us that there is still sufficient Secesh in the ington that Capt. Ogden had sold his men at from 50 to S0 cents a piece, and then went to the Clearfield county Fair and took a spree on the head of it. Now, we as soldiers, are confident that this ill-disposed trash does not injure those that it is aimed at ; and we only regret that Clearfield county is the home of those who are guilty of thus stigmatizing the characters of the men, who but a few weeks since bid adjeu to all that is near and dear, and have gone forth in defence of our common country.

A Mr. F. was in our camp a few days since and complimented the Clearfield boys as though he was their warmest friend. But, we now understand that he too is engaged in trying to injure our efforts to get men to fill our company. All we have to say to him, or any others who have no other object in view but speculate off the soldiers and seek office is, that they had better stay at home and mind their own business, as we have plenty of men here to attend to ours.

We also wish to inform your readers, that we have everything here that a good soldier can wish for. We have beans, bacon, beef, rice, potatoes, molasses, bread, and hot coffee three times a-day and plenty of sugar to sweeten,it. Our uniforms were here some time since,

· you have already before you, and let me re-"main, as I am proud of the n ble army which "I have thus far labored to bring together." Measure these words by the temptation which the times, the circumstances, and the hour, would have been to common men, and they are simple noble and sublimely right. There was no temptation for him to trample under his feet, because it is in the character of the man to forget himself and remember his duty. He had no self-love and no ambition to justify, but remembering that the enemy, whom he the worst of all bedroom evils is the feather had followed so far, was before him, and by his side an army whom his lightest word could sway, he bade them follow their appointed leader to victory, claiming only the right to share with them their triumph. There are not many instances in Listory of such entire abnegation. Whatever, then, may be the result of the court-martial which, will be accorded to Gen. Fremont, the praise, at least, is due him of being a man who can fall with dignity, and without losing, at the moment of great and sudden trial, his keen sense of self-respect, and of his duty to his country. Whatever to sleep upon. A person of good health and may be his faults as a General, if shall be proved that he has any, the strength and the purity of his patriotism even the best among us may emulate. Even his enemies who have expected, perhaps hoped, a different course of conduct in him, must, at last, give him credit, at least, for the integrity of his character and purposes .- N. Y. Tribune.

HOW THE REBELS BOAST AND MANAGE.

The public have little conception of the wiles and artifices which a powerful and unscrupulous foe will resort to to carry out its purpose. The rebel leaders have so much at stake, and they know so well the fate that awaits them at the hands of deceived millions if they camp and Captains Ogden and Curby, and hope fail, that they resort to the most desperate expedients to accomplish the "foreign recognition" they are constantly promising to their obedient white slaves of the south.

A gentleman of New York city had occasion recently to visit Montreal, and while there, again that Capt. Curby had sold his men to stopped at the Donegan Hotel. I presume he has business of more importance to engage his attention.

Nothing of interest happened on Wednesday. I was in Washington on Wednesday, but as I was there on duty I had no opportunity of looking around as I should liked to have done; we returned to camp about 8 o'clock. Thursday there was an inspection of the 1st Pennsylvania Artillery of Col. Campbell. He hadsthree batteries out, in all 16 guns which made a fine appearance. They were inspected by Gen. Barry, Chief of Artillery. The batteries stood a very creditable examination, which reflects much credit upon the officers in command. They are able military portunity, it will make its mark so unmistakably plain, as will leave no doubt of its efficiency. The men who belong to it are men of nerve, and know their duty thoroughly, and will not hesitate to perform it in the face of any opposition. We have lately had some very heavy frosts here, which have been very sensibly felt in camp, and show at once that the Old Dominion is not exempt from such visitors ; they step unbidden into our white houses, and warn us to prepare for the hoary gentleman that follows close in their wake. Some of the boys have profited by the admonition and have dug trenches through their tents lengthwise, over upon being heated on the outside, and the heat passing under is communicated to the tent making it very comfortable. To day we have a regular old tashioned storm of wind and rain ; it pours through our tents, to wind. ward, in streams, so that it is uncomfortably damp, with no prospect of it abating soon. The soldiers are getting tired of camp life, that is staying in one place, and are anxious the fact is, that if there is anything to be done before winter sets in, it must be done soon.

There is already beginning to be some speculation among the men as to where our winter quarters will be ; some think we will recross the river to Washington, and not a few have the idea that we will go to Harrisburg, but I believe neither will be the case. I am one of those that would rather take quarters in Richmond, at least, or know the reason why. There is nothing of a fighting character going on here, nor has there been for some time, and as there is often the most violent storms following a calm, I should not be surprised that ere long, one of the most strategical warlike movements that has ever taken place in the annals of modern warfare, will be heralded throughout the length and breadth of the land. As ever yours, W. R. B.
