SECRETARY CHASE ON THE CURRENCY. From the New York World.

Now that the vaguely foreshadowed plan of Secretary Chase for remodeling the currency is before the public in an authentic shape, the country will be better prepared to appreciate the invovation he proposes. It will be seen that his plan does not contemplate the creation of a national bank, and is not exposed to the England States. objections which would apply to a great financial monopoly which might be perverted into a gigantic engine of political influence; objections by which the old United States Bank was demolished and made odious. Mr. Chase has no disposition to revive that obsolete institution, or anything resembling it. The discussion of the measure he proposes cannot be conducted by furnishing up the rusty argu-

The State banks, as we understand Mr. Chase's plan, will remain as at present, and continue to conduct banking business of the country, the most important part of which consists in discounting commercial paper. But instead of paying out their own notes they will use notes prepared be the government. and registered in the Treasury Department, which they will obtain by the deposit and pledge of an equal amount of government securities. These notes will be redeemable to specie by the banks issuing them, and will be receivable for all government dues except customs dutie. - ments of the bank controversy of the last generation.

This scheme would seem to combine all the advantages which were claimed for the old United States Bank, without its drawbacks. It would regulate and give uniformity to the currency, facilitate exchanges, give adequate and ample security to the bill holder, and enable the government to obtain without difficulty all the loans needed for conducting the war, and for carrying the public debt when the war shall have closed. The money power of the country would not be centralized, as it was under the old bank, but divided, as now, among a multitude of rival institutions scattered though all the states. Illinois currency would be equal to New-York currency, and the great agricultural region of the West would not be taxed, as heretofore, three or Peters 1, Mrs. Wm. McKee 1, Miss M. Hewitt | four per cent. of the annual value of its products in the difference of exchange between the western and the eastern cities.

Hall 2, Mrs. Susanna Arnold 1, Mrs. A. turbing changes, substitute the latter. The authority, would quietly take the former out process would not be essentially different from that now adopted by banks in New York in getting their notes registered and countersigned in the bank department at Albany. Banks finding them more economical than the taxed notes prepared by themselves would deposit with the proper officer an amount of government securities equal to that wanted of the notes. The liability of the bank to redeem in Mrs. Elam Passmore 2, Miss Mary J. McNeal 1, specie all the notes it put in circulation would act as a check on excessive issues, which would be susceptible of a still further check by the action of the government itself, which would at all times know the amount of such notes in use.

A capital advantage of this plan is that, it would interest every moneyed institution. every capitalist, and almost every citizen of company K, 84th Regiment Penn'a Volunteers, the country is sustaining the credit of the government, and would furnish to the community strong personal motives for submitting to whatever taxes might be necessary for preventing the depreciation of the public secu-

Another advantage, and the one which has led to the proposal of this plan at this time, is the large demand which its adoption would casion—except yours." create for government securities as a basis for hanking, thus enabling the treasury to obtain the large loans needed for the war without straining its credit.

This is so large and complex a subject, and a sound currency is so vital to every interest, that, favorable as Mr. Chase's plan appears at first blush, it ought not to be adopted by Congress whithout the most thorough scrutiny. It will be canvassed in all its bearings by the best financial minds of the country; and it is to be hoped that Congress will seek their aid and profit by their views in the formation of its judgement. The currency is too delicate and too vital an interest for much tampering by unskillful hands, and if Mr. Chase's plan should be adopted, it ought to be surrounded with all the safeguards which the ripest experience can suggest. The secretary has wisely abstained from specific recommendations as to details, leaving these to be adjusted by Congress after wise deliberation and full discus-

LOW-NECKED DRESSES .- Bishop Timor, of Western New York, has issued a letter addressed "to the honored and pious Christian women of the dioces" upon a subject which he has long restrained to touch, though pressed apparently by Divine impulse, low-necked dresses. He discourced at much length on the modesty of dress, quoting largely from the Scriptures on the score of morality, and from the writings of Catharine Beecher, Dr. Ellis and others, as respects health. The Bishop trusts that Christian ladies will receive his advice in the spirit in which it is given, and directing that the pastors under his charge touch upon the subject in their discourses.

THE REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF WAR .-The Philadelphia Press says that the "Report of the Secretary of War is one of the most ably written documents that ever emanated from Washington. This is strong language, but the report is a masterpiece for style, vigor force, and distinctness. There is a genial warmth about it and a directness of purpose which commands attention and respect. There is no mistaking Mr. Cameron on any subject touched upon in his report, and he has shown that he understands the greatness of the crisis, and that he has the conrage to was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rheumatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks, and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last Saturday; while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back. felt cold, but had no decided chill. Two days later her ankles began to swell which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. She has dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is the most so. This, then, is a case of acute rhenmatism. or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well marked typical case. We will carefully watch the ease, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now is to call your attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean propylamine. Dr. Awenarius of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms having derived great benefit from its use in 250 eases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose giving it another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specifics; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER ! May 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the pa-tient for whom I preshribed Propylamine, and who was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three grains, every two hours. (intermitting it at night). The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

THREE DAYS LATER! May 26, 1860 .- This is the case of acute rhenmatism treated with propylamine, the first of those to which I called your attention at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three gratus thrice daily.

In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory results. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result b esatisfactory, I think as good jurymen, we shall justly render our verdiet favor of propylamine.

He is a seaman, æt. 26, who was admitted a few days ago. Has had occasional rheumatic pains, but not so as to keep his bed, until eight days age. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swollen, tense and tender. His tongue is furred; his skin at present, dry, though there has been much sweatiug. His pulse is full and strong, and about 96. He has now used propylamine tweuty-four hours. This gentlemen is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exosure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness. severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually ages, in the lower oints There is fever and the profuse sweating, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism.

I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it. than which there could not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, avoiding the use of all other medicines, even anodynes, that there may be no misgivings as to which was the efficient remedy. You shall see the case in a future clinic.

THE RESULT .- A FAVORABLE VERDICT. June 9, 1860.—The next of our canvalescents i the case of acute rheumatism before you at our clinic of May 26th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have never seen as severe a case of acute rheumatism so soon restorad to health as this man has been, and without bein the cases in which we have tried the chloride of Propylamine, the patients have gained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish, gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a cendensed extract, see the Philadelphia Medicaland Surgical Reporter. It is a reportafter a fair trial by the best medical authority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous certificates from astonished doctors and rejoicing patients.
